WILL CONSIDER TRACTION OFFER, SAY ORATOR

IS WRECKING PROPOSITION

Mayor Hosey Thus Brands the Offer Made by the Traction Company.

POLITICS AND BLUFF FACTORS
Administration Will Consider Proposal for Public Lighting.

"It is partly a wrecking proposition, partly a bluff and partly a political campaign. Mainly, however, it is a wrecking proposition designed to badly cripple and if possible destroy the municipal electric light and power enterprise of this city."

In these words Mayor William J. Hosey characterized the proposal submitted to the board of works Friday afternoon by the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company to enter into a contract to light the streets of Fort Wayne for a period of ten years for $12,000 a year, moonlight schedule, and $21,000 a year for all of the lights all night and every night.

The proposition submitted by General Manager Sam W. Greenleaf points out that on the moonlight schedule the city will save a total of $395,430 and on the all night schedule a total of $305,453, for the ten-year period, as compared with the cost of public lighting based on the present rate of lighting maintained by the municipal department.

Will Consider Proposal.

The mayor said that the proposal contained so much that was mere claptrap campaign matter, patently designed for use before the Indiana public service commission in its forthcoming hearing on lighting rates in Fort Wayne, that he and the board of works

Becomes Manager of Railroaders' Realty

A. B. LULEY.

Mr. Luley, who has just been chosen secretary and manager of the Railroaders Realty company, taking charge of his new position on Tuesday, has for some years been a traveling salesman for a Detroit stove concern, and prior to that time was connected with the P. & C. store. He is well known in Fort Wayne, possesses a very large number of friends, and is regarded as a business man of unusual capability.

Leaves Fort Wayne to Go Into Business at Detroit

Albert D. Fox, for nearly twelve years superintendent of the big plant of the Perfection Biscuit company here, will leave Fort Wayne very soon to embark in business on his own account in Detroit, where in conjunction with Joseph Mills, of Brooklyn, he has organized the Mills-Fox Baking company. Mr. Fox tendered his resignation to the Perfection company in October last, but at the request of the directors of that organization he has deferred his departure until this time in order that his position as factory superintendent might be satisfactorily filled.

The Mills-Fox Baking company will be capitalized at $50,000, and it will produce high-grade baking specialties. It is erecting a modern plant at Fourth and Merriek streets in Detroit, and will have its product on the market in a few weeks. Both members of the new organization are practical men of long time experience in the business and close friends for many years. Mr. Fox has sold his home at 1308 West Wayne street to John C. Heller, and with his family will remove to Detroit about March 1.

Mr. Fox, who came to Fort Wayne from Chicago, is well known here and has many friends who wish him well in his new enterprise. He is a Knight Templar, a Scottish Rite Mason, of the thirty-second degree and a member of the Myrtle Shrine.

WANTS RED CROSS PREPARED, ALSO

Letter from President to Chicago Man is Made Public.

Washington, Feb. 19.—President Wilson in a personal letter to A. A. Strague, 11, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, made public today an appeal for Chicago to lead in preparedness in the event the United States should become involved in war. The letter said in part:

"In case of war, the men who are prepared to give their lives for the defense of their country reserve to find the people they protect ready and prepared to care for the sick and wounded."

"A large, well organized, efficient Red Cross is essential. It is both a patriotic and human service that is rendered by every citizen who becomes a member of the Red Cross."

"I wish Chicago may set an example for the whole country in putting its Red Cross in a state of preparedness."

CAR SYSTEM IS TIED UP ON LEWIS LINE

The car and interurban system on the Lewis street car line was badly tied up Friday evening between 5 and half past 6 o'clock when the trolley wire from Jefferson to Lewis street on Clinton fell down. An Ohio Electric car which had been held up at the station for some time on account of other trouble, was in the middle of the square when the wires broke.

The trolley fell on the car and the passengers were frightened and all stood in the middle of the aisle for fear that the metal portions of the interior of the car might be charged. The people on the car who lived at New Haven, arrived there nearly an hour and a half late.

PLANS DISCUSSED FOR FIELD MEET

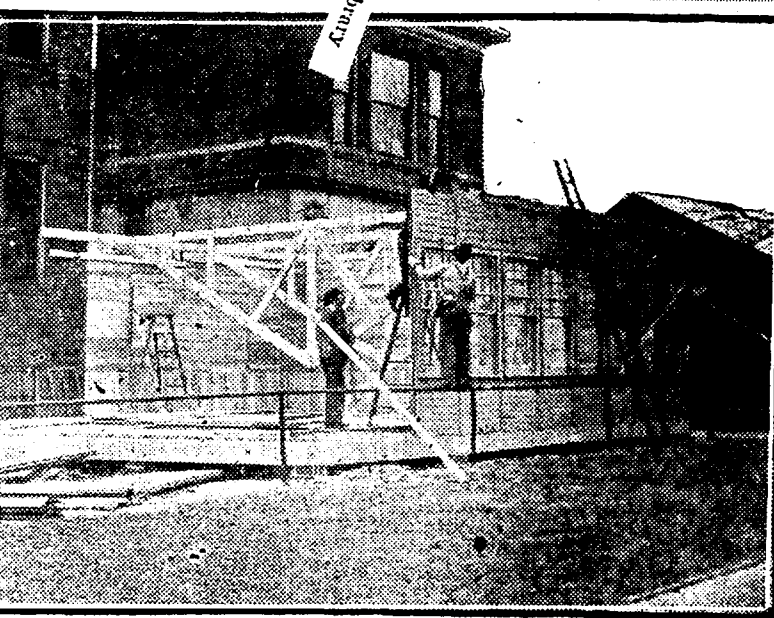

At a meeting of the boys of the Fort Wayne high school, Friday evening, at the high school building, it was decided to hold a athletic field meet in Fort Wayne this spring, the purpose being to revive the athletic spirit which has lain dormant for some years in the high school. Post, Louis C. Ward presided at the meeting.

Three other schools in the vicinity of Fort Wayne will be invited to participate in the meet, which will consist of athletic sports of various kinds. It has not been determined what schools will be invited. Clarence Stillwell has been elected captain.

PURDUE STUDENTS TO TEST TRACTION LINE

One hundred seniors in the electrical engineering department of Purdue university, Lafayette, will make a complete and thorough test of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company's electrical power Saturday night. The students will test the general transmission conditions, determining the transmission losses, drop in voltage and many other things connected with the operation of the road covering a total of 114 miles between Fort Wayne and Lafayette. Students will be placed at the various power stations and sub stations and at different points along the line, the test to be made after midnight.

Justifies Wilson's Refusal.

Chairman Stone, of the foreign relations committee, replying today to criticism of President Wilson and Secretary Lansing for withholding a part of the data and correspondence called for in the Hall resolution, declared there were abundant precedents for such action and cited the action of President Taft and Secretary Knox in withholding correspondence between the United States and Colombia with relations to the partition of Panama.

"The situation presented now with regard to Mexico is similar," the senator said.

Plans to Banish Unemployment.

A proposal for a commission to formulate a plan for a national insurance fund and mitigate the evil of unemployment, was introduced today by Representative London, of New York, the only socialist member of the house. Five persons appointed by the president would work out details of a national insurance fund to secure to workers adequate subsistence while involuntarily unemployed, whether because of lack of work, sickness or old age, and would report the plan to the president next September. The resolution proposes providing employment through the development and exploitation of national resources.

CHICAGO MEN WILL PUT ON PAGEANT

Announcement was made Saturday by Edward C. Miller, general chairman of the centennial celebration to be held in Fort Wayne early in June, that he would recommend the selection of Wallace Rice and Donald Robertson, of Chicago, to be put on the pageant in this city. Mr. Rice will write the pageant and Mr. Robertson will produce it.

While no contract has been signed the selection of these two men, who made such a favorable impression on the executive committee during their recent visit here, is assured. They declare they will have no trouble in putting on the pageant by June, and have estimated the total cost not to exceed $15,000.

Announcement of the remainder of the committees will not be made for several days as there are several changes that will be made. A few of the committees have not been completed. Mr. Miller is desirous of getting on each committee men and women who will work, and when told to do something they will do it. It has been decided to incorporate the committees putting on the pageant, and Attorneys Martin Lucke and Harry Hogan were appointed to draw up the papers.

ALLEGED LOTTERY SCHEME EXPOSED

E. Davis Arrested on Affidavit Filed in Court of 'Squire Tancey.

E. Davis, representative of the Manhattan Garment company, of Dayton, Ohio, arrested on an affidavit filed in the court of Justice of the Peace Michael J. Tancey, charging him with conducting a lottery, has given bond in the sum of $100. His case will come up for trial on February 29. The allegation is made that Davis represented that a $30 suit of clothes may be purchased anywhere from fifty cents to $29.50, according to the tickets held by the purchaser.

The action was filed by the prosecuting attorney on complaint of Harry Kemmer, secretary of the Retail Merchants' association. He intimates that action will be taken against one or two others who have been operating in Fort Wayne in a similar manner. Davis has engaged attorneys and intends to fight the charges.

For Attorney Fees.

Benjamin F. Heaton filed suit in 'Squire Tancey's court Saturday, against Johnna Backofen for $25 alleged to be due for legal services rendered in connection with the purchase of a certain piece of real estate.

NOT CONVINCED THAT CELLARS ARE HARMFUL

New York, Feb. 19.—Dr. Haven Emerson, commissioner of health, of this city, is not convinced that dark rooms and cellar dwellings are a menace to health and has declined to support a legislative bill to prevent the rental of dark apartments in this city. Dr. Emerson told the members of the congestion committee in an address last night that he could not advocate a law making it illegal to rent cellars as dwellings. So far as his department has been able to ascertain, he said, the mortality among children in dark rooms was not greater than among those in light rooms. There was such a diversion of opinion as to what constituted proper lighting and ventilation that it would be impossible to fix by law a standard which had not been even approximately determined by investigation he said.

TWO SUBSTITUTES NAMED.

Postmaster Edward C. Miller Saturday announced the appointment of two substitute city carriers as follows: Howard F. Hovey, 1201 Rietzla avenue, and Alfred S. Heft, 133 West DeWald street.

ONE DRINK "REASONABLE AMOUNT" IN CHICAGO NOW

Chicago, Feb. 19.—One drink of whiskey, beer or wine is held by City Corporation Counsel Samuel Eitelson to be a reasonable amount and Chief of Police Healy is expected to issue an order today to restaurants where liquor is sold limiting patrons to one ordinary drink after 1 a. m., the hour at which barrooms are required to close. In order to be within the law also holds the drink must be ordered before 1, but may be consumed after that hour.

"The man who buys two drinks or more at once for himself in a restaurant immediately before the closing of the barrooms is trying to evade the law. I also believe the restaurant keeper who permits such a subterfuge can be convicted for violating the law."

According to the police the two men confessed when informed of Mrs. Zebrowski's statement. It is said only $55 was taken from Sandrovich.

MOVEMENT ON FOR CENTRALIZED SCHOOL

New School Building May Be Erected in New Haven in Near Future.

A movement has been inaugurated which may eventually result in the construction of a consolidated or centralized school building in Adams township to be located at New Haven. While the plans are in their infancy and there has been no concerted action such an effort is now being made.

At a recent meeting of the Teacher-Parent club at New Haven, D. O. McComb, county superintendent of school delivered an address on the centralized school in which he extolled the virtues of such a school and the greater amount of efficiency that could be secured than is possible in the one room school.

While slow to take hold of the centralized school idea it is not at all improbable that within the course of a very few years several centralized school buildings will be erected in Allen county. It is understood that for some time a movement has been on foot for such a school at Hoagland.

The new Lincoln school in Washington township, the first real centralized school to be started in Allen county, has more than come up to the expectations of those who were in favor of it and many who were opposed to its erection are now convinced of their mistake and are enthusiastic boosters for it.

BIG DYE PLANT IS SAVED AFTER FIGHT

Bristol, Tenn., Feb. 19.—Explosion of a lantern early today at the plant of the Federal Dye Stuff and Chemical company, near Kingsport, Tenn., set fire to a chemical tank which threatened several buildings with destruction. Heroic work by employees prevented the flames from spreading, and officials say only one of the buildings was damaged. First reports were that the entire plant, valued at several millions, had been destroyed. The company, which manufactures picric acid, a base for high explosives, is a Delaware corporation, headed by A. B. DuPont. No estimate of the damage has yet been made, but it was not sufficient, it is said, to interfere with the work.

GERMAN CATHOLICS TO MAKE NO REPLY

Berlin, Feb. 19.—The Koelnische Volkszeitung says it was state authoritatively that the German Catholic bishops will make a reply to the joint letter of the bishops of Belgium which reiterated instances of atrocities alleged to have been committed in Belgium and recounted the grievances of the people of Belgium and proposed an investigation by the German prelates.

The Volks Zeitung adds: "We are convinced that the Berlin refusal is due to the desire of Pope Benedict that differences of this kind be avoided. The refusal is also quite comprehensible since the letter only tends to increase the present political excitement among the Belgian people."

LAND OWNERS MUST PAY FOR EDUCATION

El Paso, Texas, Feb. 19.—The Carranza government, according to Moises Saenz, director of education in the state of Guanato, is compelling large land owners throughout Mexico to pay the principal cost of educating the rural population of the country. These land owners, Mr. Saenz states, are required to provide school houses and pay the teachers. The government supplies text books and other requisites. Thousands of such schools, he said, have recently been established and the American system of public education is liberally applied. "We are rapidly substituting the American system of education for the French method formerly in vogue in Mexico said Mr. Saenz, who is in Juarez today."

Housewives Profit When Grocers Stage Egg War

Frenzied finance is faded, business booming is busted and Wall street is walking on in a price war in progress on South Calhoun street Saturday. In two squares on South Calhoun street there are four groceries, all neck and neck rivals, and all working as outlying business houses have to work to defeat competition.

Saturday morning the proprietors hung out signs proclaiming that eggs would sell at 25c a dozen. Then a business mind in one of the establishments got to work and the price mark on his front window was reduced, hen fruit being quoted at 24 cents as his food-stuff emporium.

Three other business men heard of the fresh attack within a few minutes and the original cutter soon found himself quoting the strictly fresh country product a cent higher than the market, for the others were down to 23c.

Soon one cut and then another and their prices sank below wholesale quotations, until the well known and highly respected ultimate consumer was procuring the fruit of the poultry at prices away below what farmers get at their very roosts.

At noon one man had reduced to 18c and the others were quoting at one cent higher. And in the midst of this carnage of battle unfeeling southside housewives were strong for preparedness, and were storing munitions for many a breakfast, while the belatedly "washed and slaughtered"

GIVE WARNING TO STATION AGENT

Marion Woman Asks Leniency for Husband Whom She Prosecuted.

Kendallville, Ind., Feb. 19.—Two boys, Howard and Henry Swanders, eight and ten respectively, prevented the wrecking of passenger train No. 7, on the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad today, when they found a badly broken rail near Swan, just thirty minutes before the train was due. The rail was broken in two and out of position.

As the train usually passes that point at a high speed, a disastrous wreck might have resulted if the train had not been stopped.

The boys warned the agent at Swan and the passenger train was held up until the track could be repaired.

The cold is believed to have caused the break in the rails.

Chemists Report on Poison Which Caused Death of Miss Lambert.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Cyanide of potassium was the poison which killed Marion Frances Lambert, Lake Forest high school girl, according to a report made to the coroner today by Ralph C. Webster. Dr. Webster said the digestive organs showed no trace of an admixture of chemicals. The white crystals found under the finger nails of the girl were originally cyanide of potassium, he said.

The report is to be read Monday at the inquest into the cause of the death of the young woman.

Dr. Webster is analyzing crystals of cyanide and other poison found in a pill in the greenhouse at the home of Will H. Orpet, who is charged with the murder of Miss Lambert.

The contention of the state is that Orpet, who was a former admirer of Miss Lambert, made a secret trip with her in the woods, where her body was found, and did not leave her until after she was dead.

Mr. Francis, who was secretary of interior in the Cleveland administration would succeed George T. Marrye, who has announced that he will retire because of ill-health. The Petrograd post is regarded as a very important one, particularly at the present time, because of questions arising out of the war.

GETTING READY TO MEET MAYOR HOSEY

Lakeside Committee Will Confer With Chairman Agne Sunday.

Councilman Jacob Agne, of the First ward, chairman of the Lakeside Civic Improvement association's special committee, has called a meeting of that body to be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon in his residence, 1222 Delta boulevard for the purpose of making arrangements for a conference with Mayor W. J. Hosey early next week. Besides Councilman Agne the members of the committee are T. J. Logan, Lew W. Sharp, W. D. Henderson, O. E. Richards, John Reisinger, Henry F. Bullard and Harry Miller. This committee was appointed at the mass meeting in Lakeside school house last Monday night and was empowered to take such action as it may see fit respecting conditions in Lakeside. One of the things for which the committee was created is to demand that Mayor Hosey return to the park road the key to the valve that connects Delta lake with the Maumee river. The board of works now has custody of this key. Mayor Hosey has repeatedly stated that he is awaiting the appearance of the committee and it is expected that the conference Sunday will perfect arrangements for the early accommodation of the chief executive.

SCORES OF BONDS INVALID.

Board of Safety Preparing New Ones for Firemen and Policemen.

Scores of bonds of members of the Fort Wayne fire and police departments have been found to be invalid by reason of the death of sureties or from other causes and pursuant to an order of the board at its meeting Friday night new bonds are being prepared by D. C. McCarthy, clerk to the board. These will be perfected as soon as possible and filed with the city comptroller. According to the list furnished the board the bonds of forty-four firemen and of twenty-five policemen are impaired and will be substituted with new bonds. In the case of some of the policemen the new bonds are required because of change in rank which requires higher bonds. In numerous instances sureties on bonds are dead.

The board approved plans for remodeling police headquarters so as to bring all the offices facing on Barr street. The improvements have been contemplated for some time and will probably be ordered by the board of works. The board of safety also ordered advertisements for the motorization of the equipment at engine house No. 1.

MAYOR CHALLENGES AGNE.

Asks That Lakeside Matters Be Submitted to Investigation.

Mayor William J. Hosey has issued a public statement, anent the controversy over matters in Lakeside and the mass meeting of citizens held last Monday night, in which he replies to the published version of conditions as set forth by Councilman Jacob Agne, of the First ward, and he challenges Mr. Agne to come forth with the proof of his charges or to keep his peace. The mayor says he is "wastefully waiting" for the appearance of the Lakeside grievance committee and proposes that Mr. Agne get the members of the committee, of which the councilman is chairman, and meet the mayor, the city engineers and invited representatives of the newspapers and together make an investigation into the truth of the charges in Lakeside. The mayor says if he is proved to be in the wrong he will make a public acknowledgment of error and asks that, vice versa, Mr. Agne do the same.

WILL BID ON SEWER.

Messrs. J. B. Sheets and A. W. Canfield of the Sheets Construction company, Pittsburg, Pa., have been in the city examining the plans and specifications for and the territory to be served by the big east end main sewer, for which the board of works will receive bids March 9. The company will probably submit a proposal. The Sheets company has taken over the work of the south side main sewer from the S. L. Sheets company and is completing it at the instance of the surety company that gave bond for the S. L. Sheets company.

City Attorney Colerick has given the board of works a legal opinion to the effect that there is ample authority of law for paving St. Joe boulevard from Lake avenue north and creating an as-and the officials of the city lighting department had not yet had time to sift out the concrete business proposals from the mass of extraneous and irrelevant arguments with which they were accompanied.

The mayor stated, however, that the proposal would be thoroughly analyzed and carefully considered. It was recognized, said the mayor, that on the one hand the proposal meant a big saving in the item of public illumination, but he declared there were considerations just as important and more vital.

Figures Are Accountants', Not City's. "The great bulk of Mr. Greenland's communication to the board of works is an argument, not a proposal," said Mayor Hosey. "There is vast attention to the figures shown in a report that is ascribed to Secretary-Manager John Wessel, of the city lighting department. Those figures are not Mr. Wessel's any more than they are Mr. Greenland's or my own. They are the results of months of examination and investigation by the field agents of the Indiana public accounting board. The entire showing and exhibit, together with all the findings and conclusions based on them, are of the examiners and not of Manager Wessel."

"When we shall have had time to thoroughly sift this proposal it will not have precisely the appearance it has on its face," continued Mayor Hosey. "It is very evidently designed to exert influence on the public mind against the municipal lighting plant, that has been built and developed to a splendid financial and economic success as well as vast public utility by the people's money. It also is purposed, unquestionably, to influence the mind of the public service commission."

Sees Attempt to Wreck. "The bare proposal itself is an attempt to wreck the city enterprise. If the Traction company can force the city to do the public lighting at a loss that would mean to cripple the plant, deplete its revenues and tie the hands of the city in its competition for commercial business by making a further reduction of commercial rates for light and power impossible."

"The city lighting plant forced a reduction of commercial rates from 10 cents to 7 cents. It brought the price of public lighting from $70 to little more than $30 per year and is furnishing three times the illumination that the city got by private contract. The lighting plant has paid back into the pockets of the people—patrons of the Traction company as well as patrons of the city—more than the sum taken by tax levy for the construction of the plant and that has been done by forcing reduction of rates. The municipal plant is worth twice what the people have paid for it and the balance has been met out of the revenues. I do not believe the people are yet ready to abandon an asset and utility of such tremendous economic and monetary value."

"Nevertheless, the Traction company's proposal will be minutely examined and carefully considered."

Says It Is Genuine Proposal. General Manager Sam W. Greenland, of the Traction company, asserted Saturday that the proposal made to the city was framed with the most serious intention and submitted with the utmost good faith.

"We have an immense capacity for producing current that we are not using. We want to use it and sell the product. The city will make us a good customer and we can save it an immense lot of money in the next ten years," said Mr. Greenland.

Mayor Hosey stated that himself, the board of works and the heads of the lighting department would take the proposal under examination and consideration at the earliest possible moment.

WASHINGTON CHAFES AT BRITISH DELAY

Impatient Over Failure to Receive Reply to U. S. Note.

S. Note. Washington, Feb. 19.—State department officials are impatient at Great Britain's delay in replying to the notes concerning the trading with the enemy act and interference with mails.

The London foreign office some time ago promised a reply to the mail notes, but nothing has been heard of the American protest against interfering trading with the enemy act.

Indications in official quarters today were that Germany's reply to the request of the United States that the Teutonic powers modify their announced intention to sinking without warning all armed merchant ships of the enemy after Feb. 29, was a statement that assurances given in the Lusitania and Arabic cases has to do only with unarmed vessels; that Germany feels certain that its submarines which warn armed merchant ships will be attacked and this country will be asked for its denunciation of defensive armament. It was considered certain that the problem of defining defensive armament will be the basis of lengthy negotiations.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Psalm 57:1-11.

1 Be merciful unto me; O God, be merciful unto me; for my soul trusteth in thee; yea, in the shadow of thy wings will I make my refuge until these calamities be overpast.

2 I will cry unto God most high; unto God that performeth all things for me.

3 He shall send from heaven, and save me from the reproach of him that would swallow me up. Selah. God shall send forth his mercy and his truth.

4 My soul is among lions; and I lie even among them that are set on fire, even the sons of men, whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword.

5 Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; let thy glory be above all the earth.

6 They have prepared a net for my steps; my soul is bowed down; they have digged a pit before me, into the midst whereof they are fallen themselves. Selah.

7 My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed; I will sing and give praise.

8 Awake up, my glory; awake, psaltery and harp; I myself will awake early.

9 I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people; I will sing unto thee among the nations.

10 For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds.

Worth Looking Into.

The formal offer of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company just submitted to the board of public works in which it indicates its willingness to take over the task of lighting Fort Wayne's streets for the term of ten years at a figure which it declares will save the city something more than $39,000 per annum during that time, is worth looking into. It is on its face a square business proposition, and even the most pronounced friend of the municipal lighting proposition will insist that the situation be analyzed in order that the people may know which is the better for them—not on paper showing, merely, but in actual practice, with all the dips, spurs and angles thereunto appertaining.

The traction company makes the contention that the figures of the city authorities showing a very considerable saving in the cost of street lighting as a result of the construction of the municipal plant are misleading because of a failure to take cost charges into proper account in its computations, and that as a matter of fact the municipal service is not so cheap as it seems. The traction company was reluctant, of course, to see Fort Wayne embark in the municipal lighting enterprise, and its experts conducted a campaign of publicity designed to discourage the construction of the system. It is still able to see it only as a losing game for the city. Yet the system was installed in response to a very plain and very overwhelming popular demand, and there has been no indication that the people have either changed their mind or regretted their action. They are still the staunch friends of the municipal lighting idea.

But the proposal of the traction company is too definite and its promises of saving to the people as a plain business proposition too important to be ignored. Their figures as to the costs of the municipal system are either accurate or inaccurate. Either the city or the lighting corporation is in error as to the net showing made by the city's plant—a variance that arises from the question of what constitutes expense that should be taxed against receipts for the service rendered. On its face the offer of the traction company is entitled to unbiased consideration.

The new mothers' pension law, enacted by the last session of the Kansas legislature, is apparently being ignored in that state, some sixty out of the one hundred and five counties refusing to comply with its provisions. In taking such a course, too, these sixty Kansas counties are setting an extremely bad example that is likely to show more serious fruits a little later. It is brooding a mild variety of anarchy by ignoring a law which it doesn't happen to like instead of setting out to secure its repeal. Nothing is more inimical to good government than the practice of permitting either counties or individuals to elect for themselves which laws they will observe and which they will simply ignore.

The courts at Grand Rapids have just held that the government has established no ground for the extradition of half a dozen or more men from Michigan for trial on charges of responsibility in connection with the Eastland disaster at Chicago—and for a time immediately following the horror it seemed that it was going to be difficult for any citizen of either Illinois or Michigan would have a difficult time in escaping at least some measure of blame for the horror.

Prof. Louis W. Fairfield, of Angola, candidate for the republican nomination for congress, is credited with having declared in an address at Kendallville that "you can't laugh Woodrow Wilson off the map nor lay him aside with a sneer." The Angola man is plainly wise in his generation—a fact that is going to be impressively emphasized when the presidential votes are counted next November.

Members of the Oklahoma legislature, in the course of a riotous session, hurled inkwells and paper weights at each other, and a miscellaneous assortment of broken heads and broken facial landscapes is the result. Still, that may be Oklahoma's conception of statesman-like deliberation.

Down at Vincennes one man has just been sentenced to from two to fourteen years in prison for shooting another, while the man whom he shot was given a similar term on his plea of guilty to the charge of passing a forged check. Now if everybody's happy, let us proceed to the next item in the order of business.

Publishers of a London journal have just been fined for printing a cartoon which displeased the authorities. Happily no such custom is in vogue in this country, or our eminent cartoonists would spend most of their time in jail.

MILK AS A BRACER

(Philadelphia Press)

The Pasteur institute of Paris has just made the declaration that one of the most powerful stimulants known is milk. It has been in use for months now as the one stimulant for the French soldiers in the trenches, and its effect on them has amply justified the statement made by the famous institute in regard to it.

Milk has been used liberally to stimulate the French soldiers before they go into battle and its effects have been such that the French government has urged the sale of milk, in preference to other soft drinks, behind the trenches when the soldiers go off duty for their spurs of rest and recreation. That the qualities of stimulation should be demonstrated on the fighting men should commend the beverage to those engaged in the pursuits of peace in those parts of the world where Mars does not now rule. While alcohol may fire the brain and dull the sensibilities and thus impart a false courage, milk, according to the learned scientists of the Pasteur institute, performs the work of keeping up the individual without affecting the keenness of his senses nor the coolness of his judgment. This is necessary to the mole of warfare which this war has exemplified, but it is no less necessary to the man working in the office, in the studio, in the mill, on the farm or elsewhere in the battle for a living. High courage and a clear perception of what they are doing is necessary for the best work in all the arts and professions, as well as in the handicrafts and in trade.

This fluid, hitherto has been considered synonymous with all that is mild and peaceful. Advocates of preparedness have referred to "those milk-and-water pacifists." The "milk of human kindness" has no suggestion of powerful stimulation.

But science has discovered, among its many wonders, that the patient cow has put a punch in milk that necessitates the addition of no product of the still to make itself felt on the human system. It has discovered a new and a harmless "bracer."

BARLEYCORN'S INTOLERANCE

(Indiana Daily Times)

Our long-time undesirable citizen, John Barleycorn, and his side partner, Unbridled License, sometimes incorrectly styled "Personal Liberty," throw "convulsion" fits whenever citizens take action looking to the sane and honest cleansing of any unclean community. Not long ago several Indiana citizens bestowed on Indiana senators and representatives at Washington sundry sheaves of petitions asking the people's congressmen to vote and work in favor of a dry District of Columbia. It is the plan of anti-saloon forces to oust saloons from the nation's capital, thus, nationally, setting an example of cleanliness to other cities. It seems to us it would be highly desirable to make the nation's capital as nearly as possible a wholesome, model, exemplary municipality, not only in government but in morality and law enforcement. It seems to us it is entirely natural for citizens of the United States to take pride in their capital and to take pride also in any movement that seeks to clean up the well-being of our nation's capital. In discussing petitions sent by Indiana folk to Senator Kern, touching the subject of a dry District of Columbia, roundly abuses the citizens signing the petitions, derides their interest in their country's seat of government and insists they are "bushy-bodies," and "hypocritical gentry." How does the Times know any "hypocritical gentry" signed the petitions? If to take an interest in the well-being of our nation's capital city is to be a "bushy-body," then all hail the bushy-bodies. We need more of them.

Flood Prevention

Flood prevention is absolutely necessary, but unless assistance can be obtained from the general Government the entire cost of it will fall upon the local taxpayers.

In order to prevent this, our Representative in Congress, Cyrus Cline, has introduced a bill calling for an appropriation of $30,000.00 for the dredging and cleaning of the Maumee River. Congress looks with favor upon this matter and has appointed Mr. Cline a member of the Flood Prevention Committee.

In order to assist him in the carrying out of the work contemplated, Mr. Cline should have the solid support of his district back of him. Should he receive this support he feels assured that he will be able to bring the matter to a successful termination and save the voters and taxpayers of his district a great many thousands of dollars.

This is a matter every voter should consider carefully, and if he desires flood prevention with Government assistance he should help in every way possible.

ONE HUNDRED YOUNG MEN ENJOY BANQUET

Agogas Hosts to Adroits at Meeting at First Baptist Church.

The Adroit Bible class of the Third Presbyterian church enjoyed a banquet at the First Baptist church Friday evening at the expense of the Agogas, a similar organization of the latter church. But nevertheless the enjoyment was not all with the Adroits for the Agogas were just as full of mirth and laughter as the members of the other class, during the course of the banquet.

The banquet was given as a result of an attendance contest which was waged between the two organizations several months ago. However, as was brought out in several of the addresses given the real reason for waging a contest was not the mere idea of getting something to eat in this manner, but for the purpose of getting more men interested in Bible class work.

The menu was headed "An Unusual Banquet," and such it proved to be. The first course was named "Spissierintum Kaktale," which proved to be a glass of hydrogen-dioxide or in other words plain water. Immediately after this course the progress of the evening's fun was supplemented by the appearance of "Rastus" impersonated by William Glenn Trevey, the entertainer for the Agogas. From that time on jokes and wit flowed freely.

After a wait of ten or fifteen minutes which time was bridged by no one present, a real-for-sure banquet of three courses was served. The Adroit class, an organization of young ladies of the church, were the caterers.

The speakers and the subjects on the program were "The Agogas Spirit," by Adolph Wecker; "Personality," Owen Edwards; "Our Motto," Earl Paxton; "Lovers of Men," G. Howard Downer; "Qualities That Win," Rev. E. Montgomery; "Petrifying," Rev. C. H. Snashall. Several musical selections interspersed the addresses.

Some Characters in "The Woman Who Did"--D. A. R. Play to Be Presented Tuesday Evening

Friday afternoon the cast for the D. A. R. play, "The Woman Who Did," held their dress rehearsal at the Shrine temple, and everything is running smoothly for the presentation Tuesday evening. In the accompanying photograph, some of the characters are seen as they posed for the Sentinel camera. In the group are, from left to right, Miss Stella Hunter, Mrs. P. B. Bond, Mrs. H. G. Granger, Miss Helen O'Rourke, Miss Edith Hughes, Mrs. Austin Stultz, Miss Ola Marks, Mrs. Gertrude Greene Young, Mrs. George Bailhe, Mrs. Frank Bohn, Mrs. Virginia Carey, Miss Phyllis Randall, Miss Lavinia Sperry and Mrs. James E. Elliot. Other chapters are greatly interested in the play, and several have sent requests to the committee in charge to be allowed to take the play to other cities.

The closing social affairs to be given in honor of Miss Constance Keplinger and her fiancé, Thomas Payson Ewing, will be during the early part of the coming week. Miss Keplinger's aunt and sister, Mrs. Charles T. Pigeon, of this city, and Mrs. W. H. Kelly, of Cleveland, are to give a luncheon for the bridal party at the Anthony hotel on Tuesday. A farewell dinner will be given for Mr. Ewing by Kenneth McDonald.

Miss Ruth Evans of Old Fort Place, gave an extremely pretty Washington party this afternoon as a compliment to Miss Keplinger. Auction bridge was the entertainment but the guests were loath to begin the game so charming were the details of the red, white and blue scheme. The hostess had carried out even in the supper and favors. The assisting young girls who passed the tallies and helped serve the tempting refreshments wore bouquets of red and white roses with flags in the center of them and at the supper hour ferneries of roses with tiny silk flags peeping from the top of each, lent their loveliness to the scene. The assisting young girls were Elisea Fox, Louise Tyger and Margaret Evans. There were nine tables of players with Mrs. W. H. Kelly, of Cleveland, the only one from away.

Over thirty ladies enjoyed the bridge party for which Mrs. Cornel Morganthaler was hostess on Friday afternoon. This was the third one of a series of parties that Mrs. Morganthaler is giving but her next affair is to be a sewing party. Each of the parties has been characterized by an especially happy time, the guests really caring less for the card playing than for the visiting. While Mrs. Morganthaler's gift in the culinary line received new praise at each gathering of her friends.

Many beautiful ideas in pink were carried out in the plans made by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Fox last evening when they entertained the men and women to take part in the bridal party of Miss Constance Keplinger and Mr. Thomas Payson Ewing, next Wednesday evening at Plymouth church. While bridge was the amusement, there was much agreeable chaffing and fun during the supper hour, while the charming arrangement of pink hooded candles, pink roses, pink baskets and favors and clever place cards were equally enjoyed by the guests. Mrs. W. H. Kelly, of Cleveland, was an out-of-town guest.

The Country club dance at the Anthony hotel next Monday evening is to be the last dancing affair before Lent and society is to turn out so generally

Mrs. O. S. LaRue, of Convoys, Ohio, was a visiting guest.

Miss Marie Didier, of East Lewis street, announced her engagement to Clarence Krick, of Paulding, Ohio, at a beautiful party that she gave at her home on Friday evening. Pink and white roses were used to decorate the supper table and written on tiny hearts there is to be a dinner dance at the Anthony hotel for which the hostesses will be Misses Josephine Hayes, Esther Leonard and Muriel Larimore. Among the affairs of this week was Miss Frances McGuire's card party where dainty favors in red and white were remarkably pretty. The center of the table contained a wicker basket filled with red and white roses with a big red satin ribbon bow on the handle while at Miss Breen's place was a bouquet of a single white lily with red, red-ends clustered around it and tied with red ribbon. At this party Miss Breen received a shower of champagne as a gift.

Mrs. W. G. Zahrt, of Hoagland avenue, entertained the kindergarten class of the Hoagland school on Friday morning in honor of the birthday anniversary of her son, Welter, who was six years of age. The children were invited to the attic, where their teacher, Miss Lucile House, helped them play and sing. After a while the children were told to go down to the dining room and there they found more pretty things, some of them good to eat and some waiting to be taken home. There were either a fish or a duck water toy to be taken home, too, so no one went home without his hands full, besides having had the nicest kind of a good time.

Miss June Harrod of Washington boulevard east, was the house hostess for a meeting on Friday evening of the Alpha Omega club and their invited guests. It was as jolly a girls' party as could be gathered anywhere and aside from a hunt for hidden red hatchets for which a prize was given, other games were played and refreshments were served. SECOND IN UNIQUE SERIES OF SERMONS

"Those who had the pleasure at the First Presbyterian church last Sunday evening of listening to Rev. C. C. Travis, of Wayne Street Methodist church, as he spoke of the beliefs and spirit of the church of which he is minister," said H. B. Master, pastor of the First church, today are looking forward with immense interest to the rest of the series of addresses on the Creeds of the churches. It certainly is an unusual opportunity which is offered to the people of Fort Wayne who are interested in these matters; the opportunity to hear representatives of all the larger churches give an authoritative statement of the creeds or beliefs of those churches. And the whole series has been planned with the idea that to know what another man believes is to go a long way toward dispelling prejudice, and bigotry.

"It is with much pleasure that many are looking forward to the second in this series of addresses, the address which will be delivered next Sunday evening at the First Presbyterian church by the Rev. M. C. Tunison, the brilliant young pastor of the South Side Baptist church, who is to speak on "What the Baptist Church Believes."

It was by far the largest republican meeting Kendallville ever has seen and there was no end of enthusiasm. The banquet was served by the Pythian Sisters and those who could not participate in it were accommodated at the two hotels. The speaking was held in the opera house, which was crowded to overflowing. As a matter of fact the aisles became so crowded and the smoke so intense that Fire Chief Kime had to take a hand. All aisles were ordered cleared and he put a stop to the smoking.

Each of the congressional candidates spoke. Charles R. Lane was given a most enthusiastic ovation when he came to speak. Boosters for Robert R. Hanna were very much in evidence and they did not hesitate to make their presence known. A large delegation went from this city in Mr. Hanna's interest. Professor L. W. Fairfield and his friends were also there. The professor made a short address.

The other speakers were: D. A. Meyers, candidate for judge of the supreme court; D. N. Hines, Horace Ellis, Frank Highway and H. C. Brown, candidates for superintendent of public instruction; Harry Brown, candidate for state treasurer; J. Makepeace, candidate for state auditor; Julius Freedman, candidate for lieutenant governor; E. J. Robinson, who represented James P. Goodrich, candidate for governor; Edgar Blessing, who represented Warren T. McCray, also candidate for governor, and Archibald Hall, of Indianapolis.

REFUGEES WITHOUT FOOD OR SHELTER

New Orleans, La., Feb. 19.—Increased apprehension was felt today for the 2,000 or more persons marooned around Newellton, without food and with but scant shelter. Most of them are negro plantation laborers unable to reach safety when the Mississippi river broke through the levee at the Buckridge plantation. The levee is nearly 700 feet wide. The water is pouring through the crevasse four miles an hour. A quarter semi-circle was a radius of 25 miles is flooded from six to fifteen feet while another 25 miles is covered with water from a few inches to one and two feet deep. The flood will not reach its climax for at least a week authorities predict. Concordia parish, in northeast Louisiana, is almost entirely covered with water.

How to Quickly Stop Indigestion

Here's a Simple Recipe That Can Be Mixed at Home.

It's surprising how many really wonderful things there are for the relief of human ills which for some reason only a few people ever seem to hear of. Here's something that is said to be the best thing in the world for indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, acidity, stomach gases, belching, bloating, distress after meals, heart palpitation, nervousness and other signs of a disordered stomach and which perhaps not one person in ten, out of doctors and druggists, ever heard of.

Get at any good drug store two ounces, or about 50 cents worth of ordinary liquid marsh, (concentrated) and an empty eight ounce bottle. Take these home, pour the concentrated marsh into the bottle and add pure water enough to fill it. Take a teaspoonful before each meal and watch the result. If it fails to do you more good than anything you ever tried, you'll be a rare exception for those who know it says its effects are simply astonishing.

When one can so easily obtain and prepare such a remedy at home and only at 50 cents, it certainly seems a waste of money to experiment with uncertain and expensive medicines that cost twice as much and do no good.

Being in liquid form it has the advantage over the many medicines in pill or tablet form. The rapidity with which it reaches the affected parts and brings relief to the sufferer is the best proof that it is readily assimilated by the stomach.

Why Should Fort Wayne Mark Harmar Ford Site?

Question is Often Asked Since D. A. R. Began Its Effort, and B. J. Griswold in Interview Offers Some Local History in Answer.

Why should Fort Wayne mark the scene of Harmar's defeat? The question is often asked since Mary Henoch, chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, inaugurated its plans to place a suitable tablet or monument or marker at the historic spot in almost the very center of Fort Wayne, where the sanguinary battle was fought more than one hundred years ago. A glimpse backward into Fort Wayne history supplies a completely satisfactory answer to the query.

"A clear conception of the significance of the battle which has come to be known in history as 'Harmar's Defeat,' can be gained only through a study of conditions on the site of Fort Wayne preceding the conflict," says B. J. Griswold, who has devoted much time to a study of the subject.

"The Revolution had closed, but the British refused to give up their rich fur trading grounds, of which the site of Fort Wayne was the center. Two large, thriving French towns occupied the lands at the confluence of the St. Mary's and St. Joseph rivers at the time, one in Lakeside and the other in Spy Run, and here were brought by the savages scores of victims of their raids, Americans, who were oftentimes tied to the stake and burned to death, after which the cannibalistic feasts of the Indians lasted for several days at a time. Up the St. Joseph were several villages of the savages, while a strong town of the Shawnees, called Chillicothe, occupied both banks of the Maumee about two miles down the stream from the confluence of the St. Joseph and the St. Mary's. Other villages occupied the high banks of the St. Mary's near the old poor farm.

"At the time of General Harmar's advance upon the Indians, acting under the orders of Washington, there were living on or near the site of Fort Wayne the bloodthirsty Girty, John Kinzie, several families of the LaSallees and perhaps fifty other families of the French, besides Chiefs Little Turtle, LeGris, Pecanee, The Snake, Blue Bird, The Soldier, and others. All of these were bitter British partisans—the French who wanted their fur trade protected so the Indians could give their attention to trapping instead of fighting, and the Indians because they had been led to believe that Washington was trying to steal their lands. Honestly, we have no conception of the horrors which were the every-day life of these people. I could give you the names of many of these poor victims whose lives were destroyed here or in the raids upon the settlements which were sent out from here, but it is sufficiently horrendous to picture the scalp dances of these savages, as described to us by eye-witnesses, as they culled over the sufferings of their innocent victims.

"Well, it was this sort of thing that Washington couldn't stand for. So he directed Governor St. Clair to send General Josiah Harmar, commander-in-chief of the army of the United States, to proceed to the site of Fort Wayne and give battle to the savages and their white allies.

"The story in detail would require too much of your time and the space, so I'll cut it short. It isn't a pleasant story, anyway—but it's ours. The advance portion of the troops, which had come out from Cincinnati, October 4, 1790, reached the site of Fort Wayne before the main army. The inhabitants had fled in disorder, after burning all of the houses in the Lakeside village. A detachment under Colonel John Hardin, which was trying to locate the encampment of the scattered Indians, was led into a trap several miles north near the present Heller's Corners, and there occurred one of the bloodiest ambushes in American history. Two of the savages escaped, one by hiding behind a log, and another by dashing into a swamp, where he stood in the freezing cold water up to his chin for several hours within a few yards of the scene of the savage celebration.

"The army was in a very deplorable condition, anyway—nearly all of the militia were substitutes and utterly untrained—and this first set-back caused many more to desert and make their way back through the forests to the Ohio river. Harmar, himself, who was waiting in the present Lakeside, immediately removed his troops down the river.

Maumee to the Chillicothe village, and remained but a few hours when he decided to give up the attempt and take his riffler followers back to Cincinnati (Fort Washington). The army moved slowly to a point about seven miles southwest of the site of Fort Wayne—having first destroyed 158 buildings which the French and Indians had left standing—and there went into camp for the night. Hardin, stung to desperation by the defeat at Heller's Corners, called on Harmar and requested that the general allow him to return to the villages and give the savages a final whipping and thus accomplish the object of the campaign. This, the general reluctantly decided to do. Six hundred picked men were chosen, the regulars under Major Wyllys and the militia under Major Hall, McMullen and Fontaine. The idea was to reach the high ground near the present East Washington street and Harmar street about daylight, surround the villages before being discovered, and catch the savages in Lakeside in a deadly cross-fire. The plan might have worked out splendidly for two things: First, the army arrived too late—it was broad daylight. Second, one man disobeyed orders and the whole plan went wrong.

"Major Wyllys arranged the plan. It was decided that Major Hall, bringing his troops westward through the present center of the city of Fort Wayne, should cross the St. Mary's at the old way to the present Wells street bridge, and then strike his men in the woods near Spy Run creek. Hall was to have stayed there until he heard the sound of battle to the southward and then close in on the savages from the west. All of the other troops were to have followed together and circled about the south, the east, and finally the north, and thus close in on the savages.

"The Indians, as expected, had returned to their ruined villages, and were so busy digging up buried treasure that they failed utterly to discover the presence of the troops. Suddenly, Hall's men, disobeying orders, opened fire on a lone savage. Immediately the Indians scattered in all directions to ascertain the cause of the alarm. Wyllys, Lafontaine and McMullen, unprepared to advance, were forced into the battle sooner than the plan contemplated. The regulars, under Wyllys, attempted to cross the Maumee into Lakeside, and, being deserted by McMullen and Fontaine, who chased off to the eastward, almost the entire command was shot down in the river. Little Turtle's braves administered this terrible baptism of fire and bullets. In the meantime, Fontaine and McMullen headed off the savages and drove them to the westward, toward the St. Joseph above Tennessee avenue, where the red men attempted to escape into the present Spy Run but were met by Hall's troops. The fighting here was fierce—Fontaine and many others lost their lives here—but the savages were terribly torn up, and when the whites recovered their senses they found themselves practically alone upon the field of the struggle.

"From this time, there was a rapid gathering together of the wounded and a retreat to Harmar's camp, seven miles away. Hardin begged the general to allow him to return with fresh troops, but Harmar declined, and the weary march to Fort Washington was taken up.

"As soon as the whites were gone—183 of them lay dead on the battlefield of Lakeside, or were missing from the ranks for other reasons—the Indians assembled and proceeded to Detroit, where their parades and dances, while exhibiting the scalps of their victims, occupied several days.

"And then came St. Clair and Wayne—but that is another story."

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Liberal receipts northwest had a bearish effect today on wheat. Opening prices, which ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to 1/4c higher, with May at $1.25 to $1.30, and July at $1.24 to $1.24, were followed by a decline all around.

The close was heavy, 1 1/4c to 2 1/4c net lower, with May at $1.27@1.27, and July at $1.22@1.22.

Corn eased off with wheat. After opening 1/4c lower the market underwent a moderate sag.

The close was weak, with a loss of 1 1/2c net.

Oats had no independent action.

Strength developed in provisions on account of a speculative demand for lard.

INDOOR FIELD MEET AT CONCORDIA NEXT WEEK

Concordia and Turners to Stage Indoor Field and Track Meet

The Concordia college-Turner indoor field meet will be one of the athletic events of the coming week, and will be staged Friday night at the college gym. The Concordia boys have been working hard for the meet and the gym has been the scene of daily workouts.

The mile run, the quarter mile, the dashes and a lot of field events will be included in the program. J. J. Ritter, who has been so successful as a basketball referee this winter, will have charge of the track and field.

CONCORDIA WINS FROM DEFIANCE

Takes Great Go from the Ohioans at College Gym.

Concordia college had easy picking last night against the Defiance college five, and the score was 55 and 15. Metzendorf was out of the game, and Luerssen dropped back to a guard position, Wacker taking center. The game was pretty and full of pep and spirit from the first whistle. The Concordia seconds won the preliminary from the Specials. Lineups and scores:

Concordia, 55—Schiff, L. F.; Henrichs, Gremel, R. F.; Wacker, C.; Luerssen, L. G.; Dorn, R. G.
Defiance, 15—Pohlman, L. F.; Watterson, R. F.; Snider, C.; Sutter, L. G.; Rakestraw, R. G.

CHICAGOANS NOW BOSS IN DIANS.

With the sale of the Cleveland American league club to a syndicate of Chicago and Cleveland men, the last problem incidental to the start of the spring training has been solved.

James C. Dunn, contractor of Chicago, who bought the controlling interest in the $500,000 deal, is to be president. He has interested his business associate, Patrick S. McCarthy, in the venture.

Dunn originally hailed from Marshalltown, Iowa, birthplace of Cap Anson, and in 1904 was president of the Marshalltown club in the Iowa-Illinois league.

YANKEE ICE STAR TO INVADENORWAY.

Bobby McLean, speed king of American skaters, will invade Norway to demand a meeting with Oscar Mathieson, present world's ice champion. The latter has twice refused to cross the briny and defend his laurels against the Chicagoan. McLean was separated from his crown as amateur international topline more than a year ago after the amateur athletic union caught him appearing in a cafe twice daily as part of the entertain-

NOTRE DAME MEETS ILLINOIS TODAY

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 19.—Followers of track athletics here expect to witness some exciting sprinting matches today when Bergman and Hardy, of Notre Dame, clash with Kohman, Gildner and Brandt, of Illinois, in their indoor dual meet here. Notre Dame rooters hope Waage will provide a battle in the mile for Mike Mason and already claim first place in the shotput through the prowess of Charles Bachman. In tryouts for the quarter at Champagne recently the Illinois watches caught the time as 54.4 when O'Mera, Henderson, Pendarvis and Stirtou went through their races while Voelkers is credited with a .52 and Welch, his teammate on the Notre Dame squad, has done the distance in 52.4-5.

Training no longer is drudgery for Frank Moran.

Instead of toiling overtime in a stuffy gym, infested by cigarette smoking idlers gathered to watch him slam sparring partners, clout the bag, skip rope or juggle medicine balls, the red-thatched challenger for Willard's crown finds genuine pleasure in open air methods considerably different from those usually associated with a pugilist's program of conditioning.

Far from the maddening throng, up on the banks of Saranac lake, New York, the Pittsburgher may be seen every day skating or shoveling snow.

one of the essential points in making ready for a bruising fist engagement and every fighter specializes at road work. Here he is limited to a jog, a walk and another jog, the distance usually being six or eight miles, with the work scheduled mornings. Gymnasium endeavors keep the belligerent person busy in the afternoons.

With the postponement of hostilities Moran decided to remain at Saranac two weeks longer and adhere strictly to the skating, snow shoveling and wood chopping. This combination of labor and pleasure brings into play every muscle in the fighter's makeup. After ten miles of speed skating in the morning Moran rests his breathing apparatus while the rubber massages the kinks out of Frank's underpinning. Luncheon over Moran lolls about his quarters an hour before going to the woodpile. There, armed with a regulation forester's ax, the red-head proceeds to make toothpicks out of giant trees. When the ax-wielding grind becomes monotonous Frank goes in for something else. Friendly wrestling matches with his trainers often enliven the program. As a fireman on one of the seagoing battleships years ago, Moran learned the fine points of shoveling. He hasn't forgotten how, either, and the way he clears paths for the neighbors at Saranac lake after a heavy snowfall is the talk of the town. Moran proposes to stick to the open air training until ten days before he is summoned to the ring. The last stretch of conditioning will be done in New York, where Moran is a great favorite by virtue of his two 3½-ton conquests of Jim Coffey, the Dublin giant.

LYCEUMS DEFEAT DANVILLE NORMALS

Visitors Stick Tight to Miller But Rest of Team Works Fast.

The Danville Normal five had a hunch that Miller was the man to watch, and they spent so much time watching him last night that the other members of St. Patrick's Lyceum team got away with a 47 and 15 win. The Normalites were not even near the running with the local boys. Vonderhaar played the floor beautifully last night.

The Lyceum boys realized last night what a game without Miller would mean, for hardly a moment of the play was without one Normal player or another holding Miller by the neck. The game was fast and a lot better exhibition of basketball than the last Lyceum fracas. Brown and Elie held their rear positions well throughout the milling, and several times broke through the battle lines with field goals. Lineups and scores:

Great City's Health Board to Start a Temperance Crusade.

New York, Feb. 15.—The city board of health has announced the inauguration of a temperance crusade. The board has requested clergymen to deliver temperance sermons Sunday, February 20, which will be called "Temperance Sabbath."

Meanwhile uniformed police officers of the health squad and sanitary inspectors will distribute, in saloons and clubs throughout the city, pamphlets setting forth the dangers of alcoholic indulgence.

Washington's birthday motion picture theaters will display films furnished by the board, portraying "The curse of drink and all its attendant evils."

February 23 is to be set aside as "Croton Water Day," after the Croton reservoir, from which part of this city's drinking water is obtained.

HAS AN AWFUL CASE ON HARRY

President Dick Gets Rosy in Describing Former Local Star.

E. W. Dickerson, president of the Central league, and sport writer on the Grand Rapids News, throws the following awful of peries at Harry Brant, local favorite:

"Taking all of his abilities into consideration the Grand Rapids club seems to have come into one of the greatest, if not the greatest infielders in the Central league in Harry Brant, who has been with the Fort Wayne club for the past two seasons. Besides being a sensational fielder, the former Fort Wayne player led the league in earned runs last season with 60 scored. Smyth of Fort Wayne, whose release was purchased by the Brooklyn National league club, finishing second with 57. Smyth led the league in runs scored as leadoff man for the Red-roaders and Brant was second with 80, although not occupying nearly so advantageous a position in the batting order as Smyth for scoring runs. Brant also was second in number of sacrifice hits made, making one less than Hobbs, of Dayton, who led with 39.

"To satisfy the fans after seeing such a clever young player as Steil on short for Grand Rapids the past three seasons, an exceptional player was needed and that is what Manager Essick landed in Brant. He has lined out for some other good men and expects to land one or two more players of Brant's caliber. There is little likelihood of Tommy Mees being back this year, and Scotty Alcock's return is problematical. Buster Keene may be figured on as a fixture on first base with Brant holding down one of the other infield positions.

"Manager Essick says he finds it far easier to sign good men this year than in years past and that he has heard from around the circuit that other managers are having the same experiences until he is convinced that the Central league's class of play this year will be considerable faster than ever before. It means that the lean years in which league after league went up in the air left so many good players on the market that the leagues continuing in existence profit greatly thereby—illustrating the adage, 'one man's loss is another's gain.'"

PHYSICAL TRAINING UNDER COMPLETE INSTRUCTION FEATURE OF Y. W. C. A. WORK

In conjunction with the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the Young Women's Christian association, the various branches of the work undertaken and developed by this remarkable body are being brought under the microscopic lens of public opinion, and thoroughly investigated. And the result is that the public looks into each department carefully, stamps it "inspected and passed," and goes on to the next.

But in the matter of physical training and athletics the outside public has had little idea of the work of the association. In this city the physical department is developed to a wonderful degree of efficiency, and now stands in the van in the country-wide movement of athletic training for girls.

The big gymnasium at the Young Women's Christian association in this city will be found crowded with girls nearly any evening you go into it, and in the afternoon classes in little girls and school children have their classes. Folk dancing and basketball struggle for supremacy in the gym, and the

"Y. W. girls" this winter have followed the fad to skates. Summer finds the association with full equipped tennis courts and a summer camp at a nearby lake where nautical sports may be enjoyed.

Miss Ruth E. Melin, the physical director, has been very successful in her work with the girls, and the results obtained even in the past year have showed the necessity of the gymnasium and physical training as an integral part of the association work.

In the accompanying pictures the various classes are seen in action.

In the upper left hand corner stands the smallest member of the gym classes, a wee mite of a girl who goes through the work with as much pep and enthusiasm as any of the older girls. Near her, and swinging to the rings, another member of the Saturday morning class was flashed in action. Miss Melin stands in the center of the group. In the upper right hand corner a basketball team was snapped at practice, and below at the left are the extension department girls, nearly thirty of them in this class, playing on the basketball floor. In the lower right a class of girls is seen in a game that combines dancing and athletics, is fun and helps to develop the body.

The following bulletin, issued by the central office, gives an idea of the work that is being done in other cities as well as Fort Wayne:

The girl who can paddle a canoe, win a tennis match, bowl, skate on ice or lumber, and one other physical "stunts" works harder, plays fairer and is more help to her family, her friends, her employer and her community than her sister who is not acquainted with any of the all-year-around activities or recreation and sport life.

To be responsible nationally for promoting the right kind of physical education and recreation among girls is a big undertaking, yet that is the particular province of Dr. Anna L. Brown, secretary for Hygiene and Physical Education of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association. Dr. Brown believes that standards of efficiency for women should be based upon an understanding of how to conserve and develop physical powers.

The Young Women's Christian Association has been one of the most active agencies in popularizing physical education as the foundation of health and happiness in the lives of girls and women. There is now regular class work in more than 101 association gymnasiums, and the registration in 1914 showed an increase of 18,000. The statistics for 1915 have not yet been fully compiled but the increase for last year bids fair to be well over the mark for 1914.

Ten years ago the associations had no swimming pools. Today there are fifty-four in active operation. "Health and Safety" is the slogan that is fast making the swimming pool a rival of the gymnasium in the favor of young women everywhere.

Then there are the summer camps which are bringing girls the outdoor joys and privileges which their more fortunate brothers have had for several years. The military tactics, the "hikes," and the co-operative spirit engendered there are as essential to recreation, health and character-building during the summer months as are the games and athletics of the winter season.

Wide-spread attention has been focused on the need of emphasizing good posture as fundamental to health and a great aid in promoting cheerfulness of spirit, capacity for work and powers of endurance. The standards approved by the national board of the Young Women's Christian Association was the basis of the national posture contest for which prizes were awarded at the Pan American-Pacific International exposition.

Dr. Brown says that to conserve and develop physical powers the gymnasium and swimming pools of the Young Women's Christian Association throughout the country are being used to correct defects and deformities under medical supervision, to develop weak muscles and strengthen other organs, to develop and perfect co-ordination, to reinforce health and make casual ailments unpopular, to provide recreation and create happiness in the use of the body in athletics and games of prowess and skill.

All the activities whether in the nature of social or physical training are based upon practical hygiene, in dress, diet, care of the person, exercise and rest. The department hopes to be in a position soon to lay down tried and true types of physical training for women adapted to age, occupation and living conditions; and underlying these it hopes to develop a well defined code on the ethical use of physical powers and the responsibility of all women to give equal thought to their physical, intellectual and spiritual well-being and efficiency for only under such well-balanced conditions can they attain their best and be of the most service to those with whom they come in contact either personally or through any medium by which they are enabled to express themselves.

With a conviction of the ethical value of comradeship in recreation, plans are being discussed with the Young Men's Christian Association for co-operation in some of the recreation features.

Dr. Brown's work includes an extensive service in correspondence, lecturing before many groups other than association audiences, and recruiting from all over the country the best physical directors who can find to place in the local physical departments of the organization.

Prohibition Boosts Business in Pacific Northwest is Declaration From Seattle

BY JACK JUNGMEYER

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 19.—Prohibition is a boost to better business.

So the Pacific northwest believes after two months of dryness in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

The dire prophecies of the deposed wets have not materialized.

Instead of a business slump, times are unusually good.

Property formerly occupied by saloons has rented freely.

Collections, say merchants, are better than for a long time. One Seattle packing and provision firm sold more meat, eggs and supplies during the first 17 dry days in January than during the three months prior, when the city was wet.

Real estate has felt no ill effects, according to a canvass from several large Washington cities.

But the most marked response to the banishment of booze is shown in the police records of Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, Portland and other large centers. Big Decrease in Arrests

In Seattle there were but 26 arrests for drunkenness during January, as against a former average of 200 drunks a month. The total number of cases booked for all causes in January was almost two-thirds less than for an average month in the old days of the saloon.

Spokane and Tacoma show corresponding decreases in arrests and crime in favor of state-wide prohibition. "There has been a marked betterment of temper among the people during the past few weeks," said Police Judge Gordon, of Seattle. "There has been practically no fighting and very little petty crime since the first of the year. I

Seattle, Wash., soft-drink resorts formerly had never seen the inside of frequently the drinks were quaffed at the bar, with foot on the rail.

When intoxicating liquors were banished from Seattle saloons, women who a bar room began to come with their male escorts as regular patrons. Not in don't know whether to credit this to the harsh weather or the dry law. "The men tell me," he explained, "that they are now buying meat because they can't buy booze. It's not only a few such cases I've noticed, but it has happened hundreds of times within the past two months. These fellows from the waterfront no longer cash their checks in saloons and spend the money there."

That is the general verdict from merchants in the larger cities. Results Carefully Watched Prohibition leaders have been watching developments carefully. "The public voted the state dry on a theory," commented L. R. Horton, of the Washington Anti-Saloon league. "The only reason they'll keep it dry is fact. We want nothing but truth regarding the effects of prohibition. If it isn't a success in a business way, the people are going to vote wet again next election, as sure as fate."

Liquor men who converted saloons into soft drink emporiums claim to be "getting by nicely." While the receipts have decreased considerably, the net profits in many cases are just as big because high licenses must not now be paid.

An impartial census among business men of Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane and Portland gives a decisive verdict in favor of prohibition as a good business proposition, after two months of "drouth."

INSANE MAN HURTS SHERIFF

Brazil, Ind., Feb. 19.—William Garri-gus, the sheriff, was injured, in an encounter with Edward Miller, a resident of Brazil, who is insane.

Miller had taken his clothing from his body, had shredded two mattresses and had turned on a water faucet in his cell in the county jail when Sheriff Garri-gus was summoned. As he entered the cell to turn off the water, Miller struck him a heavy blow on the side of the head. The sheriff was stunned and Miller lunged at his throat. A "trustee" rushed to the sheriff's assistance and Miller was moved to a narrow cell downstairs. Everything was taken out except a small iron bed. Miller broke up the bed and hurled the pieces out between the bars, shattering two windows.

Miller was a rolling mill worker. He went insane after an operation for appendicitis some months ago, but did not become violent until last Sunday. The sheriff was not seriously hurt.

NINTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to young womanhood, Helen saves Storm, now a fireman, her father, and his friends Amos Rhinelander, financier, and Robert Seagruue, promoter, from a threatened collision. Safebreakers employed by Seagruue steal General Holmes' survey plans of the cut-off line for the Tidewater, fatally wounding the general and escape. Her father's estate badly involved by his death, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Helen recovers the survey plans from Seagruue, and though they are taken from her, finds an accidentally made proof of the survey blueprint. Storm is employed by Rhinelander. Spike, befriended by Helen, in his turn saves her and the right-of-way contracts when Seagruue kidnaps her. Helen and Storm win for Rhinelander a race against Seagruue for right-of-way.

A CLOSE CALL

Despite Seagruue's persistent opposition, Rhinelander secured the right of way to enable him to complete the Superstition cut-off, and unable to stop the Tidewater construction work, Seagruue resolved to try other methods to defeat his rival.

Helen Holmes was enjoying the taste of camp life that her trip to the front had brought. And after the excitement had died down attending the destruction of Cassidy's house, she found herself amused and interested in Cassidy himself, who was busy next morning trying to restore a much-battered stove to service near the wreck of his shack. Helen watched his dazed efforts until sympathy overcame her, and excusing herself, she walked over to where Cassidy was struggling to get a fire going.

Seagruue, who had been watching the scene from a distance, saw Helen join the old fellow and deemed it his opportunity to make tentative advances toward the collective enemy. Sauntering over, accordingly, he joined Helen at a moment in which she had sent Cassidy for water and was herself watching the fire starting in the stove.

Helen looked up in astonishment when she heard Seagruue's greeting. Indeed, she resented his intrusion so strongly that she refused all communication with him and for a time he spoke into deaf ears.

"You ought not to be too hard on me, Helen," he urged at length. "Any man will fight for his life against ruin. That's all I've done. Everything I have in the world is tied up in this Superstition cut-off. But more than once I said to myself, I would willingly sacrifice it all to regain your friendship."

He spoke slowly and looked so beaten and worried as he lingered in the penumbra of Helen's gaze that she began to denounce him indignantly for his villainous conduct.

He took her stinging reproaches without resentment. "I admit," he said, "my temper carries me too far, sometimes."

"Sometimes!" echoed Helen. "A hundred and fifty."

"When I do get angry," confessed Seagruue, "I lose my head. I stop at nothing. When it's all over, nobody is sorer for it than I am. I have acted shamefully. I know that. And what hurts the most is that it should have cost me your friendship and my uncle's."

While the talk thus began between the two was going on in this fashion, Storm, who had been busied with Rhinelander experimenting with some new jacks, noticed what Helen was doing; and that the man standing near her was none other than Seagruue. Scarcely able to believe his eyes, the young constructionist called to Rhinelander to look. The latter disengaged himself from his new machines long enough to see what Storm had seen and putting another man in charge of the work, he hurried off, followed by Storm, over to Cassidy's zone.

They arrived together just in time to find Seagruue putting wood on Helen's fire. He turned from his peaceful role to greet Rhinelander, quite casually, with a good morning; Helen, in good spirits, was stepping rapidly around preparing a meal. Rhinelander looked from one to the other in amazement, and striding forward, confronted Seagruue. "What does all this thing mean?" he demanded angrily. "What are you up to now, Seagruue?"

Seagruue met the wrathful greeting composedly. His answer was amiable and unforced. "We have been talking over old times, Uncle Amos," he indicated Helen by the slightest nod. "I've told Helen, what you well know, that everything I have in the world has been tied up in this fight. But I've also told her I would sacrifice every bit of it to regain your good will and hers. I'm sorry for the lengths I've gone to. It's been a mistake. It doesn't reflect any credit on me, I know that. But can't we forget it? Forget everything, here and now, and work together, you and I, for the future instead of trying to cut each other's throats? Why not combine our interests, uncle, and take a fresh start?"

But Rhinelander, gentle though he was in disposition and forbearing to a degree that surprised his friends, was yet too old in the ways of the world to put his trust in assurances without deeds to back them. He regarded Seagruue firmly. "This fight," he said briefly, "was not one of our choosing, Seagruue. You forced us into it," he reminded his nephew. "We cannot compromise now when sure of success."

Seagruue, whether hopeless, or dogged in his attitude, took the rebuke hard. He did not resent it but he looked down and out. So much so that Helen felt sorry. She even made occasion, as he stood gloomily watching her, to go over to him and express her regret that Rhinelander did not feel, as she did, that it might be better for everybody to try to be friends once more.

Storm, who had stood apart and was churning inside at the situation, now intervened: "Come over to camp, Helen. That man doesn't mean a syllable of what he says. You're wasting time listening to him. Come along."

She resented the positive way in which the words were spoken. Her manner when she answered revealed some of her impatience: "I'll come," she said, with a suggestion of coyness, "just as soon as I get through here."

Rhinelander detected her resentment. He knew better than anyone in the world that the spirited girl could not be driven and could not even be coaxed too far. He beckoned to Storm. "Let's go," he suggested in an undertone.

Storm seemed against the proposal. Rhinelander quietly urged it. "You can't do any good," he explained in a low tone. "I know what's best. Come with me."

Storm, angry as a schoolboy, at what he deemed the folly of giving the slightest countenance to Seagruue, followed his friend reluctantly. But having averred she would not go, Helen, conscious herself now of the strain of the situation, turned to Seagruue and told him she must be leaving. He extended his hand. "I'm sorry the trouble has gone so far," she said hurriedly, as she shook hands with him to show she bore no irremovable ill will. "But I guess there's no help for the situation at present."

Seagruue watched her follow Rhinelander and Storm, who waited for her on the edge of the camp. The three went on together towards Rhinelander's outfit car still discussing the troublesome subject. Seagruue, however, realized he must do something, if not in one way in another, and he left Cassidy's to send for a local attorney who had already acted for him in right-of-way matters.

To him, when he arrived, Seagruue explained his present predicament for an outlet. "What I must know is," he said, "whether the city of Las Vegas will grant our people a right of way along here through city property?"

The attorney shook his head. "I don't think that can ever be put over."

Seagruue was cold. "You've got to do it. There's no other way for us to get through. If you hold us up on it, we shall be compelled to abandon our line here."

With this cannon cracker exploding under him, the attorney promised he would see what could be done. "But I want you along with me," he declared, "to lay the case before the city authorities yourself."

The two started for town together. In Seagruue's camp, Spike, an hour later, was seated in front of a tent cleaning a lamp when Seagruue returned still in company with the attorney. Their sounding out of the city fathers had been unsuccessful and Seagruue handed his foreman a notice to post on the bulletin board:

WORK WILL BE SUSPENDED ON THE COAST

AND COLORADO CUT-OFF UNTIL LAS VEGAS

GRANTS A RIGHT OF WAY TO ALLOW THIS

MINES.

Spike, sauntering over, read the notice. Seagruue's eye fell on him at that moment and a recollection of what he termed Spike's treachery came to his mind. He spoke to the convict roughly. "I suppose you know that in helping Rhinelander get those contracts, you caused this trouble, Spike."

Spike glanced at him with an angry shake of the head. "Rhinelander didn't need me to get the contracts. Helen Holmes is the one that beat you, Seagruue."

The remark did not help to soothe Seagruue's irritation. He kept after Spike all the harder. "If you cross me again," he said, threateningly, "I'll hand you over to some high voltage, my friend."

The wrangle was going from bad to worse when Bill came in with Seagruue's coat. The latter, putting it on, took his hat, directed Lug to post the bulletin, beckoned to the attorney and accompanied by him and Bill, started for the station to catch the main line local, then due. When the train pulled in Seagruue and the attorney boarded it. Bill started back for camp.

Spike, left alone, went into his tent. He sat some moments thinking. Then he rose and from a corner got out the suit of clothes, carefully put away, that Helen had bought for him in Las Vegas. The least he could do, he felt, was to take this over to Rhinelander's camp and return it to her with such lame explanation as he could invent to cover the occasion.

He found Helen alone. She regarded him strangely as he approached. Spike would rather have faced a sheriff than to face her on such an errand. He shuffled toward her in a daze and her silence did not help to allay his embarrassment. "I know you bought the clothes for me," he muttered, "because I helped you get the contracts. I hated to turn back the way I did to Seagruue's camp. I hate to bring these back to you. But the way I'm fixed I can't double-cross Seagruue."

Helen saw he was greatly humiliated. And she was mystified a little by his words. "Spike," she said, kindly, "the clothes are nothing. But what have I done to you that you should treat me in the way you did?"

He labored, in continued confusion to explain. He tried to tell her Seagruue had done many things for him; he told her he owed Seagruue a lot of money and he had no hope of ever paying him back except by work, and that he didn't feel he ought to break away now.

Storm and Rhinelander came up at that moment. They greeted Spike. He avoided their eyes as much as possible and returned their greeting in a shame-faced way. Helen answered the surprise that overspread the faces of Storm and Rhinelander. "It's no wonder he's ashamed to speak to you," she said severely. "You would hardly believe it, I know; but the fact is he has turned over to Seagruue again."

The two men looked at Spike with undisguised contempt. Their attitude made him desperate. "Oh, I know what you think of me," he said with a reckless swing of his head. "I can't help it. I can't explain. It would take me from now till the middle of next week, if I tried—and then you'd think less of me than you do now. Never be kind to me again. It's hopeless for me—but I can't help it."

The three watched him shuffle away. Rhinelander shook his head. "There's a mystery somewhere in it. I can't make it out. Some day we'll know."

At Seagruue's camp, Bill and the paymaster were handing checks out to the men. The latter stood about the car in discontented groups and discussed over their situation in being thrown so suddenly out of work. The paymaster handed Bill a check. It was for Spike. Bill yelled his name. A man hard by pointed to Rhinelander's camp. "There's Spike," said the man, "over there at Rhinelander's."

Bill's sharp eyes followed the gesture. Spike at that moment was just leaving Rhinelander, Helen and Storm. Bill, a knave of more than ordinary discernment and one who hated Spike for his share in the fight at Las Vegas, saw in the incident his chance to get even. He put the check aside and a moment later when Spike appeared at the pay car, Bill was ready. Descending the car steps, Bill called to Spike as the latter came forward. Bill advanced to meet him. "What do you mean, Spike," demanded Bill in loud and aggressive tones, pitched so that everybody might hear, "by running over to Rhinelander's camp all the time? What are you up to now, Spike?"

Spike was in the worst possible mood to be badgered by anybody. With a hot expletive he bade Bill mind his own business and offered gratuitously to break his head.

Bill turned to the men with a shout: "This is the duck," he cried, "that helped Rhinelander steal our right of way, boys. He's the guy that's thrown us all out of work. What do you know about that?"

Spike, in most opprobrious language, flatly gave Bill the lie. The men, most of whom were spoiling for a row, closed in to hear and devour the heated argument that the two enemies engaged in. Accusations and denials fell thick and fast; abuse followed assertions, hard words and a deep-seated enmity raised the tempers of both men and Bill, without further warning, swung and sent Spike with a terrific left-hander to the ground.

Spike was no sooner down than up. He came back at Bill, goaded to fury by the unprovoked attack. Men crowded up. Their cries and shouts had already attracted the attention of Storm and Helen who stood with Rhinelander still discussing Spike. Storm was the first to perceive what was going on in Seagruue's camp.

"They're after Spike," he exclaimed. "Look! Down he goes—that bull-necked Bill hit him. He's up again. The whole bunch are jumping him. They'll kill that fellow. Well," he mused, as the clamor grew and Spike, fighting desperately to keep from being surrounded, went down again. "I suppose he's no great loss."

"But," cried Helen, "we can't see a man murdered before our eyes. I won't stand it. I'll go help him myself if nobody else will."

Undismayed by the undertaking, Helen, followed by Rhinelander trying to stop her, hurried toward Seagruue's camp. Storm, with more forethought, hastily got together such of his men as were within hearing and yelling in his turn to Helen to wait, started after her and Rhinelander. Fast as the men ran none could overtake her flying feet. She dashed into the thick of the fight ahead of everybody and seizing Spike, pushed back his assailants.

They stopped an instant from sheer amazement at seeing a lovely girl, seemingly fallen from the sky, in the middle of the hot scrimmage.

Rhinelander rushed to her side. "Hands off," he cried, putting Spike behind him. "Shame! Twenty to one! Where's your manhood?"

Without pausing to consider this irrelevant question, the mob started in to hammer Spike and Rhinelander both. It was then that George Storm's preparedness was vindicated. He fought his way into the ring followed by a dozen huskies who beat back Seagruue's men till Storm was enabled to pull Spike away—his men holding the line back of him.

But this diversion was good only for a moment and Storm—not unused to riots and fighting—knew better than his companions, the necessity of further instant dispositions.

Helen had kept close to her friends. "We've got to get him out of here quick," exclaimed Storm to her. "They'll tear him limb from limb if they get him again. Helen," he cried, "Back the outfit cars down the cut-off for us, will you, as quick as the Lord will let you? We'll hustle him inside one."

Helen ran. Rhinelander and Storm, picking up Spike, now almost unconscious, dragged him, fast as they could, from the scene, their men covering their retreat and giving ground only as they were forced to by sheer weight of numbers. Fighting stubbornly step by step in this way, Storm and Rhinelander dragging their burden in front of the protesting line—which threatened every moment to give way under the fierce assaults—got Spike to the cut-off track. Helen had reached the engine cab and was ready to pull out the cars. Together the two men threw Spike bodily into the open door of the last car. Climbing aboard after Rhinelander, Storm signaled to Helen in the cab. She opened the throttle and just as Seagruue's angry men reached the car, Storm slammed the door shut and Helen moved the string hastily down the track.

The incident would have been closed, with the hind outfit car making rapidly towards safety, had not the wholly unexpected happened to upset Storm's plan. That very day Rhinelander's line-men had set in half a dozen telegraph poles and the anchor wire of one of these placed near the track, caught, as the second last car sped past, on the step. The pole swayed violently. For a moment Rhinelander's men, watching, hoped it might clear. But crashing suddenly forward, it fell between the last two cars, struck the coupling heavily and sprung the knuckle.

Helen, watching from the cab, saw what happened. She hastily applied the air and feeling they were now far enough away to be safe from the angry men, did not worry about the accident until she perceived as she brought the train to a stop that the outfit car, last in the string, had become detached from the train and was running away.

Inside this Rhinelander and Storm were working on Spike. He opened his eyes after a time and they told him he was safe, not suspecting themselves, that their car was now running wild and down a long grade, to the main line. Indeed, they felt so relieved at Spike's return to consciousness that several moments passed before signs of the accident recorded themselves to Storm's experienced ear. The car was running too far and too fast and springing to the door he pulled it open to see what Helen was doing in the cab. A glance told him the story. "We're running away," he cried to Rhinelander, who joined him. Storm sprang for the side ladder.

Helen was alive to the new danger to her friends. But how to help them taxed, for an instant, her ingenuity. To chase them with the engine, as they were headed for the main line, might end in a more serious disaster than now seemed imminent. The main line passenger train was almost due at Baird and the thought of this fact was first in Helen's mind. Near where she stood was Seagruue's motor car, the one her abductors had used only a few days before. She ran to this and springing into the seat, turned over the engine, accelerated as fast as she dare, and was off in pursuit of the runaway.

She was sure she must pass Arden station before she possibly could catch the wild car and pulling the cushion from the seat beside her, scribbled hastily across it with a piece of chalk:

RUNAWAY CAR FROM CUT-OFF ON MAIN LINE. STOP PASSENGER AT BAIRD.

With this in her hands as she tore past Arden station, she rose to her feet, balanced herself with an effort and flung the cushion with all the force she could summon through the operator's window.

On the deck of the runaway car Storm had seized the brake.

He might have saved his companions and himself even then, had not the chain, weakened by rust, snapped under the tremendous strain put on it.

The deck became impossible and to avoid being shot off it, Storm climbed down the swaying ladder again into the car.

At Arden station the astonished operator had just time to dodge Helen's flying motor car cushion as it smashed through the window. It landed on the floor. The chalk scrawl on the top caught his eye.

In the dispatchers' office the chief was sitting at his desk and a dispatcher was on his trick at the instrument. He answered Arden instantly, took the startling message, walked hurriedly over to the chief and handed it to him:

H. C. W. Runaway car from cut-off on main line. Stop passenger at Baird.—L.

The dispatcher sprang to his train sheets and back with them to the chief who dictated the only possible answer:

It was too late to avoid a collision. They could only await the issue.

With Arden station left far behind, Helen, making the utmost possible speed in Seagruue's machine, scanned the track ahead for a glimpse of the wild car. Resolved at any cost to overtake it, she was running the machine on the right of way and on the track itself in her determined effort. When she caught sight of the runaway, no one was to be seen upon it, but she knew Rhinelander and Storm were inside and as she began to overhaul the chase, she sounded her horn insistently. The two men, leaving Spike, who in the face of the common danger had pulled himself partly together, looked out of the side door. To their amazement they saw at their heels Helen bumping violently along in Seagruue's machine. She signaled them excitedly. She tried to shout to them but could not make a word heard above the deafening noises. Rhinelander and Storm did make out, however, that she wanted them to go to the top of the car and the two men climbed the side ladder again.

Helen, still close behind, scribbled a note, folded it hurriedly, took off a shoe, stuck the note inside and with careful aim, threw it up on top of the car. The men secured the shoe and read the note:

PASSENGER DUE—MUST DITCH CAR—JUMP.

Rhinelander and Storm looked at each other and looked down the line. The smoke of the passenger train rose on the horizon. There was nothing to do but what Helen directed. They thought of Spike below, but Helen was calling to them and without further delay the two men jumped one after the other down into the machine. They told Helen of Spike's plight. She nodded as if the difficulty were no more than a detail, slued the machine from between the rails, drove around the outfit car, slowed alongside it and all three shouted. Spike, hearing his name, listened and sat up. He saw the machine outside the door and crawled forward but he was unequal to a leap. Rhinelander and Storm urged him to make every effort. He got to his feet and did the best he could toward a jump. The men together half caught and half pulled him into the machine. With the three aboard, Helen sped on ahead of the runaway.

Storm had decided what to do. "I'll drop off the hind end, Helen," he exclaimed, "and derail the car."

She caught his idea. "Quick!" she cried. "No time to lose."

Storm rolled over the back of the machine and dropped to the ground. A bridge spanned an arroyo just ahead. Running forward, Storm caught up such loose rocks as he could reach and placed them along the track. Helen, choosing a negotiable point, turned her machine courageously off the right of way and steered it safely down the embankment. The outfit car struck the rocks Storm had thrown on the track. It reeled, plunged wildly into the air and shot headlong over the bridge to the bottom of the arroyo.

In the distance the oncoming passenger train was whistling for a crossing close ahead. Storm running back to the track, cleared it hurriedly of the obstructions. The engineer of the train, scenting trouble, tried to check his train but it was too late, and Storm, to save himself, dropped down between the ties and hung there till the heavy train hurtled past. No engine driver was ever more relieved than the man in the passenger cab, when he saw himself safely across. He stopped his train. From the foot of the bridge, Helen, Spike and Rhinelander were making their way to the top and were with Storm when the crews and passengers came back. The engineman angrily told the conductor the trouble. But after Storm's brief story, he was as grateful as he had been indignant.

The conductor, knowing the anxiety among the dispatchers, urged his passengers on board and the train hastened on. The moment it pulled into Arden the conductor gave the details to the operator and the latter wired headquarters.

In the dispatchers' office it was the chief himself who jumped to the instrument when he heard the Arden call. It was the chief who took the message telling how Helen and Storm had saved the train. But the chief, as he wiped his face with his handkerchief, reflected that it was only another incident in the day's work on the rail, happily, instead of tragically, closed.

At the bridge Spike was trying to express his gratefulness to the three who had rescued him. They left the scene together in the command car machine; and with perhaps a little better understanding of one another than any of them had yet reached.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"TWIN BEDS" ONCE MORE.
Real Comedy Farce at the Majestic Again This Evening.

The distinction of fifty-two weeks of incessant popularity on Broadway attaches to "Twin Beds," the laugh festival by Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayo, which Salisbury and company will present at the Majestic again tonight with all the merits of the farce enhanced by their presentation by an admirable cast.

"Twin Beds" tells a thrilling story of how three couples who live on three floors of a fashionable big apartment building, first achieve neighborliness and then have it thrust upon them and finally move to escape it, without any remarkable success.

Its situations, clean and wholesome; and rapidly moving, are enriched by constant play by witty line and fresh-voiced slang. Its characterizations are sharply done, etched no less for mirth than truth.

AT KEITH PALACE

TWO SHOWS THIS EVENING.

Current Bill Closes Tonight at Palace—The Night Clerk Coming.

With two shows this evening the current bill at the New Palace will say good bye to Fort Wayne. It has proved one of the favorites of the entire season, for it has an unusual percent of purity, gauged by the standards of vaudeville excellence. Kenny and Hollis, the team of fun rioters, in their refreshingly breezy assortment of nonsense, "Freshie's Initiation," are the headlines, judging by the receptions they have been accorded at every performance. Among the other real acts on this bill are Victorine and Zolar, the two unusual dancing girls in a novelty act that closes with the sensational La Dana Duo; Angelo, Wier and Dacey, the harmony trio, in a smart song arrangement; Guy Rawson and Frances Claire's episode of childhood, "Yesterday," and the high speed animal act, the Thalers Circus.

The Night Clerk Coming.
There seems to be no limit to the versatility of Will Hough, the Clyde Fitch of the musical comedy world, for this genius goes on grinding out one lyrical travesty after another and never repeats. His latest effort is "The Night Clerk," the feature attraction at the New Palace for the early part of the coming week. "The Night Clerk" will be presented by the No. 1 road company at the New Palace, and is said to be quite the girliest of them all, with a score that is certain to attain the whistling stage of popularity immediately.

Australian Wood-Choppers.
Jackson & McLaren, the Australian Woodchoppers, who come to the Palace on next Thursday claim the distinction of being the champion axmen of the world. For several years they took part in the annual woodchopping contests that are held in New South Wales with as much distinction as the Cheyenne

BARON LICHTER.

In His Songs, Sayings and Playings—New Palace Last Times Today.

Roundup is to our western country. Lumberjacks of other nations have tested their skill and endurance against these athletic Australians but thus far no one has come forward to wrest the championship laurels from them.

The stage is elaborately set to represent a dense Australian bush untrammelled by man, and a veritable forest of sylvan loveliness. Great trees, and not stage trees either, fall like prairie grass before the fire when Jackson & McLaren start on their rugged block with their sharpened axes. The exhibition is far different than anything heretofore seen in the varieties.

AT THE TEMPLE.

"THE RED CIRCLE" PLEASES.

"Love's Model" Will Open at the Temple Monday Evening.

A drama with intense interest from beginning to end described very briefly "The Red Circle," which pleased many Fort Wayne theater patrons in the initial performance last night at the Temple. With the workings of the "Black Hand" organization revealed in the development of the plot, a love story, too, is unfolded. The uses and abuses to which the district attorney's office is put at times also is shown with the policies connected, but the heart interest overrules all. The play will be produced again tonight and tomorrow afternoon and night.

"Love's Model." Eugene Renald's new play of mirth and mystery, a melodramatic comedy of thrills and romance and startling adventure, will open Monday night for a run of four nights with matinee Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

Thrilling Story With Capital Punishment as a Theme at Jefferson

If you were governor and was seeking a reelection and in public addresses had made it plain that your belief was that a man should be punished according to his crime. If he death death, he should pay with his own life. When suddenly you are confronted with the fact that your own brother is convicted of murder and has been sentenced to the electric chair, what would you do? This is the situation of John Loring (Crane Wilburn) in "Vengeance is Mine," showing at the Jefferson today. John Loring is the governor of a western state and is opposed to pardons and is uncompromisingly for capital punishment. He has a brother Richard that has no particular virtues or vices. He overhears a social gangster, Clark, threaten the governor's wife with blackmail unless she gives him a very large sum of money. It appears that in her earlier life there was a series of instances that she kept from her husband. Clark, unless she meets his demands, threatens to expose her. On the night that the wife is to turn the money over to Clark, Richard follows her to the meeting place—the man's apartment. Having been unable to raise the money, the wife pleads for more time. At this point Richard knocks at the door, Clark hastily hides the wife behind the curtains and opens the door to face the governor's brother. He refuses to give up the evidence he has of the wife's guilt, and in the fight that follows Clark is hurled against the curtains. The blow explodes a gun that the wife had picked up from a table, and Clark is shot and killed. What did the wife do? What did Richard do? What did the governor do? The ending is full of heart interest. See it.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

IT WAS SOME SCRAP.

William Farnum Demonstrates Fistic Prowess in Orpheum Screen Hit.

Motion picture audiences have never felt an expectant thrill of such poignant nancy as the one that besets them when William Farnum, who plays the part of the "fighting parson" in "Fighting Blood," makes ready to do battle with Willard Louis, another actor who plays the part of the big, tough guy in "Fighting Blood," and an all-around tough guy. The altercation starts when Farnum, in the garb of a minister attempts to address a crowd of miners in the dance hall. Big Bill remonstrates with the ecclesiastic, slapping him partly upon one cheek and then with historical privilege upon the other. But inasmuch as the good book doesn't mention that the aggressor is entitled to a third smite, Farnum furnishes this and does it with such gusto and feeling that his lumbering adversary is nearly knocked off his feet. But that merely complicates matters and they are not straightened out until Farnum has worsted his man in one of the bitterest, bloodiest fights ever staged before the camera, and one that tends in a clean knockout for the pugnaeous movie star.

EAGLES' LODGE WILL HAVE NEW BUILDING

Plans Are Now Being Drawn for Structure Costing $20,000.

Preliminary plans are being drawn for a new lodge building to be erected this summer by the Eagles' lodge, costing approximately $20,000. The proposed building will be two stories and basement.

Architect J. M. E. Riedel is drawing plans for a new store building to be erected by Henry Meinen, on Maumee avenue. Work on the new building will start early in the spring.

Architect C. R. Weatherhogg will take bids till February 28 for a two-story building to be erected at Garrett, by the Garrett State bank.

Architect A. M. Strauss has completed plans for a new $10,000 parsonage, to be erected by the St. John Reformed church. The building is to be of pressed brick, with stone trimmings.

Rapid progress is being made on the new building being erected by the Fort Wayne Land and Improvement company. The structure will be three stories and basement, 235 by 58. Dedication Next August

The new Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church now under construction at St. Mary's avenue and Hoffman street, in Bloomingdale, will be dedicated next August. Plans for the dedication, which will be a big affair, are now being discussed. Ministers prominent in the Evangelical Lutheran church will probably take part in the exercises.

Architect J. M. E. Riedel has been awarded the contract for the architectural work on an Evangelical Lutheran church at Eden Valley, New York, and has just completed plans for a new Evangelical Lutheran church at Buckley, Illinois. A few days ago Mr. Riedel passed the examination that all architects are required to take before being licensed to practice in Illinois. He took the examination at Chicago.

During the month of January Fort Wayne made a gain of eighty-three per cent. over the same period last year in the number of building permits granted. In January, 1916, the building permits totaled $64,250, while in January, 1915, they totaled $35,100.

STRIKE NEAR SETTLEMENT.

Ansonia, Conn., Feb. 19.—Prospects were considered bright today for an amicable adjustment of the difficulties between the American Brass company and its 2,500 striking employees. A conference will be held this afternoon to consider the issues in dispute. The strikers, representing eleven nationalities, were not organized until last night, when a youth, Joseph Grohol, succeeded in bringing their factions together. A sub-committee of seven from a general committee of 33 will present to the company demands for a wage increase and better working conditions. There was no disturbance during the night.

SPANISH WAR VETS ENDORSE ARMORY

Action is Taken at Meeting of Henry W. Lawton Camp Friday Evening.

At the meeting of Henry W. Lawton camp, No. 35, United Spanish War Veterans, Friday evening in Vordermark hall, the movement for a new armory in Fort Wayne for which $20,000 appropriated by the last legislature can be obtained providing an equal amount is raised by the citizens of Fort Wayne, was given a hearty endorsement. Major John E. Miller explained the proposition in detail. He urged that inasmuch as Fort Wayne is without a public auditorium, a need which is growing every year pressing, that action be taken to bring about the securing of the armory building to this city.

The following committee was appointed to draw resolutions petitioning the county commissioners to take favorable action in aiding the armory movement: Commanders Johnson, Lewis, Hagarty, Jones and Commander Todd.

William Hagarty was named chairman of the committee in charge of the organization of a firing squad and in securing uniforms. John Johnson was named chairman of the enlistment committee for the year.

At the request of Zollinger camp, Quartermaster A. C. Hartwig, Commander Levi A. Todd and Senior Vice Commander Forest Arney were appointed a committee to arrange with a similar committee from Zollinger camp for a joint celebration of muster day, April 26, in honor of the departure of the troops for the front eighteen years ago.

Comrades Zuber, Hagarty and Arney were detailed to arrange for some kind of a celebration and "feed" at the next meeting of Lawton camp on March 17.

SENATE TO CALL UP OTHER TREATIES NOW

Nicaraguan Pact Ratified in Upper House by a 55 to 18 Vote.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The Nicaraguan treaty out of the way, administration senators were ready today to call up for action the Haitian treaty and in turn the amended Colombian treaty. Nicaraguan convention, under which the Nicaraguan canal route would be obtained for $3,000,000 was ratified, 55 to 18, in the senate yesterday. Included in the ratification resolution was a provision declaring that the United States in obtaining the naval base does not intend to violate any existing rights in the Fonseca gulf of Costa Rica, Honduras and Salvador which had protested against the proposed acquisition.

Five democratic senators voted against the treaty. They were Chamberlain, Martine, Clarke, of Arkansas, Thomas and Vardaman. Republicans who voted against ratification were Borah, Clapp, Cummins, Gronna, Jones, Kenyon, LaFollette, McCumber, Nelson, Norris, Smith, of Michigan, Smoot and Warren. Fifteen republican senators joined the administration forces in support of the treaty. They were: Brandegee, Colt, Dillingham, Dupont, Fall, Gallinger, Harding, Lippitt, Lodge, McLean, Page, Poindexter, Sutherland, Wadsworth and Weeks.

Immediately after the senate had acted, Senator Chamorro, the Nicaraguan minister, said he would at once communicate with his government and that he expected ratification of the convention by his government would soon follow.

GREAT GERMAN TROOP MOVEMENT IN BELGIUM

Amsterdam, Feb. 19.—During the last six days great German troop movements have occurred in south and central Belgium, says a dispatch from the frontier to the Telegraaf. Long trains with artillery and infantry were running along the roads to the west and south and some small detachments were transported by way of Louvain, Wavren and Gembloux to the southeast. Louvain, the dispatch adds, still is a strong point of German strategy and many conferences of high military officers are held there.

FIRST STORY IN DETAIL. able to erect any extensive fortifications was inevitable.

Petrograd, Feb. 19.—The first story in detail of the capture of Erzerum by the Russians reached Petrograd semi-officially today. It shows complete cooperation of Russian troops over a wide area, which made useless resistance on the part of the Turks. Apparently the Turks realized the fall of Erzerum was inevitable and withdrew most of their forces before the final onslaught, leaving the garrison of the widely separated forts to their fate.

The campaign began to reach its climax in the last days of January. The troops of Gen. L.— from the north and those of Gen. K.— from the east moved against the fire line forts under the most severe weather conditions. The Russians dragged their artillery to the heights surrounding the fortresses and when all was ready began to bombard forts Kara Gudok, 20 miles and Fort Dalan Gez, 15 miles northeast of Erzerum, preparatory to the bayonet assault. The taking of Dalan Gez made a breach in the outer line defenses and the Bere Boinu range in front of the city. The capture of Kara Gudok opened a direct passage through the Kara Bagas pass to the city proper from the northeast.

Fort Tafta lies midway between these fortresses. In a night attack on January 30 this fort was captured, leaving only Chaban Bebe between the two armies operating from this quarter.

On February 2 the Russians began to storm the whole front line on the Bere Boinu heights. By evening all these positions were in Russian hands, permitting complete junction of the troops on the northeast. The fall of this first line quickly decided the fate of the inner forts.

Meanwhile the Palan Tokan group of forts, seven miles to the south, had been surrounded on three sides. The general assault on the second line began without giving the men time for a rest. The five inner forts made only feeble resistance. Their garrisons beat a hasty retreat into the city and followed the bulk of the troops which already were on the roads leading westward.

Only the rear guard took part in the fighting of the last day. Signs that the evacuation was under way were observed immediately after the fall of the first fort. It is thought possible the Turks will attempt to make a stand at the first favorable point which is in the hills on the western edge of Erzerum valley eleven miles distant, but it is not regarded as probable that they have been. On January 29 both forts capitulated there.

The Russians are hastily repairing the small damages done to the fortresses against a possible attempt of the Turks to retake them. No news has been received of the fate of Ekved Pevsir Hassa, commander of the Turkish troops, who was in charge of the defense of Erzerum. It is reported that reinforcements from Thrace were on the way to Erzerum.

SEEKS ENLISTMENT ON ROLL OF HONOR

Telegrapher L. C. Lopshire
Forty-Eight Years.

L. C. Wilshire, a Pennsylvania telegraph operator at present located at Winona, has made application for a pension on the disability clause which allows employees to enter the pension system department after attaining the age of sixty-five years, providing the applicant is incapacitated by sickness or accident for further service. Mr. Wilshire was born at Dayton, Ind., January 29, 1849, and is past sixty-seven years old. He entered the employ of the company as a telegraph operator at Warsaw in July, 1868, when he was nineteen years old, and worked constantly at it on the Western division up to January 1, when he was taken sick. Most of his time has been spent at Warsaw, Bourbon and Winona, at times he was sent elsewhere on the division and is known to all the operators, dispatchers, trainmen and others employed on the division.

PROPRIATION HAS BEEN MADE.
and Work on Big Building on Wall Street Will Begin Soon.

General Manager F. S. Hunting, of the local branch of the General Electric company, returned from Schenectady, N. Y., last night, clothed with authority to go ahead with the erection of the big shop building on Wall street, which was commenced two years ago and abandoned because of the business depression which settled over the country at that time. The plans for an originally drawn contemplated a four-story building but this has been changed to a two-story, giving a large additional floor space and making it much larger than any building in the present plant. Mr. Hunting said this morning that the building would be for general factory purposes, the space to be assigned to departments when the structure is completed. "It will give a floor space of more than double the facilities of the shops," Mr. Hunting said. The plans and specifications are nearly ready for contractors and bids will be invited in a week or two. It is the intention of pushing the building to completion as rapidly as possible.

Seeks Retirement After Working Nearly Fifty-One Years on the Pennsylvania.

ALBERT G. ESTRAY

Albert G. Estray, for over thirty-two years a conductor on the Pennsylvania limited trains, Nos. 2 and 5, running between Fort Wayne and Crestline, has made his last run in that capacity and has applied for a pension on the disability clause and will probably be placed on the "roll of honor" March 1. Conductor Estray has been in poor health for several months, and was suffering with an attack of grip when he brought his train in from Crestline Sunday, January 2, and for ten days thereafter was confined to the house and a part of the time to his bed. It was then he decided to apply for a pension and quit active duty. Mr. Estray was born at Marlboro, Starke county, Ohio, July 16, 1847, and is, therefore, sixty-eight years and six months old. When six years old he went with his parents to Van Wert, Ohio, where he grew to manhood and where he obtained an education in the public schools. When nearly seventeen years old, on May 2, 1864, he enlisted in Company H, 139th Ohio volunteers, and served his enlistment term of three months. His service on the railroad dates from May 9, 1865, when he became a freight brakeman. At that time the road was known as the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago. He worked in that capacity until October 15, 1869, when he was promoted to freight conductor. April 10, 1874, he was advanced to passenger conductor and has served in that capacity ever since. The Pennsylvania limited was put into service, or made a vestibule train in 1882 and the following year, in 1883, Mr. Estray was assigned to it and has charge of it up to January 3, when he was taken sick, serving over thirty-two years. For many years the Pennsylvania limited was the finest train running across the state of Indiana. It has maintained its excellence of appointment and equipment and is today a magnificent train, though faster trains have been put on the road since. During the half-century and more Mr. Estray was in railroad service he was in only one accident in which he was injured. June 4, 1872, he had one of his legs fractured and was unable to work for ten months. That injury never fully healed and is one of the reasons why he now seeks retirement before he is seventy years old.

ters at Logansport, who was in the city on business for the department, called at the office of Road Foreman of Engineers J. H. Hanna, of the Pennsylvania, to congratulate that gentleman upon his promotion. This was the first time Mr. Widgeon has seen Mr. Hanna since he became road foreman of engines. He left on the Wabash train for his home at noon.

W. M. Stevenson, representing the Crucible Steel company of America, headquarters in Chicago, is calling upon patrons in Fort Wayne. He arrived this morning and will remain over Sunday. Mr. Stevenson says that the Crucible Steel company never had better business. In fact the business is fully up to the company's facilities for handling it. He comes to Fort Wayne two or three times a month and has a number of friends here.

IS "BUSINESS END" OF BRITISH EMPIRE

Something About Dover, a Target for Bombs from the Zeppelins.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—Dover, where German seaplanes have lately been showering high explosives, might be called the "business end" of the British empire toward the continent; for when England wars in Europe her troops set out from Dover's harbor, whence they have gone to Germany, France, Holland, Italy, Spain and Belgium in centuries past, and whence they are leaving today in an undiminished stream for scores of battlefields distributed clean across the continent from the ocean to the Black Sea, "begins a primer on war geography just issued by the National Geographic society at Washington.

"The city occupies a narrow break in the famous chalk cliffs, and its harbor is formed by a grand enclosure of the waters of the Straits of Dover by more than a mile of piers. The chalk cliffs are honey-combed with military works, hidden guns and batteries and galleries through the rock. The fortification of this point, where England and continental Europe approach nearest to one another, has been done as thoroughly as military ingenuity can devise. Besides the works built into the cliffs, the harbor is guarded by a modern redoubt, Fort Burgoyne, and other fortification-circuits. It has always been a favorite worry with Englishmen to dream of invasion via the Straits and Dover.

"So keenly have Englishmen felt about the subject since the days of the Northern pirates, that they have several times refused to consider seriously a project for linking Dover with Calais by tubes under the channel to France, lest an insidious enemy some day march across unexpected into their country under their protecting sea. One company formed for the construction of such a dry-land way between Europe and England did manage to get some lengthy reports made, to parliament, in which the suggestions were advanced that provision must be made, with the construction of any such tubes, for their flooding from Dover in case of an outbreak of hostilities between Britain and any European power. The idea, however, was dropped as a dangerous one.

"Roman shipping visited Dover's port, and, probably, the Phoenicians before Roman times traded there. The harbor was fortified in the 4th century, and the original defenses have been kept up to-date ever since. The battle of Dover was fought off the harbor of the town, August 21, 1217. Rostace the Monk, adventurer-pirate and soldier of fortune, in command of a great French flotilla to aid the English barons against their king, was severely beaten in this struggle by the much smaller Dover fleet. The battle of Dover ranks as high in the annals of British victories on the sea against odds as that engagement in which the Armada was driven off."

Plays Piano With Shapeless Hands as Doctors
Try New Remedy.

A bill has been introduced in congress asking for an appropriation to build a leprosarium for the care of many lepers said to be in the country. This story tells of one sad case—only one now under government treatment.

By IDA H. MCGLOTH GIBSON

New York, Feb. 19.—I have seen and talked to a 17-year-old girl afflicted with leprosy, that ancient disease supposed to be the curse of God.

Magellen McLean, isolated in a room at the Hudson county (N. J.) hospital for contagious diseases, has leprosy in its advanced stages.

When I entered the room I saw, huddled in an arm chair next to the radiator between the two windows, a slight form whose face was buried in a book.

"Magellen, I have brought a friend of mine to see you," said Supt. McDonough.

Instantly the girl arose and smiled—yes, with full knowledge of her condition she could still smile. The ravages of her disease had begun to show in her face, which quickly settled back into a wistful questioning.

"What are you reading?" I asked.

Shall All American Cities Put Their Police on the Water Wagon?

Famous Captain of New York "Boozeless" Precinct Starts Nation-Wide Reform—Declares Guardians of the Law Before All Others Should Be Total Abstiners.

BY JONAS PLATT

New York, Feb. 19.—Shall the police of every city in America go on the water wagon?

This important question, regarding the regulation of the personal habits of the guardians of the safety and property of American citizens is likely to become a great national issue as the result of the amazing action in New York of Dominick Henry, the famous police captain of Manhattan's 135th station.

Capt. Henry, the most popular officer on the force, has made all his 117 patrolmen sign the temperance pledge for one solid year!

And the question of extending this ruling over all the precincts of the five boroughs of Greater New York is now being agitated. Simultaneously reformers have declared today they will demand that this decree be made effective in every large city in the United States.

At a recent meeting of clergymen in New York Capt. Henry's men were the chief topic of discussion and a resolution was passed urging preachers in all parts of the country to support a campaign to carry Henry's idea into every city in the United States.

The introduction of "total abstinence" among the cops has created a tremendous stir among New York's force and no official personage less popular than "Capt. Henry" could have inaugurated it. Capt. Henry has fought for sobriety in the police department ever since he became a precinct commander. More than 500 confirmed drunkards have taken the Henry "cure" and returned to duty freed from the habit that dragged them down.

For a number of years Capt. Henry was in command of the Mercer street station. His fame as a reformer of whisky victims had spread through the department and commissioners grew accustomed to send drinking men to his precinct as a last resort. The vast majority returned to their original posts in as good condition as ever.

After Capt. Henry left the Mercer street station he continued the fight, and many a battle he won against the bottle.

A few days ago he called his men together. He told them of his ambition to eliminate drinking from his command. He talked only five minutes, but his words worked wonders. The men got together afterward and every last one of them voluntarily signed the pledge!

Here is the little speech that persuaded them to climb aboard the water wagon:

"Of all the men in the world who ought not to drink the police officer is foremost. He is a soldier fighting for law and order. The soldiers of Europe have been put on the water wagon, and you men are soldiers doing duty in this precinct.

"It takes a drink ten minutes to act on the human system and 30 minutes to die. If you take one drink on a cold night you begin to feel warmer in ten minutes. You feel warm for half an hour. Then you get cold again. What's the result? You want another drink, and you go and take one. Cut it out."

Later Capt. Henry enlarged on his idea to me.

"I don't suppose anyone outside of the police force realizes what a menace a half-drunk policeman is to the community," he said. "How can he be expected to protect life and property? Would you rest well at night if you thought the man who is supposed to be guarding you from criminals was half full of whisky?"

"In the poorer districts the policeman is the personal representative of the law. When the people of such a section see an officer under the influence of liquor they immediately lose their respect for the law, and this attitude of contempt breeds crime at an appalling rate. A child who sees a drunken policeman grows up with a feeling of contempt for the law simply because in his earlier years he once saw a drunken policeman."

"When I was at the Mercer street station I saw some of the finest specimens of manhood wrecked by drink.

They were sent to me in pitiable condition. There is no more painful sight than a big six-footer unmoved by the craving for alcohol."

"I sent some seemingly hopeless specimens back to their work as fit as ever—and perhaps a little stronger for their bitter experience. These men would have been dismissed from the force if no one had been there to help them."

"I cannot venture to say how many crimes could be traced to the negligence of a half-drunk policeman, but it is a safe bet to say that the efficiency of every police force in the country will be increased in good measure if drink can be eliminated from the life of every man who wears the shield."

"I think 90 per cent. of the police of the United States could be induced to get aboard the water wagon if the movement carried out in this precinct is duplicated in other cities."

"My remarks should not be taken as a hint that policemen drink more than civilians. I think they drink less. However, their responsibility is so peculiar that they should be more careful than most men. Like the locomotive engineer, they hold in their care the lives of multitudes. Everyone knows how strict the railroads are about the habits of their engine drivers."

"I have absolute faith that this movement for police abstinence will spread throughout the country. Booze must fall back before the advance of efficiency!"

SUBJECT TO INCOME TAX

Federal Employees Included in the List—Warning From Collector

Indianapolis, Feb. 19.—Federal employees, and especially postmasters, are either ignorant or unmindful of the fact that they are subject to the income tax law, according to the announcement of Peter J. Krueyer, collector of internal revenue for the Sixth district in Indiana. It is Mr. Krueyer's contention that in the long list of those subject to the income tax, federal employees are very prominent, despite the fact that all delinquents lay themselves liable to the penalty of 50 per cent. of such taxation, to which may be added criminal prosecution.

Although such returns must be made on or before March 1, the total of those having complied with the law is comparatively small when compared with the grand total. With federal employees, the tax includes all those whose incomes total $3,000, or if their combined net income and salary reach that amount.

those subject to the corporation and income tax laws to have their returns in on or before that date in order that they may escape the penalty and possible prosecution.

Experiments Expected to Revolutionize Work of Dentists.

New York, Feb. 19.—Substitutes for platinum, which will materially relieve the scarcity of that metal in this country because of the war, have been discovered by American chemists, F. A. He said gold and silver alloys of palladium have been found to be excellent substitutes for platinum in its softer forms. It is expected, Mr. Fahrenwald said, that experiments being made with these alloys will revolutionize the world of the dental profession in platinum.

Copy of Proposal Made to the City by the Traction Company for Street Lighting:

THE FORT WAYNE & NORTHERN INDIANA TRACTION COMPANY.

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS, OF THE CITY OF FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

GENTLEMEN:

In the report recently made to the Common Council of the City of Fort Wayne by Mr. John Wessel, Jr., Secretary and Manager of the Municipal Light Department, for the year 1914, the following statement is made:

"For a number of years prior to 1909, the City has been paying for their street lights at the rate of $70.00 per arc per annum. In 1909 the Council fixed the amount to be paid by the City to the Municipal Lighting Plant at $53.00 per annum.

The following statement shows the average number of arcs in service annually, the annual cost under the former and the present rates, and the saving to the City under the reduced rates:

YEAR	No. of Arcs	Cost at Rate of $70.00	Cost at Rate of $53.00	Saving
1909	437.80	$ 22,967.00	$ 17,390.00	$ 5,577.70

A statement of all the facts and the actual cost to the City per arc lamp per annum for the year 1907 (the last whole year in which the street lighting was furnished by the Traction Company) compared with the year 1914, the last year included in Mr. Wessel's report, is the best and most complete refutation of the claim of savings made by the operation of the Municipal Plant for street lighting. The contract, under and by which the public lighting of the streets of the City was supplied for several years before the construction of the Municipal Plant, was made between the City and the Fort Wayne Electric Light and Power Company, (then owned by a number of the most prominent citizens and business men of this city), whose property, contracts and franchises were subsequently purchased and acquired by the Fort Wayne & Wabash Valley Traction Company, which continued to furnish the street lighting under this contract until the construction of the Municipal Plant.

That contract provided for the payment of $70.00 per arc lamp per annum, which included not only the electric energy for light, but also the lighting, extinguishing and trimming of lamps and the furnishing, maintaining and repairing of the poles, wires and lamps. The charge of $53.00 per arc lamp per annum to the tax-payers by the Municipal Plant is for electric energy only; the cost of maintenance, repairs and other operating expense are included in the operating expenses of the entire plant. When such expenses are separated from the whole operating expenses, it will be shown by the books of the Municipal Plant that the cost of maintenance, repairs and operation of the arc lamps will amount to $10.00 per arc lamp per annum.

That contract also contained the following provisions, curiously omitted from consideration in the estimate of costs made by the Secretary of the Light Department, to-wit:

"If any of the lamps do not burn during said time aforesaid, said City is to have a pro rata credit on the amount due said second party at the end of the month, and it is agreed that the police of said City are to report, monthly, all lamps not burning on their routes or beats, and the time said lamps are out, and the proportionate credit aforesaid is to be given according to the report of said police, which is to be taken as conclusive."

When the Traction Company furnished the street lighting, the City deducted and withheld from the contract price the pro rata amount for all outages, and the report of such outages made by the police to the City was, by the terms of the contract, made conclusive. Outages do, and will occur, with every form of arc lamp used, and frequently occur and often for long periods of time, in the Municipal street arc lamps. This can be verified by any observing person living near them. No deduction, however, is made from the price of $53.00 per arc lamp charged by the City for such outages of its own lamps. Again, during the time the Traction Company furnished the city lighting, the City levied and collected a tax of $1.00 per pole on each and every pole maintained by the Traction Company, which was paid by the Company, not because it was legally bound to do so, but on account of the contract with the City for the public lighting.

The following is an exact statement of the number of arc lamps furnished and operated by the Traction Company for lighting the streets during the year 1907, the deduction for outages withheld by the City, the actual monthly payments made by the City therefor, and the amount of pole tax paid by the Company as shown by the books of both the City and the Traction Company, which can be verified by an examination of such books:

December	399	70.00	2,327.50	185.18	2,142.32
TOTAL			$27,713.41	$1,492.24	$26,221.17

Amount charged for year 1907	$27,713.41
Deductions:
Outages	$ 1,492.24
Pole tax for 1907	5,405.00
Net cost to City	$20,816.17
Average number of lamps operated for the year 1907	396
Actual cost per arc lamp to City for the year 1907	$52.56, or 44 cents per arc lamp less than the City paid in 1914.
Actual loss to the City for the 656.72 arc lamps operated by the City in 1914, @ 44c per lamp	$ 248.95
To which should be added the cost of maintenance, repairs and operation of 656 suspended type arc lamps operated in 1914, at $10.00 per lamp	6,560.00
TOTAL LOSS	$ 6,808.95

Instead of a saving of $11,164.30 as claimed in the Secretary's report. Again, the arc lamps furnished and operated by the Traction Company in 1907 were 9.6 ampere Wood Arc Lamps of 850 candle power, consuming 450-watts at the lamp terminals, while the arc lamps now used and operated by the City are only 4 ampere arc lamps of 600 candle power, consuming 320-watts per hour at the lamp terminals. The price therefore charged and received by the City per kilowatt (which is the universal unit of measure for electric energy) for public lighting, is considerably higher than the amount received by the Traction Company per kilowatt for such lighting during the year 1907.

According to the books of the Municipal Light Department, the arc lamp consumption for the year 1915 was 963,220 kilowatt hours, metered at the power station. There were operated, 663 suspended type arc lamps at $53.00 per year, and 189 ornamental type arc lamps at $56.50 per year, which amounts to $45,817.00, or .0476 cents per kilowatt hour, while at the same time they supplied some small consumers, consuming less than 400 kilowatt hours per month (or 4,800 kilowatt hours per year), metered at the place of consumption, at the rate of .0277 cents per kilowatt hour. If the line and transformer losses resulting in the transformation and transmission of the electric energy supplied for public lighting metered at the power station are taken into consideration, the charge to these small consumers is less than one-half the charge for public lighting to tax-payers, whose money built the Municipal Plant and pays for the public lighting.

In view of the foregoing statements, we beg to submit for your consideration the following proposals:

First: We will furnish electric energy at our power station on Spy Run Avenue, necessary for the operation of the following lamps now in service:

- 670 4-ampere Magnetite Arc Lamps, suspended type, to be burned on what is known as "The Philadelphia Moon Light Schedule," being a total of 2,000 hours per year, and
- 189 4-ampere Magnetite Arc Lamps of the inverted type on ornamental posts now in service; 63 of these lamps burning all night every night from one-half hour after sun down until one-half hour before sun rise; 126 lamps burning every night from one-half hour after sun set until 12:00 o'clock mid-night, and
- 255 Ornamental cluster posts, consisting of 1-60 and 4-40 watt Mazda Lamps, burning 1-60 watt lamp on the top of these posts all night every night from one-half hour after sun set to one-half hour before sun rise; burning 4-40 watt Mazda lamps on each post every night from one-half hour after sun set until mid-night. Which constitutes the same number of lamps as are now in service, for the total sum of $12,000.00 per annum, payable one-twelfth monthly.

Second: We will furnish the electric energy at our power station on Spy Run Avenue, necessary for the following lamps, now in service:

- 670 4-ampere Magnetite Arc Lamps, suspended type, burning all night every night from one-half hour after sun set to one-half hour before sun rise, and
- 189 4-ampere Magnetite Arc Lamps of the inverted type on ornamental posts, burning all night every night from one-half hour after sun set until one-half hour before sun rise, and
- 255 Ornamental cluster posts, consisting of 1-60 and 4-40 watt Mazda Lamps, burning all night every night from one-half hour after sun set until one-half hour before sun rise. Which constitutes the same number of lamps as are now in service, For the total sum of $21,000.00, payable one-twelfth monthly.

These proposals are made with the understanding that the Mercury Arc Rectifier sets complete, which include all of the arc lighting apparatus in the Municipal Lighting Plant at present, shall be transferred to the Company's power house on Spy Run Avenue, at the Company's expense, for the use of the City under the contract hereinafter mentioned. The title to all such rectifier sets shall remain in the City and shall be returned to the City and set up in its plant at the termination of such contract at the Company's expense, in as good condition as they now are, except the usual wear and depreciation thereof. The company's line will be extended at the expense of this Company from their Spy Run Power Station to and connected with the City's arc light circuits at the City's power plant, in order that electric energy may be furnished in accordance with either of the above proposals.

These proposals are made with the understanding that a contract will be entered into for a period of ten years, and in case additional electric energy is desired during the life of this contract for additional lamps of the same kind, or similar lamps consuming the same amount of electric energy, connected by the City to the present or additional arc light circuits, the same will be furnished on a pro rata basis. The City shall, as heretofore, furnish, maintain and keep in repair, all the poles, wires and lamps, the same to be kept in good operating condition.

For your information we wish to advise that according to the rates now charged for electric energy only, for street lighting service, the following is a statement of the annual expense:

670 Arc Lamps, @ $53.00 per Year	$35,510.00
189 Arc Lamps, @ $56.50 per Year	10,678.00
255 Ornamental Cluster Posts, @ $21.00	5,355.00
TOTAL	$51,543.00

If proposal No. 1 is accepted by your Board, this will mean a saving to the taxpayers of $39,543.00 per year, or a saving of $395,430.00 for the period of the proposed ten-year contract.

If proposal No. 2 is accepted by your Board, there will be a saving of $30,543.00 per annum, or a saving to the tax-payers of $305,430.00 for the period of the proposed ten-year contract, and in addition, the City will also be lighted all night, every night.

Respectfully submitted,
S. W. GREENLAND,
General Manager.

A DISGRACE TO BINGVILLE

We take our eddytorial pen in hand to dash off a redhot eddytorial on behalf of Rev Saml Moore our beloved paster of the Bingville church in the hope that it will do some good, but even if it dont do no good why it wont do no harm.

Totther day Rev. Moore happend to drop into the Bugle offis for a quiet chat and we was pained and surprised to lern that the congregashon of the church is at present back nearly two yrs on their pasters salary and that Rev. Moore and wife is livin from hand to mouth as we might say and half the time he dont know where his next meal is a coming from. This is a burning disgrace to Bingville and the members of the church in good standing ort to be ashamed of themselves.

Rev. Moore told us that last Sunday after morning service was over and he counted out the contents of the contribushon plates all he found was a lead quarter, three five ct pieces with holes in same, several suspender buttons, a stub of a lead pencil and $1.14 in genuine change.

How can our beloved paster exist on counterfeit money, suspender buttons and lead pencil stubs, we ask? Rev. Moore is a meek and lowly and humbel man. In fakt it's our opinyun he is too meek & lowly & humbel for his own good. If we was paster of the Bingville church we'd either git what was cumming to us or else we'd lash out from the pulpit and expose some of the stingy titewad souls who belongs to that church until their hair would curl on their heads for em. As eddytor & Prop. of the Bugle we know enuff about the pasts of some of the puslanimous members of the Bingville church to nearly hang em and if Rev. Moore desires this informashon we will furnish it to him with great cheer.

Sunday after Sunday folks goes to church and sets there absorbing spiritchool refreshment until their pores is full of same and when the contribushon plate is passed they drop in a plugged nickel or a pants button!

When a new baby comes to town who baptizes it and starts it out right in life? Why Rev. Moore. When ennybuddy gets married who ties the knot? Why our beloved paster. After ennybuddy in this community passes on into the great beyant who is it stretches a pint in order to say nise things about em whether they deserve it or not? Parson Moore of course.

When ennybuddy is bereaved or in sorrow or in poor health or suffering from financial stringency they allus go and lean on Rev. Moore and he comforts em and cheers em up and prays with em and blesses em. Then after the clouds passes and the sun shines agin and they git back their helth or prosper, them seem to forgit what their beloved paster has did for em and hunt around the house for old buttons to drop into the contribushon plate. That's a nise way to treat your paster aint it?

We dont say that everybuddy that belongs to the Bingville church tightens up their wallet strings when they go to service. Them members of the church who dont claim to be sanctified is the very ones who pays Rev. Moore all he gits to live on. But when it comes to some of them as passes as the stanchest pillars of the church like Cy Hoskins, Deacon Butterworth, Eph Higgins, Ame Hillyer, Constable Dewberry, Peleg Hoskins, Hen Smiley and a few more old hipper crits we could name who sets over in the amen corner lookin so sanctimonious on Sunday and trying to gouge the eyes outen their nabers every week day, why you can judge for yourself where the punched nickels, lead quarters and suspender buttons comes from.

Salvashon is free but our beloved paster cant live on buttons and lead pencil stubs and promises. The Bible says that him who preaches the gospel should live ofen the gospel & the fakt that Rev. Moores salary is back nearly two years ort to make some of the members of the Bingville church hide their faces with shame & humiliation. If this aint enuff to make em hide their faces with shame, then we calkilate we will print a few things in the Bugle soon about certain members of our church that will make em do so.

BEWARE!

Mrs. Bill Hepburn wife of our artistic blacksmith sold two duzen pt. and qt. empty whiskey bottles to Doc Livermore, our human speashialist and horse veterinary totther day for Doc to put medians into.

These empty bottles represents the accumulashon of bottles which Bill has brung home from the co. seat full every Saturday night for a period of the past six months. Bill hides the bottles about the barn and blacksmith shop and Mrs. Hepburn collects em and sells em to Doc thereby getting some pise money for herself. Lokal Breefs

Sime Gookins busted into the Bugle offis totther day madden a wet hen and desired to know why there was sent nothing printed in the Bugle about him being laid up on his back in bed with the grip for three days. Sime told us he reckoned he could die and we wouldn't never say nothing about it in the Bugle. We told him yes we would not, especially if we never heard about it. We didnt know Sime was sick until he told us so with his own mouth. If such folks would advise us of some their names would appear in the paper offener.

There seems to be a awful skeercity of new subscribers to the Bugle lately. If several new subscribers would step up and subscribe and be keeful to pay cash strickin in advance it would be very exceptable to us at the present time.

Marriages

It is with turrible regret that we a nounce that there aint been enny marriages in Bingville for quite a spell back and the worse of it is that we dont know of enny which are to take place in the near fuchure.

Almira's New Dress

Miss Almira Hobbs apeard in church at service last Sunday morning wearin a new dress which her mother had made for her and caused a good deal of admirashon when she swep up the isle and tuk her accustomed place in the choir.

It was a lovely dress, also a turrible good fit and Almira looking so nise in it was the synoshure of all eyes as we might say. In fakt the other girls in the choir was so jellus & envious, and so ockupied looking at Almira's dress, that they got offen the tune several times and wouldn't skeerly speak to Almira when the service was over. This is a nise Christian spirit for the members of the choir to show aint it?

Too Hot for Enos

Enos McCracken on Thursday nite when it was so cold fild a gal stone jug with bilin worter and corked it up and placed it under the covers at the foot of the bed to keep his feet warm and then retired.

Next morning when Enos got up he found that the soles of both his feet had been scorched to a blister and was so sore that he couldn't skeerly walk. Enos couldn't bear to wear his boots and has been limpin around sinist with both feet down in landages. Enos is allus complainin of cold feet and we are glad that he got em warm enuf for onct.

Praps You Dont Know

What a turrible mood thing CATNIP TEA is for the huming system. If you did you would TAKE IT AFTER EVERY MEAL being as it makes you feel like a new man (or a new woman, as the case may be) purrifies your blood, tetches up your liver and makes you feel as YUNG AS A COLT AND AS PLAYFUL AS A KITTEN.

Last summer I raised and purchased a LOT OF CATNIP FOR WINTER USE. I spread it up in my attic to dry and totther day when I went up to see how it was gittin along I was a good deal disgusted and surprised to find that sumbuddy had went and left the attic winder open and the CATS HAD BEEN A GOING IN AND OUT OF the attic helping themselves to my catnip. Be that as it may however there is a good deal of it left and I am now offering it for sale to them as desires and hadnt wnt enuff to gether catnip last fall at the ridiculus rate of 5 CTS PER BUNCH. In this way I hope to make $10 or $15. dollars outen this mess of catnip which didnt cost me a red cent.

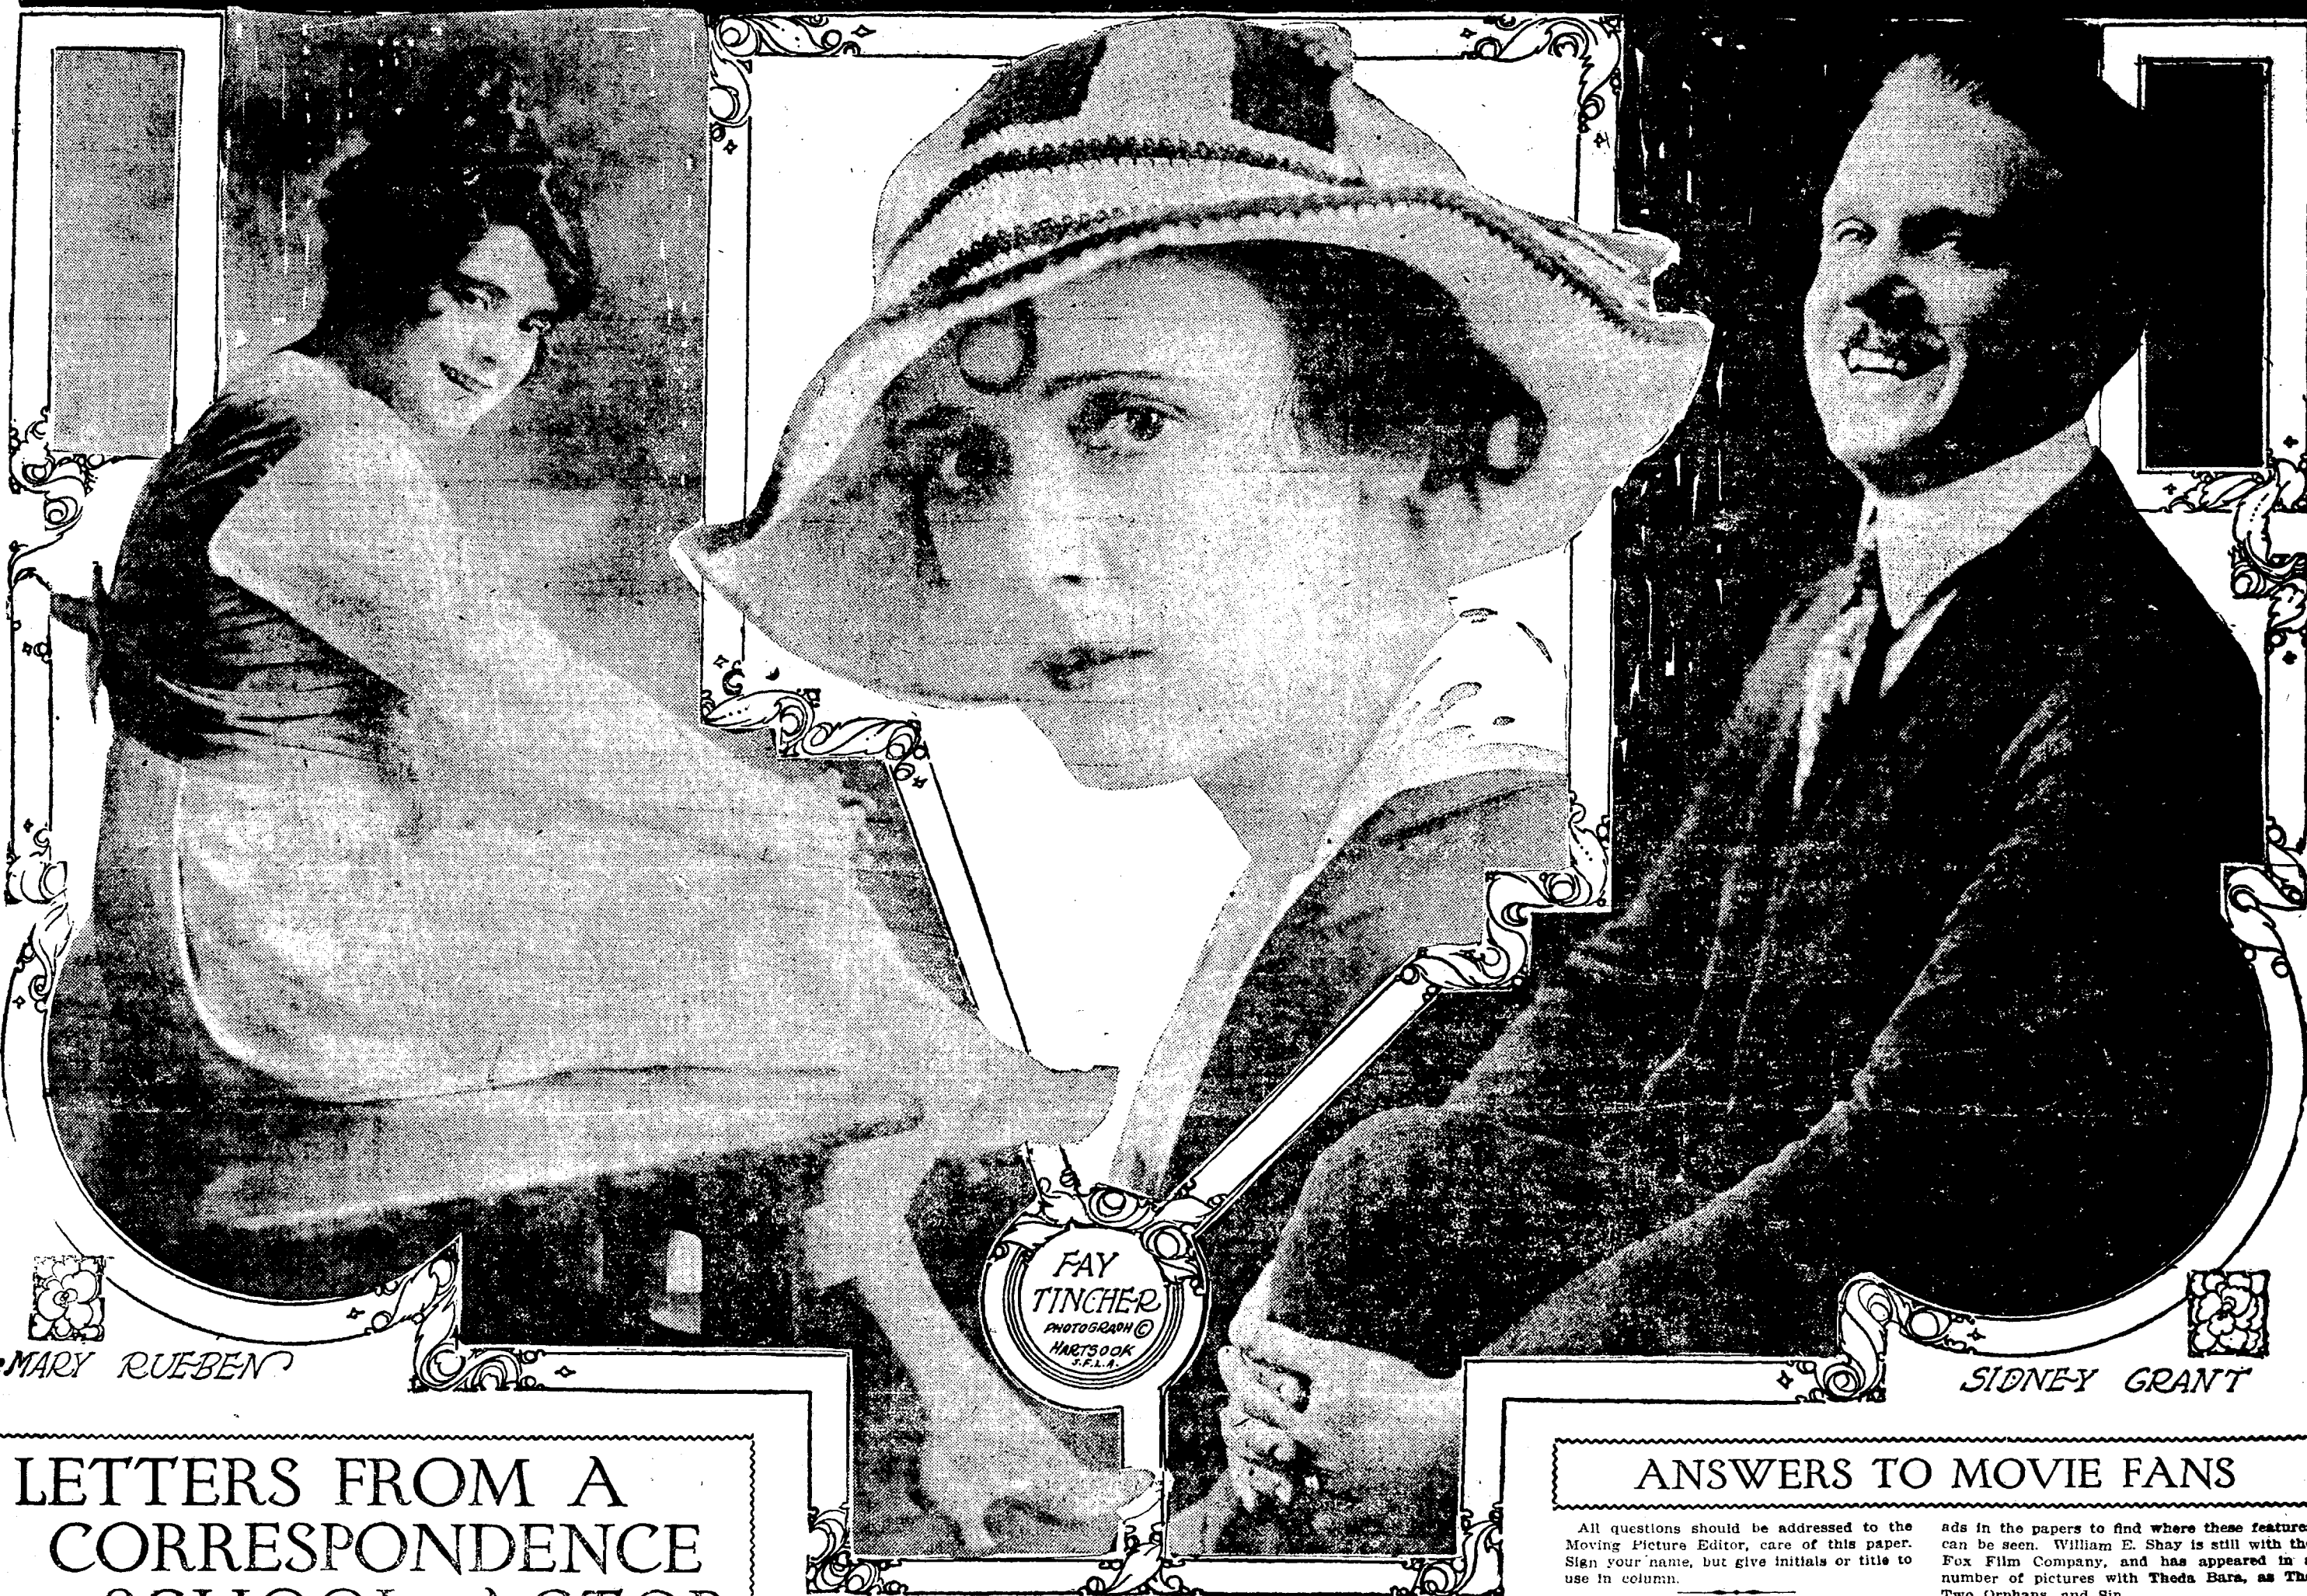

When you boll a bunch of my catnip in worter and drink the tea it is awful GOOD FOR WHAT AILS YOU. Come and get several bunches of this catnip before it is all gone. Praps if you dont need the catnip YOUR CAT WOULD LIKE SOME of it being as catnip is not only good for humans but for cats likewise. This catnip is fible to eat as it not cakes and no good better come early and avoid the rush.

MAKING FUN for MOTION PICTURES

MARY RUEBEN

SIDNEY GRANT

LETTERS FROM A CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL ACTOR

By A. H. Giebler.

BAR DAVE:

Well, Dave, I am about well of the scratches I got when I was working in the picture with them wild animals, and we finished the picture, and it turned out to be so good because I did such fine acting in it that Mr. Croeland, the head director, gave me $25 extra, and I would be $25 ahead of my regular wages from working in that picture, if I hadn't got robbed like I did.

There ain't any danger of me getting blood poison now from them scratches, and they are all well except one pretty big one on my nose, but J. J. Murphy says it won't spoil my beauty none, and I am glad of that, because you know if I was to get my face spoiled all them girls wouldn't get stuck on me from seeing me in the movies, and want my picture like they do from us movie actors.

One girl has already wrote and asked me for my picture, but I got it back. I don't care, it will be good to send to some other girl that gets stuck on me.

I tell you, Dave, it's no fun being an actor sometimes, when some of the other actors are bears and lions, and maybe a fat girl like Flora, The Fat Girl. Even if them animals are not wild, you are liable to get all scratched up from a wire fence like I did, in getting away from them, because I didn't know that the lion was tame, like Charley, the bear, and wouldn't bite me if he got a chance.

But I am all right now. We sure had an awful time finishing that Suffragettes of the Stone Age picture, and I would just as lief be chased by a bear as to be chased by a fat girl, like I was, and she sat down on top of me and wouldn't get off, and I couldn't hit a girl to make her get off, because that wouldn't look well, and, besides, you can't hit a girl or anybody else when you are laying down flat on your stomach and her sitting down on top of you, can you, Dave?

My part in the picture is the part of the wild man that has got three wives, like I told you about, and I figure it out that I have got too many, and I am going to get rid of two of them by throwing them in the river.

J. J. Murphy says: "You'll have to carry Flora again in this scene," and I says: "It's a good thing I am big and strong, ain't it?"

"Yes, and Flora's awful strong for you," only I didn't know what he meant, but I found out after a while. He meant she was stuck on me, Dave.

There was no river where we were working then scenes out, and, of course, I couldn't carry Flora no two miles to the river, so I was just to carry her a little piece in the woods, and then the next day we'd go to the river and I'd grab her up and carry her another little piece on the river bank and then I'd throw a dummy of her in the river, but I didn't understand that then, because J. J. Murphy didn't tell us all that when he explained the scene we were working in. He just said I was supposed to throw two of my wives in the water.

All them other actors understood, but I didn't, because they got different from the kind of acting I studied from the correspondence school that teaches movie acting by mail, and I made a little mistake. I thought, if I have to carry both of them girls, I'll carry the big one first and get the worst of it over with, so I grabbed up Flora and started juggling her, and she says: "Ain't I a heap lighter than I was when you carried me in Sappho? I've been takin' some stuff that will make me little."

I said: "You ain't took enough of it yet," and that made her mad, and I wished I hadn't answered her at all.

Then J. J. Murphy hollered, "That's enough! Drop her!" There was a big puddle of water that them bears had been playing in and had got all muddy, and as J. J. had said to throw her in the water and didn't say anything about no river and no dummy, I just throwed her in the puddle, and it splashed up all over me, and she got up and took out after me.

Honest, I never thought no fat girl, or any kind of a girl, could talk like that. J. J. says she was with a circus for a long time, and she picked up all of that tough talk from the razor-backs that put the tents up in a circus. I hollered and says, "Pull her off!" But they wouldn't pull her off of me, and they took all of that stuff with the camera.

J. J. Murphy says, "Tom, did you do that on purpose, or was it another of them celebrated accidental acts of yours?"

"I knowed it would make good comedy stuff to throw her in the mud," I told him, "so I just dumped her in." And I got away with it, too. Pretty slick, eh, Dave?

That's how I come to get them twenty-five dollars that I got robbed of. When they looked over that film before they printed the pictures that are shown in the theaters they said that stuff of me getting chased by the lion and busting through the wire fence and throwing Flora in the mud and her setting on me was the best comedy stuff they'd got in a year, and they gave me and her twenty-five dollars extra.

I tell you it felt pretty good to have twenty-five dollars extra, and it all comes from being such a good movie actor, Dave, and when I was going home that day I met two men—and if they hadn't been two crooks and had paid me five dollars like they said they would, and I hadn't got robbed the way I did, I would have had thirty dollars extra.

When I came to a kind of lonesome place

In addition to the motion pictures giving us the best and cheapest form of entertainment in the world, the little strips of film have lengthened the expectation of life and increased the average weight of the human form, the "dopesters" say. This is because of the fun-makers of the films. The evolution of film fun is interesting. When the pictures were new, all of the performers came from the regular stage. The comedian came with his slapstick and his bag of tricks, old as the hills.

He found a new situation, however, and had to invent a new brand of fun making. Most of the moving pictures were staged out of doors, on board ship, on the top of mountains, on the shore, in the sea itself. The bewhiskered short comedian over the head with a club every time he told a joke while standing waist deep in the sad sea waves, was not only difficult, but it failed to get over.

Rough-house comedy was born; the chase, there was two men, one with a camera and the other with a handkerchief tied over the bottom of his face. They asked me what time it was, and I said I didn't have any watch, but it was about half past four, or maybe five o'clock, and they told me and help them stage a hold-up scene, but it looked like they wasn't coming, and one of them said: "You look like an actor. Do you want to make five dollars?"

I said, "I am an actor. I've got a diploma from a correspondence school that teaches movie acting by mail." And he said I was the man they wanted.

"Take off your coat," he said. "You are supposed to be an honest workman coming home to supper. You get hold up and lose your wages." I walked up the road a piece and took my coat off and carried it across my shoulder and the man with the handkerchief on his head and the man with the camera came up behind me and threw my coat over my head so I couldn't see and went through my pockets and took my twenty-five dollars, and the other man says, "Frisk him good, Bill."

Then he told me to fall to the ground like I was hurt, and I did, and he said: "That's still till I get some more film in the camera."

Pretty soon I unwrapped the coat from my head and both of the men were gone, and the camera was nothing but a box fixed up to look like one.

It made me so mad I just kicked it all to pieces, and then an automobile came along with three men and a policeman in it, and I told them about it and asked the policeman to help me catch them two crooks, and he just laughed and said he was a movie policeman that had been out taking pictures, but they took me in the automobile and we passed a saloon, and knock down, drag out, throw 'em in the river—anything to get a rise out of the audience.

This brand of fun making lasted a long time, too long a time, in fact. But while it was going on, a new form of fun making was being evolved, the real screen comedians were being made, until today there is a distinct kind of film comedy that is unlike anything the regular stage has ever offered us, and infinitely better.

Fay Tincher is one of the most notable and lovable movie fun makers. You will see the striped bathing suits and zebra coats and sweaters of the telephone operator and stenographer type created by this clever comedienne wherever moving pictures are shown. Miss Tincher is not only one of the exponents of the new brand of film fun, but she has created a distinct brand of her own.

Miss Tincher was born in Topeka, Kan., and had considerable experience on the regular stage before she joined the movies. She is a young woman of clear judgment, and she saw the opportunities of the pictures. She set about to build herself a following, which she has done with great success.

I saw them two crooks going in, and I wanted the actor with the policeman's clothes to go with me to arrest them, so they would think he was a policeman, but he was afraid he would get into trouble for acting like he was a policeman, but he loaned me his coat and hat and I went in the saloon where them crooks were drinking and grabbed the one that has the camera when they robbed me, and the other one ran away.

I took the one I got to the station house, about a block away, and the judge said: "What's all this? I never saw you before." And the crook says: "He's crazy, judge; he's found a coat and hat somewhere, and he thinks he's a policeman."

The judge looked at me and saw that I didn't have on no policeman's pants, and he says, "There's something wrong somewhere. I'll look you both up." And they put us both in jail.

Now everybody thinks I am a big boob to pull anything like that, all but Lucy. When I got home there was a letter from that girl that I sent the picture to, because she had got stuck on me from seeing me act, and it says that no man could win her heart that would drop her in the mud like I did. It was from Flora, the fat girl.

Lucy came in the room while I was reading the letter, and she says: "Gettin' mash notes, Tom? I guess you'll be going back on me pretty soon."

I said: "Does it look like I am going back on you when I let your old man get away with my $25 extra money and make me look like a big boob, just because I don't want to hurt your feelings?"

Lucy didn't have anything to say to that, but she grabbed a hold of my arm and kinds hugged it and ran out of the room before I could say another word. Well, so long, TOM.

ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS

All questions should be addressed to the Moving Picture Editor, care of this paper. Sign your name, but give initials or title to use in column.

E. L. FARMINGTON—R. C. and Carrie D.—Mail your sequel for "The Diamond from the Sky" to the American Film Company, 6227 Broadway, Chicago, Ill. Your sequels do not have to be typewritten, but they are easier to read if they are typed.

BUD—Thomas W. Ross was "Checkers" in the play of that name, and Katharine La Salle played opposite him. William Farnum is an American, and he will probably answer your letter if you address him in care of the Fox Film Corporation, 120 West Forty-sixth street, New York. In the Fox version of "Carmen," "Don Jose" was played by Eimer Linden.

L. K.—Very sorry, we have no synopsis of the story. It appeared in the paper, but if you have not read the story nor seen the films you would not understand enough about the play to write an acceptable sequel. By the time this is in print it will be too late to begin to try to see all the chapters before the contest closes.

PICTURE FAN—After Mme. Butterfly, Mary Pickford appeared in "The Foundling." William Courtleigh has played in a number of pictures besides "Neat of the Navy." His wife is Ethel Fleming, an actress. Most newspapers employ a staff of writers, who furnish the material printed, but if your story seems to fit any department, submit it to the editor of that department.

M. and G. B.—You would have to buy all the back numbers of the paper in which the story of "The Diamond from the Sky" was printed to get the complete story. The contest closes on February 20.

R. M.—There certainly is an actress in moving pictures by the name of Jewel Hunt. She is with the Vitaphone Company.

J. A.—Augustus Phillips plays with the Edith Company, 2826 Decatur avenue, New York.

L. J.—The Romance of Elaine was the last of the Elaine series, but the principal players in the Elaine stories, Pearl White, Creighton Hale, and Sheldon Lewis, will soon be seen in a new serial called "The Iron Claw."

A. NNA—That's right, never believe all you hear. Mary Pickford will not be 28 years old until the 8th of April, 1916, and Marguerite Clark is just 23. Pearl White has very beautiful Titan hair. She is still in her early 20s.

MARY L.—Marshall Neilan played opposite Marguerite Clark in "Mice and Men," and her exact age is 28 years. Charles Richman was the hero in "Heights of Hazard."

GRANDMA MOVIE FAN—Address Creighton Hale in care of Wharton Studios, Ithaca, N. Y. Since "The Blood of Our Brothers," Crane Wilbur has been seen in two other features, "Can a Man Do More" and "Vengeance Is Mine," and will soon appear in another. Watch the ads in the papers to find where these features can be seen. William E. Shay is still with the Fox Film Company, and has appeared in a number of pictures with Theda Bara, as "The Two Orphans," and "Sin."

B. OB—Cannot find Anna Mae Bradford, but have put her name down for further investigation.

E. DDIE—Pauline Frederick played "Bella Donna" in the play of that name, and Jewel Hunt played "Lillie" in "The Little Tresser." Camille Astor was "the duchess" in "Chimmie Fadden Out West," and Florence Dagmar was Betty Van Cortland. Miss Dagmar's address is care of Lasky Feature Play Company, Hollywood, Cal., and Miss Hunt's, Vitaphone Company, E. Fifteenth street and Locust avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

E. K.—Helen Gardner played "Madeline" in "Clothilde" in "A Breath of Araby." In "Cabrila" most of the players were Italian, as the feature was made in Italy, and no doubt considerable make-up was necessary for the players to personate the different tribes and nationalities of people represented in the picture. Umberto Moszato was "Fulvius Axilla," the Roman patrician, and Ernesto Paganini was "Maciste," his slave. Sorry, but we have not the complete cast of players in "Cabrila."

VIRGINIA PAGE—We have no information of the company you ask about.

M. E. S.—If the play was a Universal picture it was probably Ben Wilson who played the part you mention. It would be almost impossible to identify a play by giving the name of a character in it, unless the character's name and the title of the play were the same. As far as we know he is not married, and may be addressed at Universal Heights, New Jersey.

A. L. B.—Neither Ella Hall nor Robert Leach are married.

B. LAKE EYES, Arkansas—Jack Kerrigan is 25 years old, and is not married. Suggestions are welcome, but if you will look back a few weeks you will find that his picture appeared in the paper.

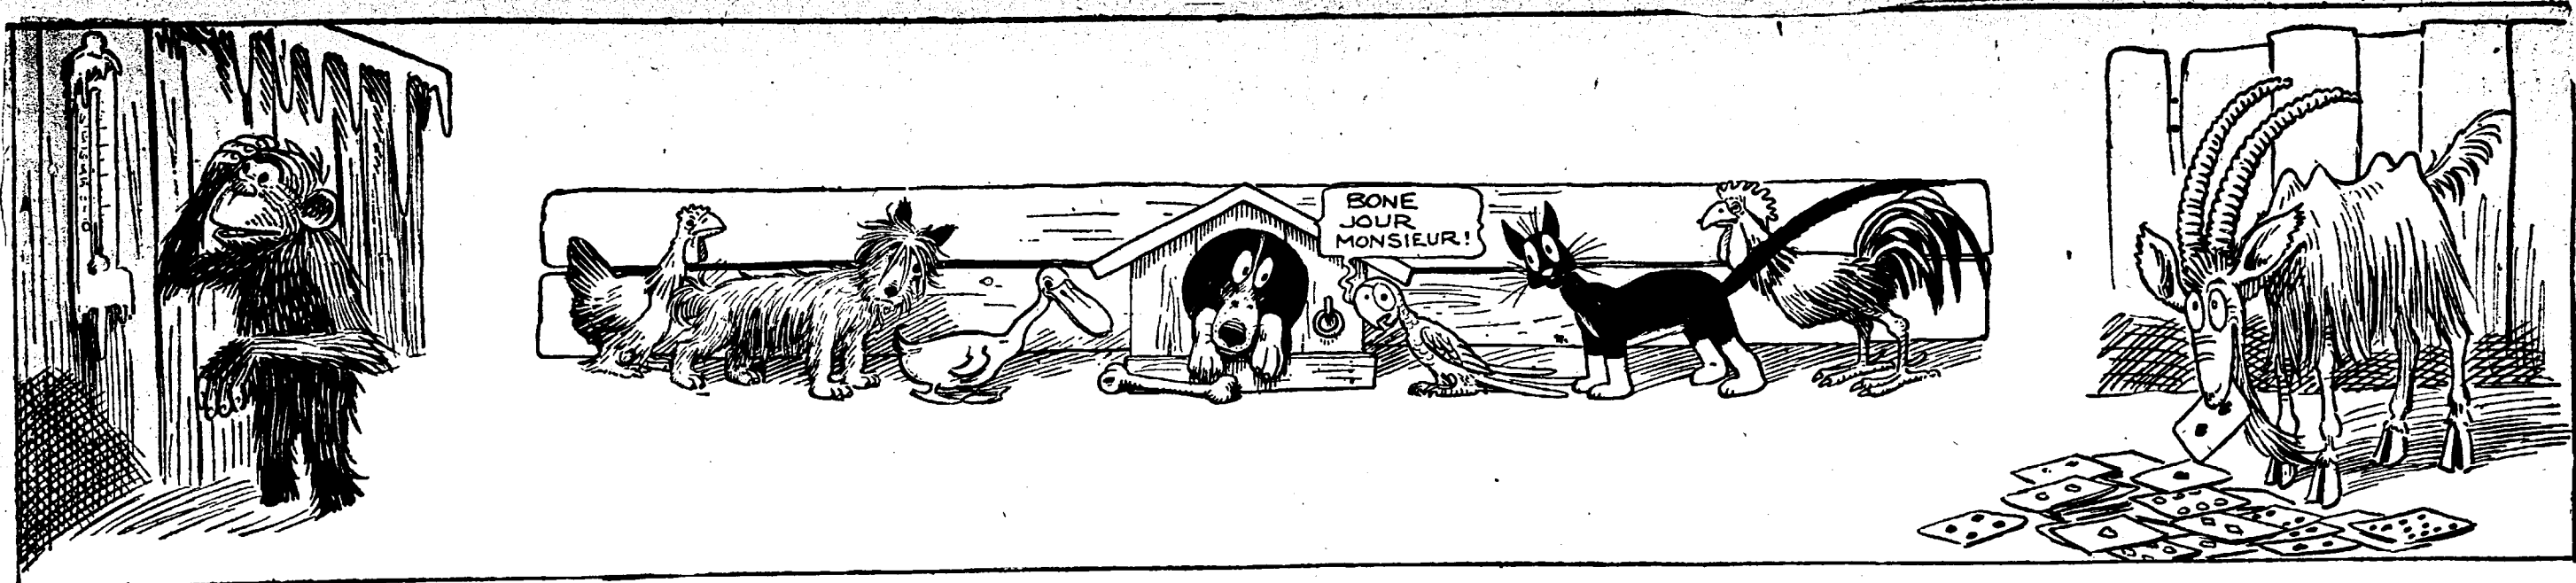

E. D.—House Peters has left the Lubin Company and has gone over to the World Film Corporation, 190 West Forty-sixth street, New York. Write to him at that address.

A. YOUNG MOVIE FAN—You are not at all troublesome, your question was very easy to answer. Bryant Washburn was "Brent" in "Pieces of the Game." Write him in care of Esanay, 1333 Argyle street, Chicago, Ill.

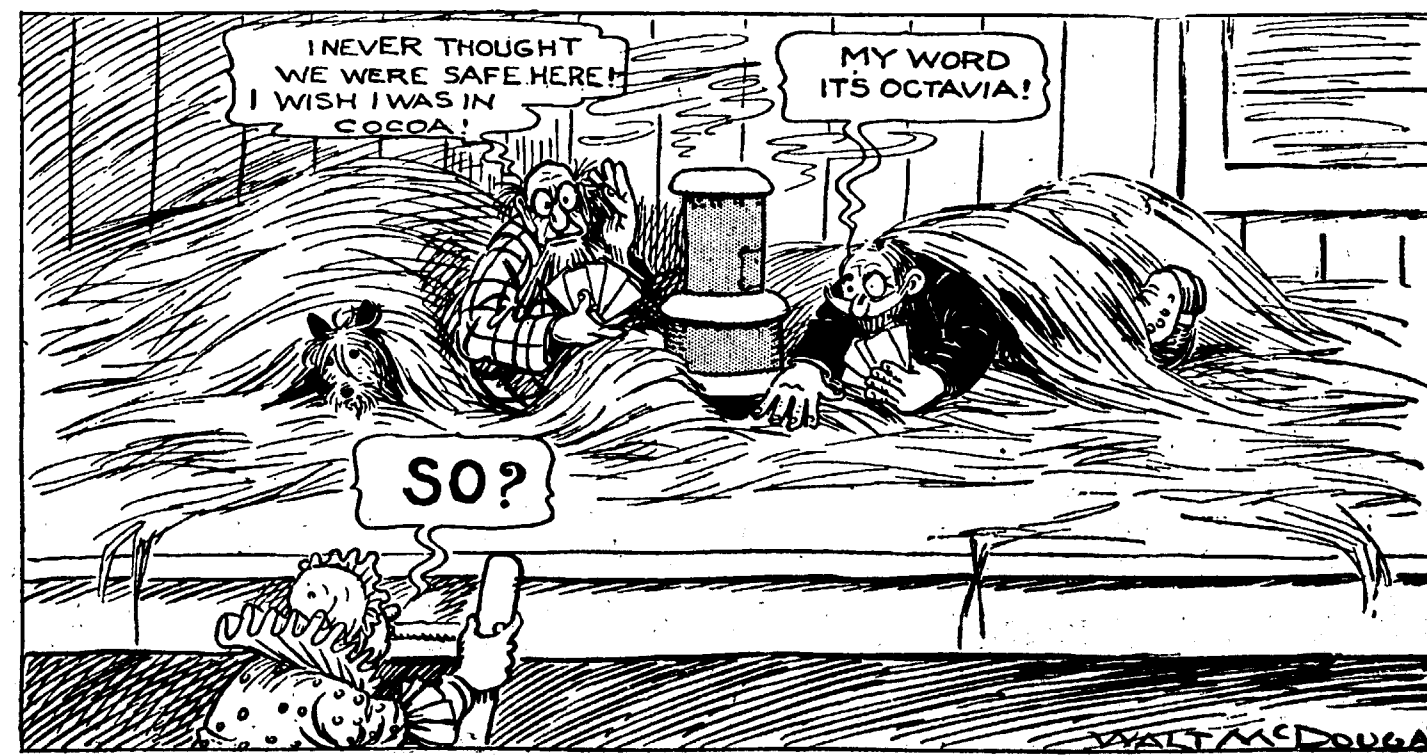

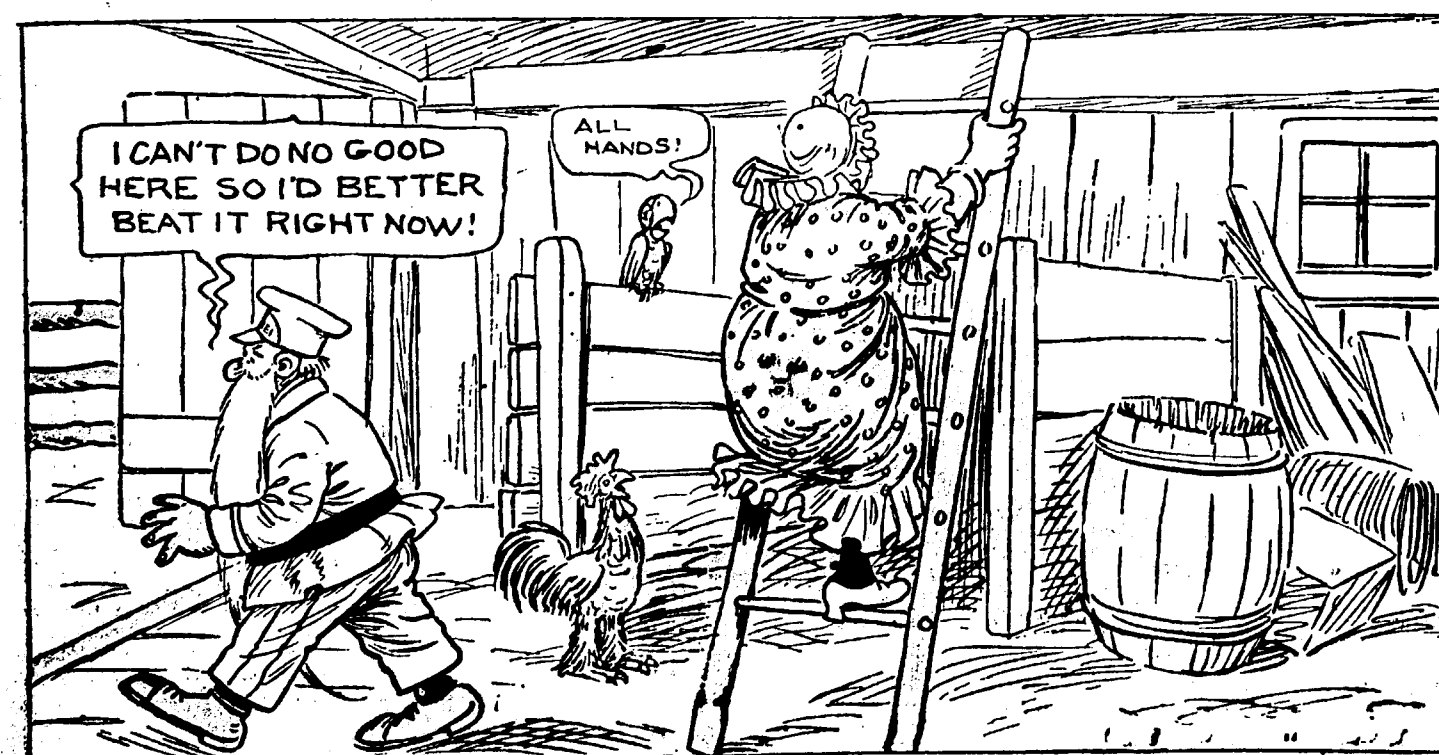

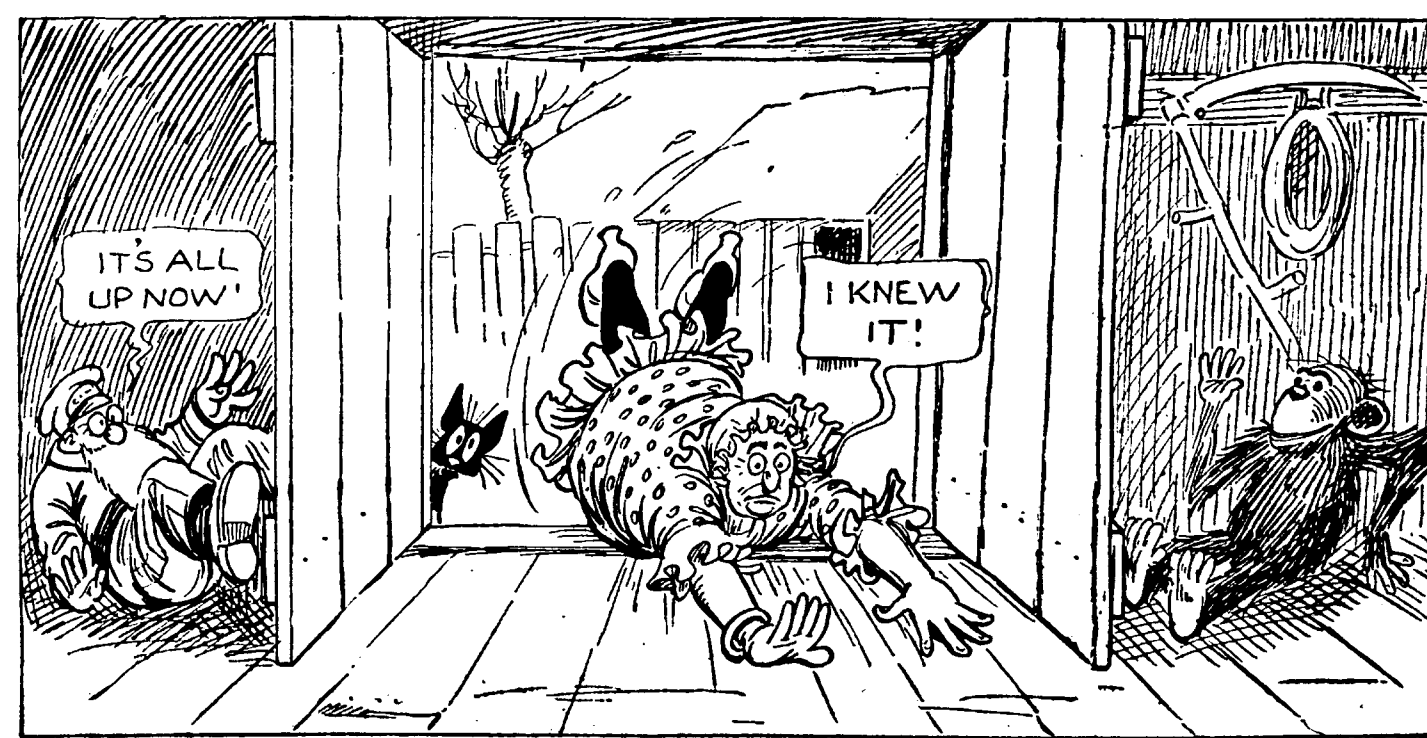

R. OKY—Charles Chaplin's address is 651 Fairview street, Los Angeles, Cal. Francis X. Bushman's is care of Metro Pictures Corporation, 1465 Broadway, New York.

S. WESTIE—Florence Lawrence is now with the Universal Company, working in "The Man from the Book of Marie Corelli." Mrs. Harry Solter in private life. Harry Washburn is married.

Mayor Hosey Thus Brands the Offer Made by the Traction Company.

Administration Will Consider Proposal for Public Lighting.

"It is partly a wrecking proposition, partly a bluff and partly a political campaign. Mainly, however, it is a wrecking proposition designed to badly cripple and if possible destroy the municipal electric light and power enterprise of this city."

In these words Mayor William J. Hosey characterized the proposal submitted to the board of works Friday afternoon by the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company to enter into a contract to light the streets of Fort Wayne for a period of ten years for $12,000 a year, moonlight schedule, and $21,000 a year for all of the lights all night and every night.

The proposition submitted by General Manager Sam W. Greenland points out that on the moonlight schedule the city will save a total of $395,430 and on the all night schedule a total of $305,453, for the ten-year period, as compared with the cost of public lighting based on the present rate of lighting maintained by the municipal department.

Will Consider Proposal.
The mayor said that the proposal contained so much that was mere claptrap, campaign matter, patently designed for use before the Indiana public service commission in its forthcoming hearing on lighting rates in Fort Wayne, that he and the board of works

Becomes Manager of Railroaders' Realty

A. B. LULEY.

Mr. Luley, who has just been chosen secretary and manager of the Railroaders Realty company, taking charge of his new position on Tuesday, has for some years been a traveling salesman for a Detroit stove concern, and prior to that time was connected with the Peckard store. He is well known in Fort Wayne, possesses a very large number of friends, and is regarded as a business man of unusual capability.

Leaves Fort Wayne to Go Into Business at Detroit

Albert D. Fox, for nearly twelve years superintendent of the big plant of the Perfection Biscuit company here, will leave Fort Wayne very soon to embark in business on his own account in Detroit, where in conjunction with Joseph Mills, of Brooklyn, he has organized the Mills-Fox Baking company. Mr. Fox tendered his resignation to the Perfection company in October last, but at the request of the directors of that organization he has deferred his departure until this time in order that his position as factory superintendent might be satisfactorily filled.

The Mills-Fox Baking company will be capitalized at $50,000, and it will produce high-grade baking specialties. It is erecting a modern plant at Fourth and Merriam streets in Detroit, and will have its product on the market in a few weeks. Both members of the new organization are practical men of long time experience in the business and close friends for many years. Mr. Fox has sold his home at 1308 West Wayne street to John C. Heller, and with his family will remove to Detroit about March 1.

Mr. Fox, who came to Fort Wayne from Chicago, is well known here and has many friends who will wish him

WANTS RED CROSS PREPARED, ALSO

Letter from President to Chicago Man is Made Public.

Washington, Feb. 18.—President Wilson in a personal letter to A. A. Sotague, II, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross, made public today an appeal for Chicago to lead in preparedness in the event the United States should become involved in war. The letter said in part:

"In case of war, the men who are prepared to give their lives for the defense of their country reserve to find the people they protect ready and prepared to care for the sick and wounded."

"A large, well organized, efficient Red Cross is essential. It is both a patriotic and human service that is rendered by every citizen who becomes a member of the Red Cross."

"I wish Chicago may set an example for the whole country in putting its Red Cross in a state of preparedness."

CAR SYSTEM IS TIED UP ON LEWIS LINE

The car and interurban system on the Lewis street car line was badly tied up Friday evening between 5 and half past 6 o'clock when the trolley wire from Jefferson to Lewis street on Clinton fell down. An Ohio Electric car which had been held up at the station for some time on account of other trouble, was in the middle of the square when the wires broke.

The trolley fell on the car and the passengers were frightened and all stood in the middle of the aisle for fear that the metal portions of the interior of the car might be charged. The people on the car who lived at New Haven, arrived there nearly an hour and a half late.

PLANS DISCUSSED FOR FIELD MEET

At a meeting of the boys of the Fort Wayne high school, Friday evening, at the high school building, it was decided to hold an athletic field meet in Fort Wayne this spring, the purpose being to revive the athletic spirit which has lain dormant for some years in the high school. Prof. Louis C. Ward presided at the meeting.

Three other schools in the vicinity of Fort Wayne will be invited to participate in the meet, which will consist of athletic sports of various kinds. It has not been determined what schools will be invited. Clarence Stillwell has been elected captain.

PURDUE STUDENTS TO TEST TRACTION LINE

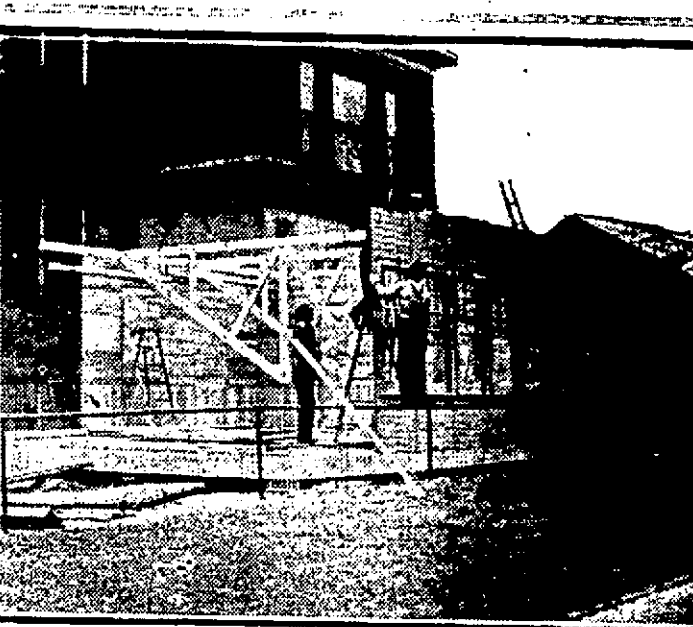

One hundred seniors in the electrical engineering department of Purdue university, Lafayette, will make a complete and thorough test of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company's electrical power Saturday night. The students will test the general transmission conditions, determining the transmission losses, drop in voltage and many other things connected with the operation of the road covering a total of 114 miles between Fort Wayne and Lafayette. Students will be placed at the various power stations and sub-stations and at different points along the line, the test to be made after midnight.

CHICAGO MEN WILL PUT ON PAGEANT

Announcement was made Saturday by Edward C. Miller, general chairman of the centennial celebration to be held in Fort Wayne early in June, that he would recommend the selection of Wallace Rice and Donald Robertson, of Chicago, to be put on the pageant in this city. Mr. Rice will write the pageant and Mr. Robertson will produce it. While no contract has been signed the selection of these two men, who made such a favorable impression on the executive committee during their recent visit here, is assured. They declare they will have no trouble in putting on the pageant by June, and have estimated the total cost not to exceed $15,000.

Announcement of the remainder of the committees will not be made for several days as there are several changes that will be made. A few of the committees have not been completed. Mr. Miller is desirous of getting on each committee men and women who will work, and when told to do something they will do it. It has been decided to incorporate the committees putting on the pageant, and Attorneys Martin Luccke and Harry Hogan were appointed to draw up the Washington, Feb. 18.—A $2,757,000 emergency appropriation for immediate necessary repairs of machinery in battleships, torpedo destroyers and submarines, to increase the supply of mines and, for the first time, to equip battleships with anti-aircraft guns, was asked of congress today by Secretary Daniels.

Justifies Wilson's Refusal.
Chairman Stone, of the foreign relations committee, replying today to criticism of President Wilson and Secretary Lansing for withholding a part of the data and correspondence called for in the full resolution, declared there were abundant precedents for such action and cited the action of President Taft and Secretary Knox in withholding correspondence between the United States and Colombia with relations to the partition of Panama.

"The situation presented now with regard to Mexico is similar," the senator said.

Plans to Banish Unemployment.
A proposal for a commission to formulate a plan for a national insurance fund and mitigate the evil of unemployment, was introduced today by Representative London, of New York. The only socialist member of the house would work out details of a national insurance fund to secure to workers adequate subsistence while involuntarily unemployed, whether because of lack of work, sickness or old age, and would report the plan to the president next September. The resolution proposes providing employment through the development and exploitation of national resources.

ALLEGED LOTTERY SCHEME EXPOSED

E. Davis Arrested on Affidavit Filed in Court of 'Squire Tancey.

E. Davis, representative of the Manhattan Garment company, of Dayton, Ohio, arrested on an affidavit filed in the court of Justice of the Peace Michael J. Tancey, charging him with conducting a lottery, has given bond in the sum of $100. His case will come up for trial on February 29. The allegation is made that Davis represented that a $30 suit of clothes may be purchased anywhere from fifty cents to $29.50, according to the tickets held by the purchaser.

The action was filed by the prosecuting attorney on complaint of Harry Kennerk, secretary of the Retail Merchants' association. He intimates that action will be taken against one or two others who have been operating in Fort Wayne in a similar manner. Davis has engaged attorneys and intends to fight the charges.

For Attorney Fees.
Benjamin F. Heaton filed suit in 'Squire Tancey's court Saturday, against Johanna Backofen for $25 alleged to be due for legal services rendered in connection with the purchase of a certain piece of real estate.

NOT CONVINCED THAT CELLARS ARE HARMFUL

New York, Feb. 18.—Dr. Haven Emerson, commissioner of health, of this city, is not convinced that dark rooms and cellar dwellings are a menace to health and has declined to support a legislative bill to prevent the rental of dark apartments in this city. Dr. Emerson told the members of the congestion committee in an address last night that he could not advocate a law making it illegal to rent cellars as dwellings. "So far as his department has been able to ascertain, he said, the mortality among children in dark rooms was not greater than among those in light rooms. There was such a divergence of opinion as to what constituted proper lighting and ventilation that it would be impossible to fix by law a standard which had not been even approximately determined by investigation he said.

TWO SUBSTITUTES NAMED.

Postmaster Edward C. Miller Saturday announced the appointment of two substitute city carriers as follows: Howard F. Hower, 1201 Phoebe avenue, and Alfred S. Heft, 133 West DeWald street.

ONE DRINK "REASONABLE AMOUNT" IN CHICAGO NOW

Chicago, Feb. 18.—One drink of whiskey, beer or wine is held by City Corporation Counsel Samuel Ettleson to be a reasonable amount and Chief of Police Healy is expected to issue an order today to restaurants where liquor is sold limiting patrons to one ordinary drink after 1 a. m., the hour at which barrooms are required to close. In order to be within the law also holds the drink must be ordered before 1, but may be consumed after that hour.

"The man who buys two drinks or more at once for himself in a restaurant immediately before the closing of the barrooms is trying to evade the law. I also believe the restaurant keeper who permits such a subterfuge can be convicted for violating the law."

According to the alleged confession Tony Sandrovich, 55, a farm hand employed near Benton Harbor, Mich., was slain for his money by repeated blows from an axe administered by Mrs. Zebrowski's husband, Sandrovich's employer, and Alex Metelski. MOVEMENT ON FOR CENTRALIZED SCHOOL

New School Building May Be Erected in New Haven in Near Future.

A movement has been inaugurated which may eventually result in the construction of a consolidated or centralized school building in Adams township to be located at New Haven. While the plans are in their infancy and there has been no concerted action such an effort is now being made.

At a recent meeting of the Teachers' Parent club at New Haven, D. O. McComb, county superintendent of school delivered an address on the centralized school in which he extolled the virtues of such a school and the greater amount of efficiency that could be secured than is possible in the one room school.

While slow to take hold of the centralized school idea it is not at all improbable that within the course of a very few years several centralized school buildings will be erected in Allen county. It is understood that for some time a movement has been on foot for such a school at Highland.

The new Lincoln school in Washington township the first real centralized school to be started in Allen county, has more than come up to the expectations of those who were in favor of it and many who were opposed to its erection are now convinced of their mistake and are enthusiastic boosters for it.

BIG DYE PLANT IS SAVED AFTER FIGHT

Bristol, Tenn., Feb. 18.—Explosion of a lantern early today at the plant of the Federal Dye and Chemical company, near Kingsport, Tenn., set fire to a chemical tank which threatened several buildings with destruction. Heroic work by employees prevented the flames from spreading, and officials say only one of the buildings was damaged. First reports were that the entire plant, valued at several millions, had been destroyed. The company, which manufactures picric acid, a base for high explosives, is a Delaware corporation, headed by A. B. DuPont. No estimate of the damage has yet been made, but it was not sufficient, it is said, to interfere with the work.

GERMAN CATHOLICS TO MAKE NO REPLY

Berlin, Feb. 18.—The Koehnische Volks Zeitung says it can state authoritatively that the German Catholic bishops will make a reply to the joint letter of the bishops of Belgium which reiterated instances of atrocities alleged to have been committed in Belgium and recounted the grievances of the people of Belgium and proposed an investigation by the German prelates.

The Volks Zeitung adds: "We are convinced that the Berlin refusal is due to the desire of Pope Benedict that differences of this kind be avoided. The refusal is also quite comprehensible since the letter only tends to increase the present political excitement among the Belgian people."

LAND OWNERS MUST PAY FOR EDUCATION

El Paso, Texas, Feb. 18.—The Carranza government, according to Moises Saenz, director of education in the state of Guanajuato, is compelling large land owners throughout Mexico to pay the principal cost of educating the rural population of the country. These land owners, Mr. Saenz states, are required to provide school houses and pay the teachers. The government supplies text books and other requisites. Thousands of such schools, he said, have recently been established and the American system of public education is liberally applied. "We are rapidly substituting the American system of education for the French method formerly in vogue in Mexico," said Mr. Saenz, who is in Juarez today.

Housewives Profit When Grocers Stage Egg War

Freighted finance is faded, business hoarding is busted and Wall street is walked on in a price war in progress on South Calhoun street Saturday. In two squares on South Calhoun street there are four groceries, all neck and neck, and all working as outlying business houses have to work to defeat competition. Saturday morning the proprietors hung out signs proclaiming that eggs would sell at 25c a dozen. Then a business mind in one of the establishments got to work and the price mark on his front window was reduced, hen fruit being quoted at 24 cents at his food-stuff emporium. Three other business men heard of the flank attack within a few minutes

GIVE WARNING TO STATION AGENT

Marion Woman Asks Leniency for Husband Whom She Prosecuted.

Kendallville, Ind., Feb. 18.—Two boys, Howard and Henry Swanders, eight and ten respectively, prevented the wrecking of passenger train No. 7, on the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad today, when they found a badly broken rail near Swan, just thirty minutes before the train was due. The rail was broken in two and out of position.

As the train usually passes that point at a high speed, a disastrous wreck might have resulted if the train had not been stopped. The boys warned the agent at Swan and the passenger train was held up until the track could be repaired. The cold is believed to have caused the break in the rails.

POTASSIUM CYANIDE WAS THE DRUG USED

Chemists Report on Poison Which Caused Death of Miss Lambert.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Cyanide of potassium was the poison which killed Marion Frances Lambert, Lake Forest high school girl, according to a report made to the coroner today by Ralph C. Webster. Dr. Webster said the digestive organs showed no trace of an admixture of chemicals. The white crystals found under the finger nails of the girl were originally cyanide of potassium, he said.

The report is to be read Monday at the inquest into the cause of the death of the young woman.

Dr. Webster is analyzing crystals of cyanide and other poison found in a plant in the greenhouse at the home of Will H. Orpet, who is charged with the murder of Miss Lambert.

The contention of the state is that Orpet, who was a former admirer of Miss Lambert, made a secret trip with her in the woods, where her body was found, and did not leave her until after she was dead.

WILSON NOW AWAITS WORD FROM FRANCIS

Washington, Feb. 18.—Response from David R. Francis, of St. Louis, as to whether he would accept the ambassadorship to Russia was awaited by President Wilson today. In offering Mr. Francis the post the president urged him to accept.

Mr. Francis, who was secretary of interior in the Cleveland administration would succeed George T. Mayne, who has announced that he will retire because of ill-health. The Petrograd post is regarded as a very important one, particularly at the present time, because of questions arising out of the war.

and the original cutter soon found himself quoting the strictly fresh country product a cent higher than the market, for the others were down to 23c. Soon one cut and then another and their prices sank below wholesale quotations, until the well known and highly respected ultimate consumer was procuring the fruit of the poultry at prices away below what farmers get at their very roots. At noon one man had reduced to 18c, and the others were quoting at one cent higher. And in the midst of this carnage of battle, unfeeling southside housewives were strong for preparedness, and were storing munitions for many a breakfast, while the bellicious whacked and slaughtered.

GETTING READY TO MEET MAYOR HOSEY

Lakeside Committee Will Confer With Chairman Agne Sunday.

Councilman Jacob Agne, of the First ward, chairman of the Lakeside Civic Improvement association's special committee, has called a meeting of that body to be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon in his residence, 1222 Delta boulevard for the purpose of making arrangements for a conference with Mayor W. J. Hosey early next week. Besides Councilman Agne the members of the committee are T. J. Logan, Lew W. Sharp, W. D. Henderson, O. E. Richards, John Reising, Henry F. Buller, and Harry Muller. This committee was appointed at the mass meeting in Lakeside school house last Monday night and was empowered to take such action as it may see fit respecting conditions in Lakeside. One of the things for which the committee was created is to demand that Mayor Hosey return to the park board the key to the valve that connects Delta lake with the Maumee river. The board of works now has custody of this key. Mayor Hosey has repeatedly stated that he is awaiting the appearance of the committee and it is expected that the conference Sunday will perfect arrangements for the early accommodation of the chief executive.

SCORES OF BONDS INVALID. Board of Safety Preparing New Ones for Firemen and Policemen.

Scores of bonds of members of the Fort Wayne fire and police departments have been found to be invalid by reason of the death of sureties or from other causes and pursuant to an order of the board at its meeting Friday night new bonds are being prepared by D. C. McCarthy, clerk to the board. These will be perfected as soon as possible and filed with the city comptroller. According to the list furnished the board the bonds of forty-four firemen and of twenty-five policemen are impaired and will be substituted with new bonds. In the case of some of the policemen the new bonds are required because of change in rank which requires higher bonds. In numerous instances sureties on bonds are dead.

The board approved plans for remodeling police headquarters so as to bring all the offices facing on Barr street. The improvements have been contemplated for some time and will probably be ordered by the board of works. The board of safety also ordered advertisements for the motorization of the equipment at engine house No. 1.

MAYOR CHALLENGES AGNE. Asks That Lakeside Matters Be Submitted to Investigation.

Mayor William J. Hosey has issued a public statement, meant the controversy over matters in Lakeside and the mass meeting of citizens held last Monday night, in which he replies to the published version of conditions as set forth by Councilman Jacob Agne, of the First ward, and he challenges Mr. Agne to come forth with the proof of his charges or to keep his peace. The mayor says he is "watchfully waiting" for the appearance of the Lakeside grievance committee and proposes that Mr. Agne get the members of the committee, of which the councilman is chairman, and meet the mayor, the city engineers and invited representatives of the newspapers and together make an investigation as to what the truth is respecting affairs in Lakeside. The mayor says if he is proved to be in the wrong he will make a public acknowledgment of error and asks that, vice versa, Mr. Agne do the same.

WILL BID ON SEWER.

Messrs. J. B. Sheets and A. W. Cundell of the Sheets Construction company, Pittsburg, Pa., have been in the city examining the plans and specifications for and the territory to be served by the big east end main sewer, for which the board of works will receive bids March 9. The company will probably submit a proposal. The Sheets company has taken over the work of the south side main sewer from the S. L. Sheets company and is completing it at the instance of the surety company that gave bond for the S. L. Sheets company.

and the officials of the city lighting department had not yet had time to sift out the concrete business proposals from the mass of extraneous and irrelevant arguments with which they were accompanied.

The mayor stated, however, that the proposal would be thoroughly analyzed and carefully considered. It was recognized, said the mayor, that on the face of the proposal it meant a big saving in the item of public illumination, but he declared there were considerations just as important and more vital.

Figures Are Accountants', Not City's. "The great bulk of Mr. Greenland's communication to the board of works is an argument, not a proposal," said Mayor Hosey. "There is vast attention to the figures shown in a report that is accredited to Secretary-Manager John Wessel, of the city lighting department. These figures are not Mr. Wessel's any more than they are Mr. Greenland's or my own. They are the results of months of examination and investigation by the field agents of the Indiana public accounting board. The entire showing and exhibit, together with all the findings and conclusions based on them, are of the examiners and not of Manager Wessel."

"When we shall have had time to thoroughly sift this proposal it will not have precisely the appearance it has on its face," continued Mayor Hosey. "It is very evidently designed to exert influence on the public mind against the municipal lighting plant, that has been built and developed to a splendid financial and economic success as well as vast public utility by the people's money. It also is purposed, unquestionably, to influence the mind of the public service commission."

Sees Attempt to Wreck. "The bare proposal itself is an attempt to wreck the city enterprise. If the Traction company can force the city to do the public lighting at a loss that would mean to cripple the plant, deplete its revenues and tie the hands of the city in its competition for commercial business by making a further reduction of commercial rates for light and power impossible."

"The city lighting plant forced a reduction of commercial rates from 10 cents to 7 cents. It brought the price of public lighting from $70 to little more than $50 per year and is furnishing three times the illumination that the city got by private contract. The lighting plant has paid back into the pockets of the people—patrons of the Traction company as well as patrons of the city—more than the sum taken by tax levy for the construction of the plant and that has been done by forcing reduction of rates. The municipal plant is worth twice what the people have paid for it and the balance has been met out of the revenues. I do not believe the people are yet ready to abandon an asset and utility of such tremendous economic and monetary value."

"Nevertheless, the Traction company's proposal will be minutely examined and carefully considered."

Says It Is Genuine Proposal. General Manager Sam W. Greenland, of the Traction company, asserted Saturday that the proposal made to the city was framed with the most serious intention and submitted with the utmost good faith.

"We have an immense capacity for producing current that we are not using. We want to use it and sell the product. The city will make us a good customer and we can save it an immense lot of money in the next ten years," said Mr. Greenland.

Mayor Hosey stated that himself, the board of works and the heads of the lighting department would take the proposal under examination and consideration at the earliest possible moment.

WASHINGTON CHAFES AT BRITISH DELAY

Impatient Over Failure to Receive Reply to U. S. Note.

Washington, Feb. 19.—State department officials are impatient at Great Britain's delay in replying to the notes concerning the trading with the enemy act and interferences with mails.

The London foreign office some time ago promised a reply to the mail note but nothing has been heard of the American protest against interfering trading with the enemy act.

Indications in official quarters today were that Germany's reply to the request of the United States that the Teutonic powers modify their announced intention to sinking without warning all armed merchant ships of the enemy after Feb. 29 will be a statement that assurances given in the Lusitania and Arabic cases has to do only with unarmed vessels; that Germany feels certain that its submarines which warn armed merchant ships will be attacked and this country will be asked for its definition of defensive armament. It was considered certain that the problem of defining defensive armament will be the basis of lengthy negotiations.

BANK WILL REFUSE TO GIVE ITS DATA

Chicago Concern Declines to Yield to the Senate Committee.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Arthur Reynolds, vice president of the Continental and Commercial National bank, when informed of the decision of the senate committee to ask for a statement from the bank showing the International Harvester company's deposits said today that the request would be refused. "We question the authority and jurisdiction of the senate committee and will refuse to open our books to the committee until so directed by a competent court," said Mr. Reynolds. "For a long period," continued Mr. Reynolds, the International Harvester company has carried a considerable balance with us and there has been no marked decrease in the amount of the deposit. I do not consider that the bank has been 'disciplined' in any manner by the harvester company."

THE COMMITTEE ACTION.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The senate agricultural committee today decided to call upon the Continental and Commercial National bank of Chicago to submit a statement showing the deposits of the International Harvester company for the last three years in order to determine the truth of charges that the harvester company had disciplined the Chicago bank for extending financial aid to the fiscal growers of Yucatan.

Welter charged today that the Harvester company had sought by intimidation to prevent the National City bank, of New York, as well as the Continental from loaning money to aid fiscal growers.

STRICKEN BY HEART FAILURE.

R. A. Brockway, recently of Fort Wayne, dies in Auburn.

Auburn, Ind., Feb. 19.—Heart failure snuffed out the life of R. A. Brockway, aged 77 years, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. B. Hawley, Friday. He took the grip the first of the month, but was very much improved Thursday and walked down town. He seemed in good health Friday morning, but passed away very suddenly. Death was due to a weak heart. The deceased with his wife and their daughter and family, came to Auburn last April from Fort Wayne. Mr. Hawley is connected with the Union Automobile company. Mr. Brockway was born in West Haven, Vermont, August 6, 1838. He was married to Ada S. Adams at Fairhaven, Vermont, February 5, 1861, and they lived together for 55 years. One daughter was born to them, and there is a grandson, besides the relatives already mentioned left to mourn him. Most of Mr. Brockway's life was spent in Madison, Wisconsin. He has always been greatly interested in Masonry and that order will have charge of the funeral which will be held Monday afternoon from the house. They will be assisted by Rev. F. F. Thornburg, who will preach the sermon. Burial will be made here.

TEN YEARS INVALID; DIES.

Columbia City, Ind., Feb. 19.—Jacob Born, for forty years a resident of Thornecreek township, living near the Whitley-Noble county line, passed away Friday death being due to a complication of diseases. Ten years ago Mr. Born suffered a stroke of paralysis, and since that time he has been an invalid, remaining in his bed or sitting up in a chair most of the time. He was cared for by his family during his long sickness, and his wants were faithfully looked after. Jacob Born was born in Ohio and spent his early life there, and at the time of his death was seventy-two years old. He grew to young manhood at home and during the last year of the Civil war served as a private in an Ohio company. After the war he moved to this state and took up his residence in Whitley county, later becoming owner of a farm in Thornecreek township.

PIERCETON MAN ARRESTED.

Warsaw, Ind., Feb. 19.—Charles Cox, alias C. R. and C. L. Loney and "My Valitt" formerly employed in this city in the Parnell tailor shop and whose home is in Pierceton, has been arrested at Bloomer, Wis., on information furnished by C. B. Moon. A search of his shop at the time of his arrest revealed a complete set of burglar's tools along with a great amount of plunder taken in robberies committed in towns around St. Paul, Minn., and northern Wisconsin. For some time Officer Moon has been trying to locate Cox as he was wanted for the robbery of the Brosnahan and Radcliffe stores in Pierceton last summer. Cox was first arrested in this city in 1904 for robbing two stores at Larwill and was convicted and sentenced in Columbia City.

MARRIAGE RECALLS MURDER.

Bluffton, Ind., Feb. 19.—The announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Lucy Terrell Wolfe, daughter of John W. Terrell, of Nottingham township, and Lawrence Johnson, of Sumner, recalls vividly to Wells county people the tragedy of the bride's first marriage, to Edwin Wolfe. Her first husband was shot and killed by her father, in 1903, and there followed one of the most sensational murder trials ever held in the county. Mrs. Wolfe and Mr. Johnson, according to the announcement, were married last Saturday, in Kentucky. They departed quietly and facts of the marriage did not become known until their return this week. They will reside in Muncie.

SLEUTHS SEEK FIREBUGS.

Hartford City, Ind., Feb. 19.—A secret service man from the United States department of justice, was in Hartford City, it was learned, making investigations as to the whereabouts of the DeLumpkie brothers, suspected of being implicated in plots which are alleged to have resulted in the recent explosions in the DuPont Powder company's plants. The secret service department has traced the brothers to this city, where they met several days ago. From here the trail was lost. It is believed, however, that the pair will be under arrest soon.

FLYING STEEL BREAKS JAW.

Huntington, Ind., Feb. 19.—William B. Dunn, formerly of Huntington, is in a critical condition in the Ford hospital in Detroit, as a result of an accident in the Ford plant for days ago. While engaged at work on one of the machines in the plant, Dunn was struck in the face by a piece of steel from a broken machine. The steel struck Dunn under the eye in three different places, and another piece cracked the jaw bone. The piece which struck him under the eye became imbedded in the bone.

WANT BETTER LINE ROAD.

Ashley, Ind., Feb. 19.—Petitions are being circulated and freely signed for the grading of the road running east from Ashley, which splits DeKalb and Steuben counties. For years this road between Ashley and Hamilton has been dodged by all who knew its reputation, excepting those who were forced to use it. The hack line from Steubenville to Ashley has been the butt of jokes from the traveling public because of the condition of this road. But the road itself was far from being a joke. If people up this way wanted to drive to Hamilton it was rare, indeed, if the county line road was good enough.

His resignation was quite a surprise to his many patrons and friends.

Portland, Ind., Feb. 19.—While attempting to thaw a frozen gas main at the C. W. Hardy home, Jap Hughes, an employee of the Union Heat, Light and Power company, was severely burned about the face and hands when the gas exploded. He was using a hot iron rod to thaw the pipe and it is presumed that friction caused by the two irons coming in contact caused a spark that ignited the gas.

GREAT BRITAIN BIG BUYER

Uses Three Times as Much American Products as Any Other Country

Washington, Feb. 19.—Great Britain is using three times as much American products as any other foreign country and is absorbing more than one-third of all American exports. Export trade figures made public today by the department of commerce show that British purchases of all kinds in the United States last year amounted to $1,191,000,000.

France holds second place among America's customers, with purchases last year of about $500,000,000; Canada is third with $344,000,000, and Italy fourth with $250,000,000.

Great Britain's 1915 purchases were double in value of those of 1914; France's tripled, and so did Italy's and those of Greece. Exports to European neutrals increased 20 to 75 per cent., except in the case of Sweden, which bought $80,000,000 worth, or three times as much as the year before.

Exports to Mexico grew from $33,000,000 in 1914 to $41,000,000; Argentina, $27,000,000 to $32,000,000; Brazil, $23,000,000 to $34,000,000; Chile, $13,000,000 to $17,000,000.

Chinese purchases decreased from $20,000,000 to $10,000,000; the Japanese bought $45,000,000 in 1915, compared with $41,000,000 the year before.

New Mexico broke all records for metal production last year, the output of its mines being officially estimated at $18,277,000 in value.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Psalm 57:1-11.

1 Be merciful unto me, O God, be merciful unto me; for my soul trusteth in thee; yea, in the shadow of thy wings will I make my refuge until these calamities be overpast.

2 I will cry unto God most high; unto God that performeth all things for me.

3 He shall send from heaven, and save me from the reproach of him that would swallow me up. Selah. God shall send forth his mercy and his truth.

4 My soul is among lions; and I lie even among them that are set on fire, even the sons of men, whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongues a sharp sword.

5 Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens; let thy glory be above all the earth.

6 They have prepared a net for my steps; my soul is bowed down; they have digged a pit before me, into the midst whereof they are fallen themselves. Selah.

7 My heart is fixed, O God, my heart is fixed; I will sing and give praise.

8 Awake up, my glory; awake, psaltery and harp; I myself will awake early.

9 I will praise thee, O Lord, among the people; I will sing unto thee among the nations.

10 For thy mercy is great unto the heavens, and thy truth unto the clouds.

Worth Looking Into.

The formal offer of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company just submitted to the board of public works in which it indicates its willingness to take over the task of lighting Fort Wayne's streets for the term of ten years at a figure which it declares will save the city something more than $39,000 per annum during that time, is worth looking into. It is on its face a square business proposition, and even the most pronounced friend of the municipal lighting proposition will insist that the situation be analyzed in order that the people may know which is the better for them—not on paper showing, merely, but in actual practice, with all the dips, spurs and angles thereunto appertaining.

The traction company makes the contention that the figures of the city authorities showing a very considerable saving in the cost of street lighting as a result of the construction of the municipal plant are misleading because of a failure to take cost charges into proper account in its computations, and that as a matter of fact the municipal service is not so cheap as it seems. The traction company was reluctant, of course, to see Fort Wayne embark in the municipal lighting enterprise, and its experts conducted a campaign of publicity designed to discourage the construction of the system. It is still able to see it only as a losing game for the city. Yet the system was installed in response to a very plain and very overwhelming popular demand, and there has been no indication that the people have either changed their mind or regretted their action. They are still the staunch friends of the municipal lighting idea.

But the proposal of the traction company is too definite and its promises of saving to the people as a plain business proposition too important to be ignored. Their figures as to the costs of the municipal system are either accurate or inaccurate. Either the city or the lighting corporation is in error as to the net showing made by the city's plant—a variance that arises from the question of what constitutes expense that should be taxed against receipts for the service rendered. On its face the offer of the traction company is entitled to unbiased consideration.

The new mothers' pension law, enacted by the last session of the Kansas legislature, is apparently being ignored in that state, some sixty out of the one hundred and five counties refusing to comply with its provisions. In taking such a course, too, these sixty Kansas counties are setting an extremely bad example that is likely to show more serious fruits a little later. It is brooding a mild variety of anarchy by ignoring a law which it doesn't happen to like instead of setting out to secure its repeal. Nothing is more inimical to good government than the practice of permitting either counties or individuals to elect for themselves which laws they will observe and which they will simply ignore.

The courts at Grand Rapids have just held that the government has established no ground for the extradition of half a dozen or more men from Michigan for trial on charges of responsibility in connection with the Eastland disaster at Chicago—and for a time immediately following the horror it seemed that it was going to be difficult for any citizen of either Illinois or Michigan would have a difficult time in escaping at least some measure of blame for the horror.

Prof. Louis W. Fairfield, of Angola, candidate for the republican nomination for congress, is credited with having declared in an address at Kendallville that "you can't laugh Woodrow Wilson off the map nor lay him aside with a sneer." The Angola man is plainly wise in his generation—a fact that is going to be impressively emphasized when the presidential votes are counted next November.

Members of the Oklahoma legislature, in the course of a riotous session, hurled inkwells and paper weights at each other, and a miscellaneous assortment of broken heads and broken facial landscapes is the result. Still, that may be Oklahoma's conception of statesman-like deliberation.

Down at Vincennes one man has just been sentenced to from two to fourteen years in prison for shooting another, while the man whom he shot was given a similar term on his plea of guilty to the charge of passing a forged check. Now if everybody's happy, let us proceed to the next item in the order of business.

Publishers of a London journal have just been fined for printing a cartoon which displeased the authorities. Happily no such custom is in vogue in this country, or our eminent cartoonists would spend most of their time in jail.

MILK AS A BRACER

(Philadelphia Press)

The Pasteur institute of Paris has just made the declaration that one of the most powerful stimulants known is milk. It has been in use for months now as the one stimulant for the French soldiers in the trenches, and its effect on them has amply justified the statement made by the famous institute in regard to it.

Milk has been used liberally to stimulate the French soldiers before they go into battle and its effects have been such that the French government has urged the sale of milk, in preference to other soft drinks, behind the trenches when the soldiers go off duty for their periods of rest and recreation.

That the qualities of stimulation should be demonstrated on the fighting men should commend the beverage to those engaged in the pursuits of peace in those parts of the world where Mars does not now rule. While alcohol may fire the brain and dull the sensibilities and thus impart a false courage, milk, according to the learned scientists of the Pasteur institute, performs the work of keeping up the individual without affecting the keenness of his senses nor the coolness of his judgment. This is necessary to the mode of warfare which this war has exemplified, but it is no less necessary to the man working in the office, in the studio, in the mill, on the farm or elsewhere in the battle for a living. High courage and a clear perception of what they are doing is necessary for the best work in all the arts and professions, as well as in the handicrafts and in trade.

This fluid hitherto has been considered synonymous with all that is mild and peaceful. Advocates of preparedness have referred to "those milk-and-water pacifists." The "milk of human kindness" has no suggestion of powerful stimulation.

But science has discovered, among its many wonders, that the patient cow has put a punch in milk that necessitates the addition of no product of the still to make itself felt on the human system. It has discovered a new and a harmless "bracer."

BARLEYCORN'S INTOLERANCE

(Indiana Daily Times)

Our long-time undesirable citizen, John Barleycorn, and his side partner, Unbridled License, sometimes incorrectly styled "Personal Liberty," throw "convulsion" fits whenever citizens take action looking to the sane and honest cleansing of any unclean community.

Not long ago several Indiana citizens bestowed on Indiana senators and representatives at Washington sundry sheaves of petitions asking the people's congressmen to vote and work in favor of a dry District of Columbia. It is the plan of anti-saloon forces to oust saloons from the nation's capital thus, nationally, setting an example of cleanliness to other cities. It seems to us it would be highly desirable to make the nation's capital as nearly as possible a wholesome, model, exemplary municipality, not only in government but in morality and law enforcement. It seems to us it is entirely natural for citizens of the United States to take pride in their capital and to take pride also in any movement that seeks to clean up that capital. The Lake County Times, in discussing petitions sent by Indiana folk to Senator Kern, touching the subject of a dry District of Columbia, roundly abuses the citizens signing the petitions, decries their interest in their country's seat of government and insists they are "busybodies," and "hypocritical gentry." How does the Times know any "hypocritical gentry" signed these petitions? If to take an interest in the well-being of our nation's capital city is to be a "busybody," then all the busybodies. We need more of them.

Church Sunday

ONE HUNDRED YOUNG MEN ENJOY BANQUET

Agogas Hosts to Adroits at Meeting at First Baptist Church.

The Adroit Bible class of the Third Presbyterian church enjoyed a banquet at the expense of the Agogas, a similar organization of the latter church. But nevertheless the enjoyment was not all for the Adroits for the Agogas were just as full of mirth and laughter as the members of the other class, during the course of the banquet.

The banquet was given as a result of an attendance contest which was waged between the two organizations several months ago. However, as was brought out in several of the addresses given the real reason for waging a contest was not the mere idea of getting something to eat in this manner, but for the purpose of getting more men interested in Bible class work.

The menu was headed "An Unusual Banquet," and such it proved to be. The first course was named "Spissierinkum Koktail," which proved to be a glass of hydrogen-dioxide or in other words plain water. Immediately after this course the progress of the evening's fun was supplemented by the appearance of "Rastus" impersonated by William Glenn Trevey, the entertainer for the Agogas. From that time on jokes and wit flowed freely.

After a wait of ten or fifteen minutes which time was beguiled by no one present, a real-for-sure banquet of three courses was served. The Adroits class an organization of young ladies of the church, were the center of the evening.

The speakers and the subjects on the program were "The Agoga Spirit," by Adolph Welker; "Personality," Owen Edwards; "Our Motto," Earl Paxton; "Qualities of Men," G. Howard Downer; "Children That Win," Rev. E. Montgomerie; "Petering," Rev. C. H. Snashall. Several musical selections interspersed the addresses.

1,200 REPUBLICANS ATTEND LOVE FEAST

Enthusiastic Meeting is Held at Kendallville Friday Evening.

Kendallville, Ind., Feb. 19.—More than 1,200 republicans from all parts of the Twelfth congressional district listened to the feast of oratory here last evening at the meeting following a banquet at which four hundred and fifty were seated. It was by far the largest republican meeting Kendallville ever has seen and there was no end of enthusiasm. The banquet was served by the Pythian Sisters and those who could not participate in it were accommodated at the two hotels. The speaking was held in the opera house, which was crowded to overflowing. As a matter of fact the aisles became so crowded and the smoke so intense that Fire Chief Kime had to take a hand. All aisles were ordered cleared and he put a stop to the smoking.

Each of the congressional candidates spoke. Charles R. Lane was given a most enthusiastic ovation when he arose to speak. Boosters for Robert B. Hanna were very much in evidence and they did not hesitate to make their presence known. A large delegation went from this city in Mr. Hanna's interest. Professor L. W. Fairfield and his friends were also there. The professor made a short address.

The other speakers were: D. A. Meyers, candidate for judge of the supreme court; D. N. Hines, Horace Ellis, Frank Heighway and H. C. Keppeler, candidate for state auditor; Julius Freedman, candidate for lieutenant governor; E. J. Robinson, who represented James P. SECOND IN UNIQUE SERIES OF SERMONS

"Those who had the pleasure at the First Presbyterian church last Sunday evening of listening to Rev. C. C. Travis, of Wayne Street Methodist church, as he spoke of the beliefs and spirit of the church of which he is minister," said H. B. Master, pastor of the First church, today are looking forward with immense interest to the rest of the series of addresses on the Creeds of the churches. It certainly is an unusual opportunity which is offered to the people of Fort Wayne who are interested in these matters; the opportunity to hear representatives of all the larger churches give an authoritative statement of the creeds or beliefs of those churches. And the whole series has been planned with the idea that to know what another man believes is to go a long way toward dispelling prejudice and bigotry.

"It is with much pleasure that many are looking forward to the second in this series of addresses, the address which will be delivered next Sunday evening at the First Presbyterian church by the Rev. M. C. Tunison, the brilliant young pastor of the South Side Baptist church, who is to speak on "What the Baptist Church Believes."

NOTES

The closing social affairs to be given in honor of Miss Constance Keplinger and her fiancé, Thomas Payson Ewing, will be during the early part of the coming week. Miss Keplinger's aunt and sister, Mrs. Charles T. Pidgeon, of this city, and Mrs. W. H. Kelly, of Cleveland, are to give a luncheon for the bridal party at the Anthony hotel on Tuesday. A farewell dinner will be given for Mr. Ewing by Kenneth McDonald.

Miss Ruth Evans of Old Fort Place, gave an extremely pretty Washington party this afternoon as a compliment to Miss Keplinger. Auction bridge was the entertainment but the guests were loath to begin the game so charming were the details of the red, white and blue scheme the hostess had carried out even in the supper and favors. The assisting young girls who passed the tallies and helped serve the tempting refreshments wore bouquets of red and white roses with flags in the center of them and at the supper hour ferneries of roses with tiny silk flags peeping from the top of each, lent their loveliness to the scene. The assisting young girls were Elise Fae, Louise Tyger and Margaret Evans. There were nine tables of players with Mrs. W. H. Kelly, of Cleveland, the only one from away.

Over thirty ladies enjoyed the bridge party for which Mrs. Cornel Morganthaler was hostess on Friday afternoon. This was the third one of a series of parties that Mrs. Morganthaler is giving but her next affair is to be a sewing party. Each of the parties has been characterized by an especially happy time, the guests really caring less for the card playing than for the visiting. While Mrs. Morganthaler's gift in the culinary line received new praise at each gathering of her friends.

Many beautiful ideas in pink were carried out in the plans made by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Fee last evening when they entertained the men and women to take part in the bridal party of Miss Constance Keplinger and Mr. Thomas Payson Ewing, next Wednesday evening at Plymouth church. While bridge was the amusement, there was much agreeable chaffing and fun during the supper hour, while the charming arrangement of pink hooded candles, pink roses, pink baskets and favors and clever place cards were equally enjoyed by the guests. Mrs. W. H. Kelly, of Cleveland, was an out-of-town guest.

The Country club dance at the Anthony hotel next Monday evening is to be the last dancing affair before Lent and society is to turn out so generally.

The center of the table contained a wicker basket filled with red and white roses with a big red satin ribbon bow on the handle while at Miss Breen's place was a bouquet of a single white lily with red rosebuds clustered around it and tied with red ribbon. At this party Miss Breen received a shower of candy here as a gift.

Industrial Extension Department Committee of Fort Wayne Y. W. C. A.

Other members of the committee are Dr. Jesse Calvin, Mrs. C. O. Shirey, Mrs. Clinton Willson, Mrs. C. F. Mize and Mrs. Emil Koepfel.

The Industrial Extension department of the Young Women's Christian association is the department which seeks the interest and the co-operation of the employed ladies of the city in the work of the association. The plan which has been followed in getting the interest of this group of ladies has been the self governing club idea. These self governing clubs with the co-operation and help of the Extension Industrial committee plan the work and activities of the clubs.

Thus far the committee has done noble work and more is expected in the near future. Five clubs have been organized in Fort Wayne, with a large membership. The clubs and their respective presidents and number of members are: Gymnit, Mrs. Carrie Schroeder, president, 57 members; Boscoe, Miss Hilda Pranger, president, 67 members; Busy Bee, Miss Saloma Fox, president, 21 members; Elex, Miss Minnie Blue, president, 56 members; and Perfection, Miss Elanore Meyer, president, 25 members.

Much credit for the success of the work of this department is due to Mrs. W. S. Whitbeck, whose untiring efforts have brought forth commendable results. Miss Gertrude Gogin, Industrial Extension secretary of the central field, in which field Fort Wayne is included, speaks in words of highest praise of the results obtained in the short existence of the department in the local association.

The clubs in a city are federated as soon as one per cent. of the wage earning workwomen are enrolled in a minimum number of four clubs. This unites all girls of the city in one body governed by an executive council, composed of the officers and representatives of all the federate clubs.

The Industrial department committee, which has been in existence since October, 1914, meets twice a month. One meeting is for the transaction of business matters and the other for the study of the social and industrial problems of women. The latter meeting is held the third Thursday afternoon of each month, and is open to the public.

The culmination of the efforts of this committee thus far has been the federation of the five clubs which took place Friday evening at the association, when the members of the clubs enjoyed a banquet. After this, the business matters pertaining to the work of federation, were transacted.

ONE BIG AIM IS NOW SPLENDIDLY REALIZED

Y. W. C. A. Extension Department Sees Federation of Girls' Clubs.

One of the many aims of the women interested in the Industrial Extension department of the Young Women's Christian association was realized Friday evening. The five self-governing clubs which have been organized within the past year met in a body at the local association building and after enjoying a banquet and formed a federation and elected officers.

The result of the ballot vote was: Miss Carrie Schroeder, of the Gymnit club, was elected president; Miss Hilda Pranger, of the Boscoe, first vice president; Miss Mary Zuercher, of the Busy Bee club, second vice president; Miss Elanore Meyer, of the Perfection club, secretary, and Miss Bessie Maxwell, of the Elex club, treasurer.

The banquet which preceded the business meeting was given in the gymnasium of the building where four long tables and two smaller ones were set. At promptly eight o'clock, Miss E. Gertrude Gogin, industrial extension department secretary of the Central field headed the procession followed by the officials and guests of the Y. W. C. A., who occupied one of the smaller tables. The clubs were seated in a body at their respective tables which had been beautifully decorated by representatives of their club or business place where the girls were employed.

The Elex club members occupied the long table next to the east wall. A narrow strip of smilax trailed through the center of the table from one end to the other and at regular intervals an electric light bulb peeped out from among the leaves, bespeaking the nature of the establishment where the girls were employed.

The next table, that of the Gymnit club was decorated with strips of pink and green crepe paper running through the center. A large wicker basket of pink carnations occupied the center of the table, half way from each end. Pink and green raffles proudly waved their heads of flames in a heroic effort to outshine their electric cousins at the nearby table. Emblems of the industrial establishment with which the members of the club are connected in the form of hosiery of giddy stripes and colors hung at the end and sides of the table.

Samples of the output of the Perfection Hosiery company were artistically arranged on the next table which was occupied by the members of the Perfection club. Vases of blue and yellow carnations, signifying the colors of the club stood at intervals along the entire length of the table. To the south of this table in line with it was the one which had been decorated by the Busy Bees. The center piece at this table attracted much attention as it was a real potted tulip plant in full bloom. Dainty colors of yellow and green with yellow tulips lifting their heads along the line were the decorations.

The Boscoe club, with the manager of the Boss Manufacturing company seated at the head of the table occupied the long table along the west wall. On each end stood a huge man's glove, an emblem of the product of this manufacturing company. Smilax twined about the foot of the crystal candlesticks containing an individual Richmond rose which stood in line along both edges of the table, one before each seated party. Red and yellow streamers tapered from a frame work at each end of the table to the yellow gloves.

Pink roses and pink carnations were in evidence at the guests' table along the north wall. Here were seated: Mrs. A. J. Donnan, a former president of the Y. W. C. A. board of directors; Miss Anna Cole, secretary; Miss May Jewell Smith, treasurer; Mrs. Court-cloft, of Providence, R. I., mother of Mrs. W. S. Whitbeck, of the house staff; Miss Martha Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. George Jacobs, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Franke and daughter, Lucile; Mrs. Wagoner, house secretary; Mrs. George P. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Thieme, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Thieme and Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Thieme.

Club spirit was not lacking. Yells and songs, in close succession, resounded forth during the progress of the banquet, which was served by the ladies of the house.

The banquet at an end, Mrs. W. S. Whitbeck, local extension department secretary, called the meeting to order. Her address was met with a hearty applause, after which she read telegrams of greeting from several of the other federations in the Central field. Miss Martha Pierce delighted the large audience of ladies with several whistling solos.

Mrs. George P. Evans, the second vice president of the association, spoke in behalf of the president, Mrs. B. Paul Mossman, who was unable to be present. Mrs. Fred Thieme, a member of the extension department committee, said a few words of appreciation and encouragement for the girls.

Following the election, Mrs. Whitbeck introduced Miss Gogin, who spoke at length on the work of the extension department. She told the possibilities of the good derived from a federation such as had just been formed. The speaker defined the word "federation" as meaning "together," and then proceeded by saying that together meant "responsibility," which in turn spelled "responsibility." Illustrating her point step by step.

She impressed the fact that the clubs of which the individuals in the audience were members of were opportunities for physical, mental and moral developments.

Three meetings a year will be held by the new Federation, the fall rally in October, the annual banquet and business meeting in February and the competition meeting in May. At the latter meeting awards will be made for the best work in certain lines of work during the year.

The special competition for the local Federation will be, "The All-Round Record," which contains four different things to be observed. The club which has the highest percentage in these four steps will be given a silver loving cup, which may be kept by that club until it loses to another. The cup was shown at the banquet Friday evening.

JITNEY DRIVER IS MADE TO PAY FINE

Charles Nelson Speeds His Auto Past Standing Street Car.

The immunity that has seemed to invest jitney bus drivers was a myth so far as it concerned Charles Nelson, tried in the city court Saturday morning for driving his auto past a standing street car at the transfer corner, Friday, for Judge H. Waveland Kerr found him guilty and assessed a fine of $1 and costs. Traffic Officer Gust Lauer arrested Nelson, who resides at 1732 Howell street, after the jitney driver had shot his machine past a street car, receiving and discharging passengers and exposed some girls to danger of injury. Nelson did not make a strong denial of the facts alleged. A man was fined Friday morning in the city court for a similar offense. The police have orders from Chief Charles Lenz to exercise vigilance in the enforcement of the state traffic laws in this respect.

Young Robber Pleads Guilty.

Ivan Cecil North, the young man who confessed to Detective Sergeant William F. Pappert, who arrested him, that he had robbed Frank Griffith, an aged man from Kosciusko county, of $60 after getting him drunk, Thursday morning, pleaded guilty in the city court, Saturday, to a charge of grand larceny and was bound over to the circuit court for trial. His bonds were fixed at $1,000 and he went to jail. North's young bride of three months was in court and was with him at the granting of his cell. She was very affectionate in her attentions to the prisoner and seemed much grieved by his plight.

Other City Court Cases.

William Murphy, charged with disorderly conduct, was fined $5 and costs.

Henry Kruse, a regular in the local army of drunks, was continued until the 26th inst., and his bond was fixed at $50.

Frank Ohee was fined $1 and costs for assault and battery on Metro Christ, a Macedonian employed in the "Base foundry." It was shown that Ohee had once before assaulted the young alien and because of the offense lost his job, whereat he sought to pay the score Thursday night by walloping the foreigner. A young man named Hentzler, jointly charged with Ohee in the case, was found to have had no part in the assault and was turned loose.

Ed Lauer was fined $1 and costs for drunkenness and John Cursner, another drunk, was allowed to go.

James P. Goodrich for Governor

Allen county republicans will be called upon in a few weeks to express their preference among candidates for state offices. The most important among these is that of governor. Several good men are aspiring to the office. None of them, so far as I know, lives in our county or district. I think we owe it to one another, therefore, to give out through the press and otherwise such information as we possess about the men among whom we will be called on a few weeks hence to express our choice at the primary.

I shall vote my first choice for James P. Goodrich, of Winchester, Randolph county. I grew up from boyhood in Jay county, which adjoins Randolph on the north. I was married to a Randolph girl and in 1899 we came to Fort Wayne to live. I went to school at Liber college in Jay county in 1896 with Miss Lizzie Edger, of Winchester, who afterwards married Mr. Goodrich, of that city, and so became the mother of a future governor of Indiana, as we hope. I have kept up my acquaintance with the people of that part of the state, and can speak with assurance of the merits of Mr. Goodrich as a candidate and as a governor. He is a man in the prime of life (about 50), of the highest integrity, a pleasing and forcible speaker and will make a strong canvass. He is nominated, and a good governor if he is elected. He is affable and approachable in his manners, and citizens who visit him at Indianapolis after his election will find him as friendly and agreeable as at his home in Winchester. He has been a close student of public questions, and on the great subjects of taxes, schools, roads, crops, stock, etc., he will have matured opinions and wise suggestions for the legislature and the people.

He practiced law in Winchester for many years, but with that has taken a lively interest in agricultural matters. He owns a large farm in Randolph county which is a model of high cultivation. He was the originator in Indiana of the five-acre corn contests which have done much to stimulate corn breeding and scientific corn culture. The faculty of Purdue university awarded him that honor.

In 1907 Mr. Goodrich was appointed receiver of the C. C. & L. railroad, in which position he made a great record. At the time he was appointed first-mortgage bonds of the company were selling from 70 to 75 cents on the dollar, and second-mortgage bonds at 25 cents. After four years of operation through the hard times the road was sold by Mr. Goodrich for a sum sufficient to pay the first mortgage bonds in full, principal and interest, and the second mortgage bondholders realized 75 cents on the dollar.

He was appointed receiver of the Noelke-Richards Iron works by Judge Remster, a democrat, on account of the great record he made in the conduct of the railroad. After the close of that receivership Judge Remster said that the conduct of the affairs of that concern, which was a large structural iron works, with plants in Indianapolis and Pittsburgh, was one of the most satisfactory administrations of a trust that ever came to his notice during his experience on the bench.

There is no doubt that we have in Mr. Goodrich all the qualifications of a good and great governor. The republicans of the Twelfth district will honor themselves and serve the public welfare by giving him their votes, first, at the primary in March, and then at the polls in November.

COURT WITNESS IS GUILTY OF PERJURY

Denial of Drinking in Dry Town Gets O'Neal in Deep Trouble.

Petersburg, Ind., Feb. 19.—For appearing in court drunk in a recent trial and swearing that he had not had a drink Charles O'Neal, 30 years old, was found guilty of perjury today in the circuit court, the penalty being a fine of $100 and a term of two to twenty-one years in prison. Judge John L. Bretz of the circuit court caused O'Neal's arrest and was the principal witness against the man in his trial today. The jury was out only fifteen minutes.

O'Neal testified in the trial of Mrs. Charles Lavery, charged with shooting with intent to kill. The woman had fired a rifle bullet into the leg of Charles Aldrid, a boy who was playing near her home, and was fined $5 for assault and battery. O'Neal was a witness for the woman.

When he was on the stand his answers showed plainly that he had been drinking, although Petersburg is supposed to be dry. Judge Bretz questioned the witness in an effort to learn where he had obtained his liquor. O'Neal persisted in his assertion that he had not had a drink all day, although he was warned that he might face a perjury charge.

Judge Bretz immediately sent O'Neal to jail, where he has remained since. The grand jury returned an indictment several days later. Judge Bretz retired from the bench and State Senator Broadus Traylor of Jasper acted as special judge at the trial. Stanley M. Krieg, prosecuting attorney, was one of the witnesses with Judge Bretz for the state.

O'Neal is a laborer and has been employed as a chicken picker at a poultry house. He has a wife and three small children. It is expected that an effort will be made to save him from a prison term by a suspension of sentence, leaving him to serve about four months in jail for his fine.

The township trustees Saturday posted in each of the precincts in the county notices of the primary election to be held on March 7.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Liberal receipts northwest had a bearish effect today on wheat. Opening prices, which ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to 1/4¢ higher, with May at $1.25 1/2 to $1.30 1/4, and July at $1.24 to $1.24 1/4, were followed by a decline all around.

The close was heavy, 1 1/2 to 2 1/2¢ net lower, with May at $1.27 1/2 to $1.27 3/4 and July at $1.22 1/2 to $1.22 3/4.

Corn eased off with wheat. After opening 1/4¢ lower the market underwent a moderate sag.

The close was weak, with a loss of 1 1/4 to 1 1/2¢ net.

Oats had no independent action. Strength developed in provisions on account of a speculative demand for lard.

Concordia and Turners to Stage Indoor Field and Track Meet

The Concordia college-Turner indoor field meet will be one of the athletic events of the coming week, and will be staged Friday night at the college gym. The Concordia boys have been working hard for the meet and the gym has been the scene of daily workouts.

The mile, run, the quarter mile, the dashes and a lot of field events will be included in the program. J. J. Ritter, who has been so successful as a basketball referee this winter, will have charge of the track and field.

Prof. Henry Meyer has been coaching the Turners and whipping his athletes into shape, and the Turner fans are confident their boys will win from the more youthful Concordia lads. Captain Byroade has worked hard with his boys, too, and the result will be some hotly contested play throughout the evening.

Concordia college had easy picking last night against the Defiance college five, and the score was 55 and 15. Metzendorf was out of the game, and Larssen dropped back to a guard position, Wacker taking center. The game was pretty and full of pep and spirit from the first whistle. The Concordia seconds won the preliminary from the Specials. Lineups and scores:

Concordia, 55—Schiff, 12; P. Henrichs, 10; Wacker, 8; Larssen, 7; Peterson, 10; G. Dorn, 8; G.

Defiance, 15—Hoffman, 10; P. Watterston, 10; P. Sailer, 10; Sailer, 10; G. J. Jankstraw, 10.

Field goals—Schiff, 8; Henrichs, 4; G. Dorn, 1; Wacker, 5; Larssen, 4; Watterston, 2; P. Sailer, 1; G. J. Jankstraw, 1.

With the sale of the Cleveland American league club to a syndicate of Chicago and Cleveland men, the last problem incidental to the start of the spring training has been solved.

James C. Dunn, contractor of Chicago, who bought the controlling interest in the $500,000 deal, is to be president. He has interested his business associate, Patrick S. McCarthy, in the venture.

Dunn originally hailed from Marshalltown, Iowa, birthplace of Cap Anson, and in 1904 was president of the Marshalltown club in the Iowa-Illinois league.

YANKEE ICE STAR TO INVADE NORWAY.

Bobby McLean, speed king of American skaters, will invade Norway to demand a meeting with Oscar Mathieson, present world's ice champion. The latter has twice refused to cross the briny and defend his laurels against the Chicagoan. McLean was separated from his crown as amateur international toppler more than a year ago after the amateur athletic union caught him appearing in a cafe twice daily as part of the entertain-

MORAN SKATES AND SHOVELS SNOW WHILE TUNING UP FOR WIL-LARD GO.

(By Harold Johnson.)

Training no longer is drudgery for Frank Moran.

Instead of toiling overtime in a stuffy gym, infested by cigarette smoking idlers gathered to watch him slam sparring partners, about the bag, skip rope or juggle medicine balls, the red-thatched challenger for Willard's crown finds genuine pleasure in open air methods considerably different from those usually associated with a pugilist's program of conditioning.

Far from the maddening throng, up on the banks of Saranac lake, New York, the Pittsburgher may be seen every day skating or shoveling snow.

one of the essential points in making ready for a bruising fist engagement and every latter specializes at road work. Here he is limited to a jog, a walk and another jog, the distance usually being six or eight miles, with the work scheduled mornings. Gymnasium endeavors keep the belligerent person busy in the afternoons.

With the postponement of hostilities Moran decided to remain at Saranac two weeks longer and adhere strictly to the skating, snow shoveling and wood chopping. This combination of labor and pleasure brings into play every muscle in the fighter's make-up.

After ten miles of speed skating in the morning Moran rests his breathing apparatus while the rubber massages the kinks out of Frank's underpinning. Luncheon over Moran lolls about his quarters an hour before going to the woodpile. There, armed with a regulation forester's ax, the red-head proceeds to make toothpicks out of giant trees. When the ax-wielding grind becomes monotonous Frank goes in for something else.

Friendly wrestling matches with his trainers often enliven the program. As a fireman on one of the seagoing battleships years ago, Moran learned the fine points of shoveling. He hasn't forgotten how, either, and the way he clears paths for the neighbors at Saranac lake after a heavy snowfall is the talk of the town.

Moran proposes to stick to the open air training until ten days before he is summoned to the ring. The last stretch of conditioning will be done in New York, where Moran is a great favorite by virtue of his two jig-time conquests of Jim Coffey, the Dublin giant.

CUBA WANTS 1920 OLYMPIC GAMES.

Havana may be the scene of the 1920 Olympic games. Dick Grant, one-time Harvard star, is now in the Cuban capital endeavoring to enlist the support of prominent islanders. Owing to the war Belgium, original choice for the next renewal of the all-around competition, has been scratched.

UMPS GOEHLER GOES TO FASTER COMPANY

And Lefty Gilbert and His Bum Hunch Stick to Central.

Umpire Jess Goehler, last year with the Central league, has been appointed to the staff of the American association, which carries one back in memory to the days of last summer when Lefty Rufus Gilbert, Terrier manager, lifted his sweet and bell-like voice to the high heavens, proclaiming Goehler an imbecile and Hall-brover a crook for appointing him.

Goehler was one of the best umpiring bets in the minor leagues last year, and made many friends in every town he went to but Torre Haute. There the ever amusing Mr. Gilbert pranced about and yelled for help every time Goehler went to the highland village.

All of which goes to prove that Mr. Gilbert sometimes gets a bum hunch. As a developer of young blood Gilbert can't be beat, and as a drawing card he is there, but when he starts to picking umpires, bahl!

IT LOOKS LIKE A PURDUE WIN

Chicago, Feb. 13.—Northwestern university's chances for a victory over Purdue's track team in their dual indoor meet at Patten gymnasium tonight are considered slim by Evanstonians. A comparison of Northwestern's showing against Chicago last week when the Maroons won 73 1-3 to 13 2-3, and that of Purdue which held the Chicago squad to a lead of 7 1-3 points, is believed to indicate a lopsided defeat for Northwestern. Purdue is expected to score heavily the hurdles and mile unless there is great reversal of form in both teams.

LEE FOHL HAS 29 TO PICK FROM

Cleveland, Feb. 12.—Lee Fohl, whose contract to manage the Indians goes on in spite of the change in ownership of the Cleveland club, will have a squad of twenty-nine players at the New Orleans training camp. His roster, as he has just announced it, includes O'Neill, Egan, Billings and Mills, catchers; Mitchell, Morton, Combe, Harstad, Sam Jones, Hogerman, Kieper, Bagby, Collamore, Stanley Covelaskie, Garrett and Carter, pitchers; Chapman, Wambegans, Turner, Barbare, Thomas, Kike and Evans, infielders; and Greney, Elmer Smith, Roth, Chappelle, Edmondson and Willie, outfielders.

The battery men are due in New Orleans Feb. 25 and the rest of the corps on March 1. Exhibition games booked for the Indians in the Crescent city include three with the Cincinnati Reds and one with the Chicago Cubs in addition to a sojourn with the Pelicans.

Ambitious plans for the modernization of the city of Santiago, capital of Chile, are under consideration. A commission has been named, including the mayor and other municipal officials, to make a careful study of the matter.

LYCEUMS DEFEAT DANVILLE NORMALS

Visitors Stick Tight to Miller But Rest of Team Works Fast.

The Danville Normal five had a hunch that Miller was the man to watch, and they spent so much time watching him last night that the other members of St. Patrick's Lyceum team got away with a 47 and 15 win. The Normalites were not even near the running with the local boys. Vonderhaar played the floor beautifully last night.

The Lyceum boys realized last night what a game without Miller would mean, for hardly a moment of the play was without one Normal player or another holding Miller by the neck. The game was fast and a lot better exhibition of basketball than the last Lyceum fracas. Brown and Elee held their rear positions well throughout the battle lines with field goals. Lineups and scores:

Lyceum, 47—Flaherty, 5; Miller, 1; Vonderhaar, 15; F. Brown, R. F.; Thomas, L. F.; Cross, C.; Small, H. G.; Turpin, L. G.

Danville, 15—F. Brown, R. F.; Thomas, L. F.; Cross, C.; Small, H. G.; Turpin, L. G.

Field goals—Flaherty, 5; Miller, 1; Vonderhaar, 3; J. Brown, 2; Blee, 3; F. Brown, 2; Thomas, 2; Cross, 2.

Foul goals—Miller, 3; Cross, 3; Flaherty, 4.

Referee—Island.

NEW YORK TO WAGE FIGHT ON BOOZE

Great City's Health Board to Start a Temperance Crusade.

New York, Feb. 15.—The city board of health has announced the inauguration of a temperance crusade. The board has requested clergymen to deliver temperance sermons Sunday, February 20, which will be called "Temperance Sabbath."

Meanwhile uniformed police officers of the health squad and sanitary inspectors will distribute, in saloons and clubs throughout the city, pamphlets setting forth the dangers of alcoholic indulgence.

Washington's birthday motion picture theaters will display films furnished by the board, portraying "The curse of drink and all its attendant evils."

February 23 is to be set aside as "Croton Water Day," after the Croton reservoir, from which part of this city's drinking water is obtained.

HAS AN AWFUL CASE ON HARRY

President Dick Gets Rosy in Describing Former Local Star.

E. W. Dickerson, president of the Central league, and sport writer on the Grand Rapids News, throws the following awful of pories at Harry Brant, local favorite:

"Taking all of his abilities into consideration the Grand Rapids club seems to have come into one of the greatest, if not the greatest infielders in the Central league in Harry Brant, who has been with the Fort Wayne club for the past two seasons. Besides being a sensational fielder, the former Fort Wayne player led the league in earned runs last season with 60 scored. Smyth of Fort Wayne, whose release was purchased by the Brooklyn National league club, finishing second with 57. Smyth led the league in runs scored as leadoff man for the Rail-roads and Brant was second with 80, although not occupying nearly so advantageous a position in the batting order as Smyth for scoring runs. Brant also was second in number of sacrifice hits made, making one less than Hobbs, of Dayton, who led with 20.

"To satisfy the fans after seeing such a clever young player as Stoll on short for Grand Rapids the past three seasons, an exceptional player was needed and that is what Manager Essick landed in Brant. He has lines out for some other good men and expects to land one or two more players of Brant's caliber. There is little likelihood of Tommy Mea being back this year, and Scotty Alcock's return is problematical. Buster Keene may be figured on as a fixture on first base with Brant holding down one of the other infield positions.

"Manager Essick says he finds it far easier to sign good men this year than in years past and that he has heard from around the circuit that other managers are having the same experiences until he is convinced that the Central league's class of play this year will be considerable faster than ever before. It means that the lean years in which league after league went up in the air left so many good players on the market that the leagues continuing in existence profit greatly thereby—illustrating the adage, 'one man's loss is another's gain.'"

SHERMAN SAID A MOUTHFUL

Baseball war is just what Sherman said about any other scrap. The annual report of the national commission for 1915 shows that last year the tribunal received $55,261.74 and disbursed $48,482.30. Attorneys engaged during the war got $9,837.92. The Armando Marsans case alone cost $1,777.71.

PHYSICAL TRAINING UNDER COMPLETE INSTRUCTION FEATURE OF Y.W.C.A. WORK

In conjunction with the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the establishing of the Young Women's Christian association, the various branches of the work undertaken and developed by this remarkable body are being brought under the microscopic lens of public opinion, and thoroughly investigated. And the result is that the public looks into each department carefully, stamps it "inspected and passed," and goes on to the next.

But in the matter of physical training and athletics the outside public has had little idea of the work of the association. In this city the physical department is developed to a wonderful degree of efficiency, and now stands in the van in the country-wide movement of athletic training for girls.

The big gymnasium at the Young Women's Christian association in this city will be found crowded with girls nearly any evening you go into it, and in the afternoon classes in little girls and school children have their classes. Folk dancing and basketball struggle for supremacy in the gym, and the

"Y. W. girls" this winter have followed the fad to skates. Summer finds the association with full equipped tennis courts and a summer camp at a nearby lake where nautical sports may be enjoyed.

Miss Ruth E. Melin, the physical director, has been very successful in her work with the girls, and the results attained even in the past year have shown the necessity of the gymnasium and physical training as an integral part of the association work.

In the accompanying pictures the various classes are seen in action.

In the upper left hand corner, stands the smallest member of the gym classes, a wee mite of a girl who goes through the work with as much pep and enthusiasm as any of the older girls. Near her, and swinging to the rings, another member of the Saturday morning class was flashlighted in action. Miss Melin stands in the center of the group. In the upper right hand corner a basketball team was snapped at practice, and below at the left are the extension department girls, nearly thirty of them in this class, playing on the basketball floor. In the lower right a class of girls is seen in a game that combines dancing and athletics, is fun and helps to develop the body.

The following bulletin, issued by the central office, gives an idea of the work that is being done in other cities as well as Port Wayne:

The girl who can paddle a canoe, win a tennis match, bowl, skate on ice or rollers, play basketball and do the hundred and one other physical "stunts" works harder, plays fairer and is more help to her family, her friends, her employer and her community than her sister who is not acquainted with any of the all-the-year-around activities or recreation and sport life.

To be responsible nationally for promoting the right kind of physical education and recreation among girls is a big undertaking, yet that is the particular province of Dr. Anna L. Brown, secretary for Hygiene and Physical Education of the National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association. Dr. Brown believes that standards of efficiency for women should be based upon an understanding of how to conserve and develop physical powers.

The Young Women's Christian Association has been one of the most active agencies in popularizing physical education as the foundation of health and happiness in the lives of girls and women. There is now regular class work in more than 191 association gymnasiums, and the registration in 1914 showed an increase of 18,000. The statistics for 1915 have not yet been fully compiled but the increase for last year bids fair to be well over the mark for 1914.

Ten years ago the associations had no swimming pools. Today there are fifty-four in active operation. "Health and Safety" is the slogan that is fast making the swimming pool a rival of the gymnasium in the favor of young women everywhere.

Then there are the summer camps which are bringing girls the outdoor joys and privileges which their more fortunate brothers have had for several years. The military tactics, the "hikes" and the co-operative spirit enjoyed there are as essential to recreation, health and character-building during the summer months as are the games and athletics of the winter season.

Wide-spread attention has been focused on the need of emphasizing good posture as fundamental to health and a great aid in promoting cheerfulness of spirit, capacity for work and powers of endurance. The standards approved by the national board of the Young Women's Christian Association was the basis of the national posture contest for which prizes were awarded at the Panama-Pacific International exposition.

Dr. Brown says that to conserve and develop physical powers the gymnasiums and swimming pools of the Young Women's Christian Association throughout the country are being used to correct defects and deformities under medical supervision, to develop weak muscles and strengthen other organs, to develop and perfect co-ordination, to reinforce health and make casual ailments unpopular, to provide recreation and create happiness in the use of the body in athletics and games of prowess and skill.

All the activities whether in the nature of social or physical training are based upon practical hygiene, in dress, diet, care of the person, exercise and rest. The department hopes to be in a position soon to lay down tried and true types of physical training for women adapted to age, occupation and living conditions; and underlying these it hopes to develop a well defined code on the ethical use of physical powers, and the responsibility of all women to give equal thought to their physical, intellectual and spiritual well-being and efficiency for only under such well-balanced conditions can they attain their best and be of the most service to those with whom they come in contact either personally or through any medium by which they are enabled to express themselves.

With a conviction of the ethical value of comradeship in recreation, plans are being discussed with the Young Men's Christian Association for co-operation in some of the recreation features.

Dr. Brown's work includes an extensive service in correspondence, lecturing before many groups other than association audiences, and recruiting from all over the country the best physical directors she can find to place in the local physical departments of the organization.

Prohibition Boosts Business in Pacific Northwest is Declaration From Seattle

BY JACK JUNGMEYER

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 19.—Prohibition is a boost to better business.

So the Pacific northwest believes after two months of dryness in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

The dire prophecies of the deposed wets have not materialized.

Instead of a business slump, times are unusually good.

Property formerly occupied by saloons has rented freely.

Collections, say merchants, are better than for a long time. One Seattle packing and provision firm sold more meat, eggs and supplies during the first 17 dry days in January than during the three months prior, when the city was wet.

Real estate has felt no ill effects, according to a canvass from several large Washington cities.

Big Decrease in Arrests

In Seattle there were but 26 arrests for drunkenness during January, as against a former average of 200 drunks a month. The total number of cases booked for all causes in January was almost two-thirds less than for an average month in the old days of the saloon.

Spokane and Tacoma show corresponding decreases in arrests and crime in favor of state-wide prohibition.

"There has been a marked betterment of temper among the people during the past few weeks," said Police Judge Gordon, of Seattle. "There has been practically no fighting and very little petty crime since the first of the year. I

Seattle, Wash., soft-drink resorts, formerly had never seen the inside of a bar room began to come with their male escorts as regular patrons. Not infrequently the drinks were quaffed at the bar, with foot on the rail.

The proprietor of a Seattle meat market, near the old waterfront saloon district, is cashing many more checks than formerly.

"The men tell me," he explained, "that they are now buying meat because they can't buy booze. It's not only a few such cases I've noticed, but it has happened hundreds of times within the past two months. These fellows from the waterfront no longer cash their checks in saloons and spend the money there."

That is the general verdict from merchants in the larger cities.

Results Carefully Watched

Prohibition leaders have been watching developments carefully.

"The public voted the state dry on a theory," commented L. R. Horton, of the Washington Anti-Saloon league. "The only reason they'll keep it dry is fact. We want nothing but truth regarding the effects of prohibition. If it isn't a success in a business way, the people are going to vote wet again next election, as sure as fate."

Liquor men who converted saloons into soft drink emporiums claim to be "getting by nicely." While the receipts have decreased considerably, the net profits in many cases are just as big because high licenses must now be paid.

An impartial census among business men of Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane and Portland gives a decisive verdict in favor of prohibition as a good business proposition, after two months of "drouth."

INSANE MAN HURTS SHERIFF

Brazil, Ind., Feb. 19.—William Garrigus, the sheriff, was injured, in an encounter with Edward Miller, a resident of Brazil, who is insane.

Miller had torn his clothing from his body, had shredded two mattresses and had turned on a water faucet in his cell in the county jail when Sheriff Garrigus was summoned. As he entered the cell to turn off the water, Miller struck him a heavy blow on the side of the head. The sheriff was stunned and Miller lunged at his throat. A "trust" rushed to the sheriff's assistance and Miller was moved to a narrow cell downstairs. Everything was taken out except a small iron bed. Miller broke up the bed and hurled the pieces out between the bars, shattering two windows.

Miller was a rolling mill worker. He went insane after an operation for appendicitis some months ago, but did not become violent until last Sunday. The sheriff was not seriously hurt.

NINTH INSTALLMENT

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad by George Storm, a newsboy. Grown to young womanhood, Helen saves Storm, now a fireman, her father, and his friends Amos Rhinelander, financier, and Robert Seagru, promoter, from a threatened collision. Safebreakers employed by Seagru steal General Holmes' survey plans of the cut-off line for the Tidewater, fatally wounding the general and escape. Her father's estate badly involved by his death, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Helen recovers the survey plans from Seagru, and though they are taken from her, finds an accidentally made proof of the survey blueprint. Storm is employed by Rhinelander. Spike, befriended by Helen, in his turn saves her and the right-of-way contracts when Seagru kidnaps her. Helen and Storm win for Rhinelander a race against Seagru for right-of-way.

A CLOSE CALL

Despite Seagru's persistent opposition, Rhinelander secured the right of way to enable him to complete the Superstition cut-off, and unable to stop the Tidewater construction work, Seagru resolved to try other methods to defeat his rival.

Helen Holmes was enjoying the taste of camp life that her trip to the front had brought. And after the excitement had died down attending the destruction of Cassidy's house, she found herself amused and interested in Cassidy himself, who was busy next morning trying to restore a much-battered stove to service near the wreck of his shack. Helen watched his dazed efforts until sympathy overcame her, and excusing herself, she walked over to where Cassidy was struggling to get a fire going.

Seagru, who had been watching the scene from a distance, saw Helen join the old fellow and deemed it his opportunity to make tentative advances toward the collective enemy. Sauntering over, accordingly, he joined Helen at a moment in which she had sent Cassidy for water and was herself watching the fire starting in the stove.

Helen looked up in astonishment when she heard Seagru's greeting. Indeed, she resented his intrusion so strongly that she refused all communication with him and for a time he spoke into deaf ears.

"You ought not to be too hard on me, Helen," he urged at length. "Any man will fight for his life against ruin. That's all I've done. Everything I have in the world is tied up in this Superstition cut-off. But more than once I said to myself, I would willingly sacrifice it all to regain your friendship."

He spoke slowly and looked so beaten and worried as he lingered in the penumbra of Helen's gaze that she began to denounce him indignantly for his villainous conduct.

He took her stinging reproaches without resentment. "I admit," he said, "my temper carries me too far, sometimes."

"Sometimes!" echoed Helen. "A hundred and fifty!"

"When I do get angry," confessed Seagru, "I lose my head. I stop at nothing. When it's all over, nobody is sorer for it than I am. I have acted shamefully. I know that. And what hurts the most is that it should have cost me your friendship and my uncle's."

While the talk thus began between the two was going on in this fashion, Storm, who had been bused with Rhinelander experimenting with some new jacks, noticed what Helen was doing; and that the man standing near her was none other than Seagru. Scarcely able to believe his eyes, the young constructionist called to Rhinelander to look. The latter disengaged himself from his new machines long enough to see what Storm had seen and putting another man in charge of the work, he hurried off, followed by Storm, over to Cassidy's zone.

They arrived together just in time to find Seagru putting wood on Helen's fire. He turned from his peaceful role to greet Rhinelander, quite casually, with a good morning; Helen, in good spirits, was stepping rapidly around preparing a meal. Rhinelander looked from one to the other in amazement, and striding forward, confronted Seagru. "What does all this thing mean?" he demanded angrily. "What are you up to now, Seagru?"

Seagru met the wrathful greeting composedly. His answer was amiable and untroubled. "We have been talking over old times, Uncle Amos." He indicated Helen by the slightest nod. "I've told Helen, what you well know, that everything I have in the world has been tied up in this fight. But I've also told her I would sacrifice every bit of it to regain your good will and hers. I'm sorry for the lengths I've gone to. It's been a mistake. It doesn't reflect any credit on me, I know that. But can't we forget it? Forget everything, here and now, and work together, you and I, for the future instead of trying to cut each other's throats? Why not combine our interests, uncle, and take a fresh start?"

But Rhinelander, gentle though he was in disposition and forbearing to a degree that surprised his friends, was yet too old in the ways of the world to put his trust in assurances without deeds to back them. He regarded Seagru firmly: "This fight," he said briefly, "was not one of our choosing. Seagru, you forced us into it," he reminded his nephew. "We cannot compromise now when sure of success."

Seagru, whether hopeless, or dogged in his attitude, took the rebuke hard. He did not resent it but he looked down and out. So much so that Helen felt sorry. She even made occasion, as he stood gloomily watching her, to go over to him and express her regret that Rhinelander did not feel, as she did, that it might be better for everybody to try to be friends once more.

Storm, who had stood apart and was churning inside at the situation, now intervened: "Come over to camp, Helen. That man doesn't mean a syllable of what he says. You're wasting time listening to him. Come along."

She resented the positive way in which the words were spoken. Her manner when she answered revealed some of her impatience: "I'll come," she said, with a suggestion of curtness, "just as soon as I get through here."

Rhinelander detected her resentment. He knew better than anyone in the world that the spirited girl could not be driven and could not even be coaxed too far. He beckoned to Storm: "Let's go," he suggested in an undertone.

Storm seemed against the proposal. Rhinelander quietly urged it. "You can't do any good," he explained in a low tone. "I know what's best. Come with me."

Storm, angry as a schoolboy, at what he deemed the folly of giving the slightest countenance to Seagru, followed his friend reluctantly. But having averred she would not go, Helen, conscious herself now of the strain of the situation, turned to Seagru and told him she must be leaving. He extended his hand. "I'm sorry the trouble has gone so far," she said hurriedly, as she shook hands with him to show she bore no irremovable ill will. "But I guess there's no help for the situation at present."

Seagru watched her follow Rhinelander and Storm, who waited for her on the edge of the camp. The three went on together towards Rhinelander's outfit car still discussing the troublesome subject. Seagru, however, realized he must do something, if not in one way in another, and he left Cassidy's to send for a local attorney who had already acted for him in right-of-way matters.

To him, when he arrived, Seagru explained his present predicament for an outlet. "What I must know is," he said, "whether the city of Las Vegas will grant our people a right of way along here through city property?"

The attorney shook his head. "I don't think that can ever be put over."

Seagru was cold. "You've got to do it. There's no other way for us to get through. If you hold us up on it, we shall be compelled to abandon our line here."

With this cannon cracker exploding under him, the attorney promised he would see what could be done. "But I want you along with me," he declared, "to lay the case before the city authorities yourself."

The two started for town together. In Seagru's camp, Spike, an hour later, was seated in front of a tent cleaning a lamp when Seagru returned still in company with the attorney. Their sounding out of the city fathers had been unsuccessful and Seagru handed his foreman a notice to post on the bulletin board:

WORK WILL BE SUSPENDED ON THE COAST AND COLORADO CUT-OFF UNTIL LAS VEGAS GRANTS A RIGHT OF WAY TO ALLOW THIS COMPANY TO REACH THE SUPERSTITION MINES.

Spike, sauntering over, read the notice. Seagru's eye fell on him at that moment and a recollection of what he termed Spike's treachery came to his mind. He spoke to the convict roughly. "I suppose you know that in helping Rhinelander get those contracts, you caused this trouble, Spike."

Spike glanced at him with an angry shake of the head. "Rhinelander didn't need me to get the contracts. Helen Holmes is the one that beat you, Seagru."

The remark did not help to soothe Seagru's irritation. He kept after Spike all the harder. "If you cross me again," he said, threateningly, "I'll hand you over to some high voltage, my friend."

The wrangle was going from bad to worse when Bill came in with Seagru's coat. The latter, putting it on, took his hat, directed Lug to post the bulletin, beckoned to the attorney and accompanied by him and Bill, started for the station to catch the main line local, then due. When the train pulled in Seagru and the attorney boarded it. Bill started back for camp.

Spike, left alone, went into his tent. He sat some moments thinking. Then he rose and from a corner got out the suit of clothes, carefully put away, that Helen had bought for him in Las Vegas. The least he could do, he felt, was to take this over to Rhinelander's camp and return it to her with such lame explanation as he could invent to cover the occasion.

He found Helen alone. She regarded him strangely as he approached. Spike would rather have faced a sheriff than to face her on such an errand. He shuffled toward her in a low and her silence did not help to allay his embarrassment.

"I know you bought the clothes for me," he muttered, "because I helped you get the contracts. I hated to turn back the way I did to Seagru's camp. I hate to bring these back to you. But the way I'm fixed I can't double-cross Seagru."

Helen saw he was greatly humiliated. And she was mystified a little by his words. "Spike," she said, kindly, "the clothes are nothing. But what have I done to you that you should treat me in the way you did?"

He labored in continued confusion to explain. He tried to tell her Seagru had done many things for him; he told her he owed Seagru a lot of money and he had no hope of ever paying him back except by work, and that he didn't feel he ought to break away now.

Storm and Rhinelander came up at that moment. They greeted Spike. He avoided their eyes as much as possible and returned their greeting in a shame-faced way. Helen answered the surprise that overspread the faces of Storm and Rhinelander. "It's no wonder he's ashamed to speak to you," she said severely. "You would hardly believe it. I know; but the fact is he has turned over to Seagru again."

The two men looked at Spike with undisguised contempt. Their attitude made him desperate. "Oh, I know what you think of me," he said with a reckless swing of his head. "I can't help it. I can't explain. It would take me from now till the middle of next week, if I tried—and then you'd think less of me than you do now. Never be kind to me again. It's hopeless for me—but I can't help it."

The three watched him shuffle away. Rhinelander shook his head. "There's a mystery somewhere in it. I can't make it out. Some day we'll know."

At Seagru's camp, Bill and the paymaster were handing checks out to the men. The latter stood about the car in discontented groups and discussed over their situation in being thrown so suddenly out of work. The paymaster handed Bill a check. It was for Spike. Bill yelled his name. A man hard by pointed to Rhinelander's camp. "There's Spike," said the man, "over there at Rhinelander's."

Bill's sharp eyes followed the gesture. Spike at that moment was just leaving Rhinelander, Helen and Storm. Bill, a knave of more than ordinary discernment and one who hated Spike for his share in the fight at Las Vegas, saw in the incident his chance to get even. He put the check aside and a moment later when Spike appeared at the pay car, Bill was ready. Descending the car steps, Bill called to Spike as the latter came forward. Bill advanced to meet him. "What do you mean, Spike," demanded Bill in loud and aggressive tones, pitched so that everybody might hear, "by running over to Rhinelander's camp all the time? What are you up to now, Spike?"

Spike was in the worst possible mood to be badgered by anybody. With a hot expetive he bade Bill mind his own business and offered gratuitously to break his head.

Bill turned to the men with a shout: "This is the duck," he cried, "that helped Rhinelander steal our right of way, boys. He's the guy that's thrown us all out of work. What do you know about that?"

Spike, in most opprobrious language, flatly gave Bill the lie. The men, most of whom were spoiling for a row, closed in to hear and devour the heated argument that the two enemies engaged in. Accusations and denials felt thick and fast; abuse followed assertions, hard words and a deep-seated enmity raised the tempers of both men and Bill, without further warning, swung and sent Spike with a terrific left-hander to the ground.

Spike was no sooner down than up. He came back at Bill, goaded to fury by the unprovoked attack. Men crowded up. Their cries and shouts had already attracted the attention of Storm and Helen who stood with Rhinelander still discussing Spike. Storm was the first to perceive what was going on in Seagru's camp.

"They're after Spike," he exclaimed. "Look! Down he goes—that bull-necked Bill hit him. He's up again. The whole bunch are jumping him. They'll kill that fellow. Well," he mused, as the clamor grew and Spike, fighting desperately to keep from being surrounded, went down again. "I suppose he's no great loss."

"But," cried Helen, "we can't see a man murdered before our eyes. I won't stand it. I'll go help him myself if nobody else will."

Undismayed by the undertaking, Helen, followed by Rhinelander trying to stop her, hurried toward Seagru's camp. Storm, with more forethought, hastily got together such of his men as were within hearing and yelling in his turn to Helen to wait, started after her and Rhinelander. Fast as the men ran none could overtake her flying feet. She dashed into the thick of the fight ahead of everybody and seizing Spike, pushed back his assailants.

They stopped an instant from sheer amazement at seeing a lovely girl, seemingly fallen from the sky, in the middle of the hot scrimmage.

Rhinelander rushed to her side. "Hands off," he cried, putting Spike behind him. "Shame! Twenty to one! 'Where's your manhood?'"

Without pausing to consider this irrelevant question, the mob started in to hammer Spike and Rhinelander both. It was then that George Storm's preparedness was vindicated. He fought his way into the ring followed by a dozen huskies who beat back Seagru's men till Storm was enabled to pull Spike away—his men holding the line back of him.

But this diversion was good only for a moment and Storm—not unused to riots and fighting—knew better than his companions, the necessity of further instant dispositions.

Helen kept close to her friends. "We've got to get him out of here quick," exclaimed Storm to her. "They'll tear him limb from limb if they get him again. Helen," he cried, "Back the outfit cars down the cut-off for us, will you, as quick as the Lord will let you? We'll hustle him inside one."

Helen ran. Rhinelander and Storm, picking up Spike, now almost unconscious, dragged him, fast as they could, from the scene, their men covering their retreat and giving ground only as they were forced to by sheer weight of numbers. Fighting stubbornly step by step in this way, Storm and Rhinelander dragging their burden in front of the protesting line—which threatened every moment to give way under the fierce assaults—got Spike to the cut-off track. Helen had reached the engine cab and was ready to pull out the cars. Together the two men threw Spike bodily into the open door of the last car. Climbing aboard after Rhinelander, Storm signaled to Helen in the cab. She opened the throttle and just as Seagru's angry men reached the car, Storm slammed the door shut and Helen moved the string hastily down the track.

The incident would have been closed, with the hind outfit car making rapidly towards safety, had not the wholly unexpected happened to upset Storm's plan. That very day Rhinelander's line-men had set in half a dozen telegraph poles and the anchor wire of one of these placed near the track, caught, as the second last car sped past, on the pole, swayed violently. For a moment Rhinelander's men, watching, hoped it might clear. But crashing suddenly forward, it fell between the last two cars, struck the coupling heavily and sprang the knuckle.

Helen, watching from the cab, saw what happened. She hastily applied the air and feeling they were now far enough away to be safe from the angry men, did not worry about the accident until she perceived as she brought the train to a stop that the outfit car, last in the string, had become detached from the train and was running away.

Inside this Rhinelander and Storm were working on Spike. He opened his eyes after a time and they told him he was safe, not suspecting themselves, that their car was now running wild and down a long grade, to the main line. Indeed, they felt so relieved at Spike's return to consciousness that several moments passed before signs of the accident recorded themselves to Storm's experienced ear. The car was running too far and too fast and springing to the door he pulled it open to see what Helen was doing in the cab. A glance told him the story. "We're running away," he cried to Rhinelander, who joined him. Storm sprang for the side ladder.

Helen was alive to the new danger to her friends. But how to help them taxed, for an instant, her ingenuity. To chase them with the engine, as they were headed for the main line, might end in a more serious disaster than now seemed imminent. The main line passenger train was almost due at Baird and the thought of this fact was first in Helen's mind. Near where she stood was Seagru's motor car, the one her abductors had used only a few days before. She ran to this and springing into the seat, turned over the engine, accelerated as fast as she dare, and was off in pursuit of the runaway.

She was sure she must pass Arden station before she possibly could catch the wild car and pulling the cushion from the seat beside her, scribbled hastily across it with a piece of chalk:

RUNAWAY CAR FROM CUT-OFF ON MAIN LINE. STOP PASSENGER AT BAIRD.

With this in her hands as she tore past Arden station, she rose to her feet, balanced herself with an effort and flung the cushion with all the force she could summon through the operator's window.

On the deck of the runaway car Storm had seized the brake.

He might have saved his companions and himself even then, had not the chain, weakened by rust, snapped under the tremendous strain put on it.

The deck became impossible and to avoid being shot off it, Storm climbed down the swaying ladder again into the car.

At Arden station the astonished operator had just time to dodge Helen's flying motor car cushion as it smashed through the window. It landed on the floor. The chalk scrawl on the top caught his eye.

In the dispatchers' office the chief was sitting at his desk and a dispatcher was on his trick at the instrument. He answered Arden instantly, took the startling message, walked hurriedly over to the chief and handed it to him:

H. C. W. Runaway car from cut-off on main line. Stop passenger at Baird.—L.

The dispatcher sprang to his train sheets and back with them to the chief who dictated the only possible answer:

Passenger left Baird four minutes ago. It was too late to avoid a collision. They could only await the issue.

With Arden station left far behind, Helen, making the utmost possible speed in Seagru's machine, scanned the track ahead for a glimpse of the wild car. Resolved at any cost to overtake it, she was running the machine on the right of way and on the track itself in her determined effort. When she caught sight of the runaway, no one was to be seen upon it, but she knew Rhinelander and Storm were inside and as she began to overhaul the chase, she sounded her horn insistently. The two men, leaving Spike, who in the face of the common danger had pulled himself partly together, looked out of the side door. To their amazement they saw at their heels Helen bumping violently along in Seagru's machine. She signaled them excitedly. She tried to shout to them but could not make a word heard above the deafening noises. Rhinelander and Storm did make out, however, that she wanted them to go to the top of the car and the two men climbed the side ladder again.

Helen, still close behind, scribbled a note, folded it hurriedly, took off a shoe, stuck the note inside and with careful aim, threw it up on top of the car. The men secured the shoe and read the note:

PASSENGER DUE—MUST DITCH CAR—JUMP.

Rhinelander and Storm looked at each other and looked down the line. The smoke of the passenger train rose on the horizon. There was nothing to do but what Helen directed. They thought of Spike below, but Helen was calling to them and without further delay the two men jumped one after the other down into the machine. They told Helen of Spike's plight. She nodded as if the difficulty were no more than a detail, slued the machine from between the rails, drove around the outfit car, slowed alongside it and all three shouted. Spike, hearing his name, listened and sat up. He saw the machine outside the door and crawled forward but he was unequal to a leap. Rhinelander and Storm urged him to make every effort. He got to his feet and did the best he could toward a jump. The men together half caught and half pulled him into the machine. With the three aboard, Helen sped on ahead of the runaway.

Storm had decided what to do. "I'll drop off the hind end, Helen," he exclaimed, "and derail the car."

She caught his idea. "Quick!" she cried. "No time to lose."

Storm rolled over the back of the machine and dropped to the ground. A bridge spanned an arroyo just ahead. Running forward, Storm caught up such loose rocks as he could reach and placed them along the track. Helen, choosing a negotiable point, turned her machine courageously off the right of way and steered it safely down the embankment. The outfit car struck the rocks Storm had thrown on the track. It reeled, plunged wildly into the air and shot headlong over the bridge to the bottom of the arroyo.

In the distance the oncoming passenger train was whistling for a crossing close ahead. Storm running back to the track, cleared it hurriedly of the obstructions. The engineer of the train, scenting trouble, tried to check his train but it was too late, and Storm, to save himself, dropped down between the ties and hung there till the heavy train hurtled past. No engine driver was ever more relieved than the man in the passenger cab, when he saw himself safely across. He stopped his train. From the foot of the bridge, Helen, Spike and Rhinelander were making their way to the top and were with Storm when the crews and passengers came back. The engineman angrily told the conductor the trouble. But after Storm's brief story, he was as grateful as he had been indignant.

The conductor, knowing the anxiety among the dispatchers, urged his passengers on board and the train hastened on. The moment it pulled into Arden the conductor gave the details to the operator and the latter wired headquarters.

In the dispatchers' office it was the chief himself who jumped to the instrument when he heard the Arden call. It was the chief who took the message telling how Helen and Storm had saved the train. But the chief, as he wiped his face with his handkerchief, reflected that it was only another incident in the day's work on the rail, happily, instead of tragically, closed.

At the bridge Spike was trying to express his gratefulness to the three who had rescued him. They left the scene together in the commandeered machine; and with perhaps a little better understanding of one another than any of them had yet reached.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"TWIN BEDS" ONCE MORE.

Real Comedy Farce at the Majestic Again This Evening.

The distinction of fifty-two weeks of incessant popularity on Broadway attaches to "Twin Beds," the laugh festival by Salisbury Field and Margaret Mayo, which Selwyn and company will present at the Majestic again tonight with all the merits of the farce enhanced by their presentation by an admirable cast.

"Twin Beds" tells a thrilling story of how three couples who live on three floors of a fashionable big apartment building, first achieve neighborliness and then have it thrust upon them and finally move to escape it, without any remarkable success.

Its situations, clean and wholesome; and rapidly moving, are enriched by constant play by witty line and fresh-voiced slang. Its characterizations are sharply done, etched no less for mirth than truth.

AT KEITH PALACE

Current Bill Closes Tonight at Palace—The Night Clerk Coming.

With two shows this evening the current bill at the New Palace will say good bye to Fort Wayne. It has proved one of the favorites of the entire season, for it has an unusual percent of purity, gauged by the standards of vaudeville excellence. Kenny and Hollis, the team of fun rioters, in their refreshingly breezy assortment of nonsense, "Freddie's Initiation," are the headliners, judging by the reception they have been accorded at every performance. Among the other real acts on this bill are Victorine and Zolar, the two unusual dancing girls in a novelty act that closes with the sensational La Dana Duo; Angelo, Wier and Dacey, the harmony trio, in a smart song arrangement; Baron Lichter, the funny pianologist; Guy Rawston and Frances Claire's episode of childhood, "Yesterday," and the high speed animal act, the Theleros Circus.

The Night Clerk Coming. There seems to be no limit to the versatility of Will Hough, the Clyde Fitch of the musical comedy world, for this genius goes on grinding out one lyrical travesty after another and never repeats. His latest effort is "The Night Clerk," the feature attraction at the New Palace for the early part of the coming week. "The Night Clerk" will be presented by the No. 1 road company at the New Palace, and is said to be quite the greatest of them all, with a score that is certain to attain the whistling stars of popularity immediately.

Australian Wood-Choppers. Jackson & McLaren, the Australian Woodchoppers, who came to the Palace on next Thursday claim the distinction of being the champion axmen of the world. For several years they took part in the annual woodchopping contests that are held in New South Wales with as much distinction as the Cheyenne Roundup is to our western country. Lumberjacks of other nations have tested their skill and endurance against these athletic Australians but thus far no one has come forward to wrest the championship laurels from them. The stage is elaborately set to represent a dense Australian bush untrammelled by man, and a veritable jungle of aylvan loveliness. Great trees, and not stage trees either, fall like prairie grass before the fire when Jackson & McLaren start on their rugged block with their sharpened axes. The exhibition is far different than anything heretofore seen in the varieties.

AT THE TEMPLE.

"THE RED CIRCLE" PLEASES.

"Love's Model" Will Open at the Temple Monday Evening.

A drama with intense interest from beginning to end described very briefly "The Red Circle," which pleased many Fort Wayne theater patrons in the initial performance last night at the Temple. With the workings of the "Black Hand" organization revealed in the development of the plot, a love story, too, is unfolded. The uses and abuses to which the district attorney's office is put at times also is shown with the politics connected, but the heart interest overrules all. The play will be produced again tonight and tomorrow afternoon and night.

"Love's Model," Eugene Reinald's new-est play of mirth and mystery, a melodramatic comedy of thrills and romance and startling adventure, will open Monday night for a run of four nights with matinee Tuesday and Thursday afternoons.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

Thrilling Story With Capital Punishment as a Theme at Jefferson

If you were governor and was seeking a re-election and in public addresses had made it plain that your belief was that a man should be punished according to his crime. If he deathly death, he should pay with his own life. When suddenly you are confronted with the fact that your own brother is convicted of murder and has been sentenced to the electric chair, what would you do? This is the situation of John Loring (Craig Wilbur) in "Vengeance Is Mine," showing at the Jefferson today. John Loring is the governor of a western state and is opposed to pardons and is uncompromising for capital punishment. He has a brother Richard that has no particular virtues or vices. He over-hears a social gangster, Clark, threaten the governor's wife with blackmail unless she gives him a very large sum of money. It appears that in her earlier life there was a series of instances that she kept from her husband. Clark, unless she meets his demands, threatens to expose her. On the night that the wife is to turn the money over to Clark, Richard follows her to the meeting place—the man's apartment. Having been unable to raise the money, the wife pleads for more time. At this point Richard knocks at the door. Clark hastily hides the wife behind the curtains, and opens the door to face the governor's brother. He refuses to give up the evidence he has of the wife's guilt, and in the fight that follows Clark is hurled against the curtains. The blow explodes a gun that the wife had picked up from a table, and Clark is shot and killed. What did the wife do? What did Richard do? What did the governor do? The ending is full of heart interest. See it.

nancy as the one that besets them when William Farnum, who plays the part of the "fighting parson" in "Fighting Blood," makes ready to do battle with Willard Louis, another actor who plays the part of Big Ed, twin bully in Red Dog, Nev., and an all around tough guy. The altercation starts when Farnum, in the garb of a minister attempts to address a crowd of miners in the dance hall. Big Ed remonstrates with the ecclesiastic, slapping him partly upon one cheek and then with historical privilege upon the other. But inasmuch as the good book doesn't mention that the aggressor is entitled to a third smite, Farnum furnishes this and does it with such gusto and feeling that his lumbering adversary is nearly knocked off his feet. But that merely complicates matters and they are not straightened out until Farnum has worsted his man in one of the bitterest, bloodiest fights ever staged before the camera, and one that tends in a clean knockout for the pugnaious movie star.

EAGLES' LODGE WILL HAVE NEW BUILDING

Plans Are Now Being Drawn for Structure Costing $20,000.

Preliminary plans are being drawn for a new lodge building to be erected this summer by the Eagles' lodge, costing approximately $20,000. The proposed building will be two stories and basement.

Architect J. M. E. Riedel is drawing plans for a new store building to be erected by Henry Alcinon, on Maumee avenue. Work on the new building will start early in the spring.

Architect C. R. Weatherlogg will take bids till February 28 for a two-story building to be erected at Garrett, by the Garrett State bank.

Completed plans for a new $10,000 parsonage, to be erected by the St. John Reformed church. The building is to be of pressed brick, with stone trimmings.

Rapid progress is being made on the new building being erected by the Fort Wayne Land and Improvement company. The structure will be three stories and basement, 235 by 58.

The new Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church now under construction at St. Mary's avenue and Hoffman street, in Bloomington, will be dedicated next August. Plans for the dedication, which will be a big affair, are now being discussed. Ministers prominent in the Evangelical Lutheran church will probably take part in the exercises.

STRIKE NEAR SETTLEMENT.

Ansonia, Conn., Feb. 19.—Prospects were considered bright today for an amicable adjustment of the difficulties between the American Brass company and its 2,500 striking employees. A conference will be held this afternoon to consider the issues in dispute. The strikers, representing eleven nationalities were not organized until last night, when a youth, Joseph Grohol, succeeded in bringing their factions together. A sub-committee of 33 will present to the company demands for a wage increase and better working conditions. There was no disturbance during the night.

SPANISH WAR VETS ENDORSE ARMORY

At the meeting of Henry W. Lawton camp, No. 35, United Spanish War Veterans, Friday evening in Vordermark hall, the movement for a new armory in Fort Wayne for which $20,000 appropriated by the last legislature can be obtained providing an equal amount is raised by the citizens of Fort Wayne, was given a hearty endorsement. Major John E. Miller explained the proposition in detail. He urged that inasmuch as Fort Wayne is without a public auditorium, a need which is growing every year more pressing, that action be taken to bring about the securing of the armory building to this city.

The following committee was appointed to draw resolutions petitioning the county commissioners to take favorable action in aiding the armory movement: Comrades Johnson, Lewis, Hagarty, Jones and Commander Todd.

William Hagarty was named chairman of the committee in charge of the organization of a firing squad and in securing uniforms. John Johnson was named chairman of the enlistment committee for the year.

At the request of Zollinger camp, Quartermaster A. C. Hartwig, Commander Levi A. Todd and Senior Vice Commander Forest Arney were appointed a committee to arrange with a similar committee from Zollinger camp for a joint celebration of muster day, April 28, in honor of the departure of the troops for the front eighteen years ago.

Comrades Zuber, Hagarty and Arney were detailed to arrange for some kind of a celebration and "feed" at the next meeting of Lawton camp on March 17.

SENATE TO CALL UP OTHER TREATIES NOW

Nicaraguan Pact Ratified in Upper House by a 55 to 18 Vote.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The Nicaraguan treaty out of the way, administration senators were ready today to call up for action the Haitian treaty and in turn the amended Colombian treaty. Nicaraguan convention, under which the Nicaraguan canal route would be obtained for $3,000,000 was ratified, 55 to 18, in the senate yesterday.

Included in the ratification resolution was a provision declaring that the United States in obtaining the naval base does not intend to violate any existing rights in the Fonseca gulf of Costa Rica, Honduras and Salvador which had protested against the proposed acquisition.

Five democratic senators voted against the treaty. They were Chamberlain, Martin, Clarke, of Arkansas, Thomas and Vandaman. Republicans who voted against ratification were Borah, Clegg, Cummings, Gronna, Jones, Kenyon, La Follette, McCumber, Nelson, Norris, Smith, of Michigan, Smoot and Warren. Fifteen republican senators joined the administration forces in support of the treaty. They were: Brandegee, Colt, Dillingham, Dupont, Fall, Gallinger, Harding, Lippitt, Lodge, McLean, Page, Poinsett, Sutherland, Wadsworth and Weeks.

Immediately after the senate had acted, Senator Chamorro, the Nicaraguan minister, said he would at once communicate with his government and that he expected ratification of the convention by his government would soon follow.

GREAT GERMAN TROOP MOVEMENT IN BELGIUM

Amsterdam, Feb. 19.—During the last six days great German troop movements have occurred in south and central Belgium, says a dispatch from the frontier to the Telegraaf. Long trains with artillery and infantry were running along the roads to the west and south and some small detachments were transported by way of Louvain, Wavren and Gembloux to the southeast. Louvain, the dispatch adds, still is a strong point of German strategy and many conferences of high military officers are held there.

Only the rear guard took part in the fighting of the last day. Signs that the evacuation was under way were observed immediately after the fall of the first fort. It is thought possible the Turks will attempt to make a stand at the first favorable point which is in the hills on the western edge of Erzerum valley eleven miles distant, but it is not regarded as probable that they have been.

On January 29 both forts capitulated there. The Russians are hastily repairing the small damages done to the fortresses against a possible attempt of the Turks to retake them. No news has been received of the fate of Ekved Pevir Hassa, commander of the Turkish troops, who was in charge of the defense of Erzerum. It is reported that reinforcements from Thrace were on the way to Erzerum.

The campaign began to reach its climax in the last days of January. The troops of Gen. P. from the north and those of Gen. K. from the east moved against the first line forts under the most severe weather conditions. The Russians dragged their artillery to the heights surrounding the fortresses and when all was ready began to bombard forts Kara Gudek, 20 miles and Fort Dalan Gey, 15 miles northeast of Erzerum, preparatory to the bayonet assault. The taking of Dalan Gey made a breach in the outer line defenses along the Beve Boinu range in front of the city. The capture of Kara Gudek opened a direct passage through the Kara Bagns pass to the city proper from the northeast.

Fort Tafta lies midway between these fortresses. In a night attack on January 30 this fort was captured, leaving only Chaban Bebe between the two armies operating from this quarter. On February 2 the Russians began to storm the whole front line on the Beve Boinu heights. By evening all these positions were in Russian hands, permitting complete junction of the troops on the northeast. The fall of

GOVERNMENT FAILS TO MAKE OUT CASE

Cannot Take Men Accused in Eastland from Michigan for Trial.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 10.—Holding that the government had failed to make out a case against the six men indicted in connection with the steamer Eastland disaster in Chicago last July, Judge Clarence W. Sessions in the United States district court here yesterday afternoon handed down a decision denying the government's application for the removal of the accused persons to the jurisdiction of the federal court for the northern district of Illinois. By the terms of the decision the indictments against George T. Arnold, William H. Hull, Robert Red, Charles C. Eckhoff, Harry Peterson and Joseph M. Erickson are held insufficient so far as they can be applied to hold the six men on the charges of negligence and conspiracy alleged in them.

The court's ruling in summing up the reasons for refusing to permit the removal of the defendants says: "The dead cannot be restored to life. The sorrows of the living cannot be lessened by claiming other victims. The majesty of the law cannot be upheld and vindicated by forcing men from their homes to stand trial among strangers upon accusations which there is barely a scintilla of proof to sustain. The evidence in this matter wholly fails to establish probable cause for believing these defendants guilty of any crime charged in the indictments."

The Empire State Express has been running for nearly twenty-five years. During that time it has carried almost 3,000,000 passengers without one fatal accident.

SEEKS ENLISTMENT ON ROLL OF HONOR

Telegrapher L. C. Lopshire
Forty-Eight Years.

L. C. Wilshire, a Pennsylvania telegraph operator at present located at Winona, has made application for a pension on the disability clause which allows employees to enter the pension system department after attaining the age of sixty-five years, providing the applicant is incapacitated by sickness or accident for further service. Mr. Wilshire was born at Dayton, Ind., January 29, 1849, and is past sixty-seven years old. He entered the employ of the company as a telegraph operator at Warsaw in July, 1868, when he was nineteen years old, and worked constantly at it on the Western division up to January 1, when he was taken sick. Most of his time has been spent at Warsaw, Bourbon and Winona, but at times he was sent elsewhere on the division and is known to all the operators, dispatchers, trainmen and others employed on the division.

APPROPRIATION HAS BEEN MADE.

And Work on Big Building on Wall Street Will Begin Soon.

General Manager F. S. Hunting, of the local branch of the General Electric company, returned from Schenectady, N. Y., last night, clothed with authority to go ahead with the erection of the big shop building on Wall street, which was commenced two years ago and abandoned because of the business depression which settled over the country at that time. The plans as originally drawn contemplated a four-story building but this has been changed to a five-story, giving a large additional floor space and making it much larger than any building in the present plant. Mr. Hunting said this morning that the building would be for general factory purposes, the space to be assigned to departments when the structure is completed. "It will give a floor space of double the present buildings and will more than double the facilities of the shops," Mr. Hunting said. The plans and specifications are nearly ready for the contractors and bids will be invited in a week or two. It is the intention of pushing the building to completion as rapidly as possible.

IS TWENTY-NINE YEARS OLD.

G. I. A. to B. L. E. Preparing for Celebration.

Friendship division, No. 18, G. I. A. to the B. L. E. will be twenty-nine years old on Tuesday, March 21, and on that date the auxiliary will celebrate the anniversary in an appropriate manner. Heretofore the auxiliary made these celebrations open to all members of the families of the auxiliary ladies and the B. L. E. men, but the coming anniversary celebration will be confined to the auxiliary members and their husbands. The event will be held at the hall, No. 1018 Calhoun street, which is now being equipped with new carpets and furniture.

FUNERAL LARGELY ATTENDED.

Master Mechanic G. W. Smith, Division Storekeeper E. L. Ensel, Freight Agent J. P. McPartland, Yardmaster J. S. Cogarty and General Shop Foreman W. J. Welch, of the Wabash, attended the funeral of the late Supt. J. C. Sullivan at Peru yesterday, which was one of the largest attended funerals seen in that city for many years. The pallbearers were men who had been associated with Mr. Sullivan in railroad work. They were: Agent J. P. McPartland, of Fort Wayne; Assistant Trainmaster A. F. King, of Peru; Commercial Agent James Redding, of Toledo; Chief Dispatcher J. P. Cullen; Agent Michael Burke, of Logansport; and Charles Cannon.

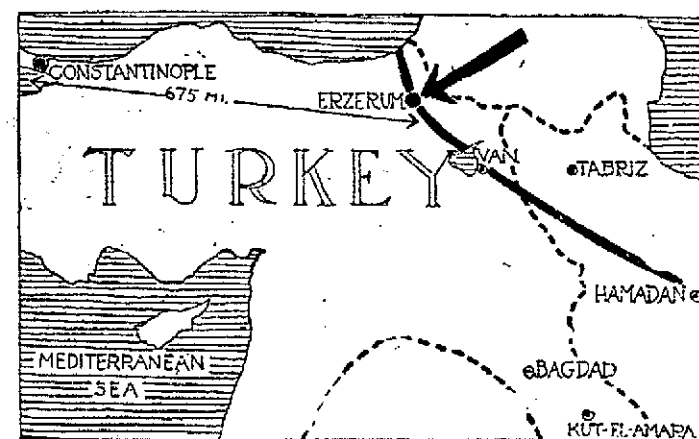

REDUCING YARD FORCE.

Next Monday the Pennsylvania will make a cut in the number of men employed in its yards. The reduction will involve the return of E. H. Hull, H. L. Mains and C. P. Dinklage, extra yard foremen, to calling. These men were promoted to foremen several months ago, when there was a demand for more crews.

TURNED OUT THIRTEEN ENGINES.

The Pennsylvania erecting shop repaired and turned out during the week closing today thirteen engines, one being a G. & E. engine, No. 99. The Pennsylvania locomotives turned out were Nos. 9099, 7759, 7553, 7472, 7347.

CAPTURE OF ERZERUM BRINGS THE RUSS NEARER BESIEGED BRITISH.

This map shows the Russians' battle front (heavy black line) in Turkey and Persia now that they have captured Erzerum. The next Russian offensive on this front is expected along the east shore of Lake Van. A British force is surrounded by superior Turkish strength at Kut-el-Amara, and London believes the advance of the Russians will lighten the tension here and allow the British to fight their way out—unless the Turks fall back on Bagdad, in which case the British, reinforced, will resume the march on that city.

Seeks Retirement After Working Nearly Fifty-One Years on the Pennsylvania.

ALBERT G. ESTRY

Albert G. Estry, for over thirty-two years a conductor on the Pennsylvania limited trains, Nos. 2 and 5, running between Fort Wayne and Crestline, has made his last run in that capacity and has applied for a pension on the disability clause and will probably be placed on the "roll of honor" March 1. Conductor Estry has been in poor health for several months, and was suffering with an attack of grip when he brought his train in from Crestline Sunday, January 2, and for ten days thereafter was confined to the house and a part of the time to his bed. It was then he decided to apply for a pension and quit active duty. Mr. Estry was born at Marlboro, Starke county, Ohio, July 10, 1847, and is, therefore, sixty-eight years and six months old. When six years old he went with his parents to Van Wert, Ohio, where he grew to manhood and where he obtained an education in the public schools. When nearly seventeen years old, on May 2, 1864, he enlisted in Company H, 139th Ohio volunteer, and served his enlistment term of three months. His service on the railroad dates from May 9, 1865, when he became a freight brakeman. At that time the road was known as the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago. He worked in that capacity until October 15, 1869, when he was promoted to freight conductor. April 10, 1874, he was advanced to passenger conductor and has served in that capacity ever since. The Pennsylvania limited was put into service, or made a vestibule train in 1882 and the following year, in 1883, Mr. Estry was assigned to it and had charge of it up to January 3, when he was taken sick, serving over thirty-two years. For many years the Pennsylvania limited was the finest train running across the state of Indiana. It has maintained its excellence of appointment and equipment and is today a magnificent train, though faster trains have been put on the road since. During the half-century and more Mr. Estry was in railroad service he was in only one accident in which he was injured. June 4, 1873, he had one of his legs fractured and was unable to work for ten months. That injury never fully healed and is one of the reasons why he now seeks retirement before he is seventy years old.

ters at Logansport, who was in the city on business for the department, called at the office of Road Foreman of Engines J. H. Hanna, of the Pennsylvania, to congratulate that gentleman upon his promotion. This was the first time Mr. Widgeon has seen Mr. Hanna since he became road foreman of engines. He left on the Wabash train for his home at noon.

W. M. Stevenson, representing the Crucible Steel company of America, headquarters in Chicago, is calling upon patrons in Fort Wayne. He arrived this morning and will remain over Sunday. In fact the business is fully up to the company's facilities for handling it. He comes to Fort Wayne two or three times a month and has a number of friends here.

City Fire Departments Make Four Runs Friday Afternoon.

Four calls were answered by various houses of the city, fire department Friday afternoon and evening. No. 6 wagon made a run to 505 West Fourth street where smoke was seen issuing from the frame building owned by Frank Hill. There was no fire there however, when the firemen arrived.

A blaze causing $15 loss was discovered at 5:47 o'clock in the garage at the rear of the residence of John Brewer, 1302 Spy Run avenue. The apparatus answered the call which came in from box No. 91.

A chimney fire in the two-story frame residence of George Selouck, 1901 Oliver street, was extinguished without loss. The alarm was answered at 7:15 o'clock.

At 7:45, the chemical of No. 3 was sent to 914 West Main street, occupied by Harry Loos where a blaze was discovered in a closet. The loss was $15.

IS "BUSINESS END" OF BRITISH EMPIRE

Something About Dover, a

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—"Dover, where German seaplanes have lately been showering high explosives, might be called the 'business end' of the British empire toward the continent; for when England wars in Europe her troops set out from Dover's harbor, whence they have gone to Germany, France, Holland, Italy, Spain and Belgium in centuries past, and whence they are leaving today in an unending stream for scores of battlefields distributed clean across the continent from the ocean to the Black Sea," begins a primer on war geography just issued by the National Geographic society at Washington.

"The city occupies a narrow break in the famous chalk cliffs, and its harbor is formed by a grand enclosure of the waters of the Straits of Dover by more than a mile of piers. The chalk cliffs are honey-combed with military works, hidden guns and batteries and galleries through the rock. The fortification of this point, where England and continental Europe approach nearest to one another, has been done as thoroughly as military ingenuity can devise. Besides the works built into the cliffs, the harbor is guarded by a modern redoubt, Fort Burgoyne, and other fortification-circuits. It has always been a favorite worry with Englishmen to dream of invasion via the Straits and Dover.

"So keenly have Englishmen felt about the subject since the days of the Northern pirates, that they have several times refused to consider seriously a project for linking Dover with Calais by tubes under the channel to France, lest an insidious enemy some day march across unexpectedly into their country under their protecting sea. One company formed for the construction of such a dry-land way between Europe and England did manage to get some lengthy reports made to parliament, in which the suggestions were advanced that provision must be made, with the construction of any such tubes, for their flooding from Dover in case of an outbreak of hostilities between Britain and any European power. The idea, however, was dropped as a dangerous one.

"Roman shipping visited Dover's port, and, probably, the Phoenicians before Roman times traded there. The harbor was fortified in the 4th century, and the original defenses have been kept up to-date ever since. The battle of Dover was fought off the harbor of the town, August 21, 1217. Eustace the Monk, adventurer-pirate and soldier of fortune, in command of a great French flotilla to aid the English barons against their king, was severely beaten in this sea-fight by the much smaller Dover fleet. The battle of Dover ranks as high in the annals of British victories on the sea against odds as that engagement in which the Armada was driven off."

GIRL LEPER'S SMILE AIDS FIGHT FOR LIFE

Plays Piano With Shapeless Hands as Doctors
Try New Remedy.

A bill has been introduced in congress asking for an appropriation to build a leprosarium for the care of many lepers said to be in the country. This story tells of one such case—only one now under government treatment.

By IDA H. M'GLONE GIBSON

New York, Feb. 19.—I have seen and talked to a 17-year-old girl afflicted with leprosy, that ancient disease supposed to be the curse of God.

Magellen McLean, isolated in a room at the Hudson county (N. J.) hospital for contagious diseases, has leprosy in its advanced stages.

When I entered the room I saw huddled in an arm chair next to the radiator between the two windows, a slight form whose face was buried in a book.

"Magellen, I have brought a friend of mine to see you," said Supt. McDonough.

Instantly the girl arose and smiled—yes, with full knowledge of her condition she could still smile. The ravages of her disease had begun to show in her face, which quickly settled back into a wistful questioning.

"What are you reading?" I asked.

"A romantic novel; all about kings and conspiracies."

"Do you read your Bible?" asked the superintendent. "Do you like to read it?"

"Yes, I read a chapter every night, but I like to read about life as it is lived today. I want to live!"

The pathos of it—a lump rose in my throat.

"Play something for us, Magellen," said the nurse. The girl went to the piano—her room is fitted with book-cases, a player piano and other comforts. First she played a hymn, then some ragtime. Her poor, little hands have already begun to grow shapeless, but she can finger the piano keys.

"You have been here two weeks today, Magellen," the superintendent remarked.

There was a little catch in her voice as she said, under her breath: "It seems like two years."

"There are 3,000,000 lepers in the world," said Supt. McDonough, as he went back to his office. "And never was one born in America. Magellen was born in the West Indies. None of her people has been known to be a leper."

"There are a good many more lepers in America than one may suppose. You may sit beside them in the subway or jostle them on the streets of New York, for the board of health does not isolate cases of leprosy until the third or last stage."

"The government has cured 30,000 lepers in the Philippines with chaulmoogra oil. We are using this in Magellen's case."

"The average layman does not know that the terms of leprosy and of tuberculosis look so much alike. It is probable a man who has never seen a leprosy germ would pronounce it a tuberculosis bacillus."

All the while the superintendent was talking so technically of germs I saw that little, wistful smile. It haunted me all the way back to New York.

Shall All American Cities Put Their Police on the Water Wagon?

BY JONAS PLATT

New York, Feb. 19.—Shall the police of every city in America go on the water wagon?

This important question, regarding the regulation of the personal habits of the guardians of the law, is likely to become a great national issue as the result of the amazing action in New York of Dominick Henry, the famous police captain of Manhattan's 133rd station.

Capt. Henry, the most popular officer on the force, has made all his 117 patrolmen sign the temperance pledge for one solid year!

And the question of extending this ruling over all the precincts of the five boroughs of Greater New York is now being agitated. Simultaneously reformers have declared today they will demand that this decree be made effective in every large city in the United States.

At a recent meeting of clergymen in New York, Capt. Henry's men were the chief topic of discussion and a resolution was passed urging preachers in all parts of the country to support a campaign to carry Henry's idea into every city in the United States.

The introduction of "total abstinence" among the cops has created a tremendous stir among New York's forces and no official personage less popular than "Capt. Henry" could have inaugurated it. Capt. Henry has fought for sobriety in the police department ever since he became a precinct commander. More than 500 confirmed drunkards have taken the Henry "cure" and returned to duty freed from the habit that dragged them down.

For a number of years Capt. Henry was in command of the Mercer street station. His fame as a reformer of whiskey victims had spread through the department and commissioners grew accustomed to send drinking men to his precinct as a last resort. The vast majority returned to their original posts in as good condition as ever.

A few days ago he called his men together. He told them of his ambition to eliminate drinking from his command. He talked only five minutes, but his words worked wonders. The men got together afterward and every last one of them voluntarily signed the pledge!

Here is the little speech that persuaded them to climb aboard the water wagon:

"Of all the men in the world who ought not to drink the police officer is foremost. He is a soldier fighting for law and order. The soldiers of Europe have been put on the water wagon, and you men are soldiers doing duty in this precinct.

"It takes a drink ten minutes to act on the human system and 30 minutes to die out. If you take one drink on a cold night you begin to feel warmer in ten minutes. You feel warm for half an hour. Then you get cold again. What's the result? You want another drink, and you go and take one. Cut it out."

Later Capt. Henry enlarged on his idea to me.

"I don't suppose anyone outside of the police force realizes what a menace a half-drunk policeman is to the community," he said. "How can he be expected to protect life and property? Would you rest well at night if you thought the man who is supposed to be guarding you from criminals was half full of whiskey?"

"In the poorer districts the policeman is the personal representative of the law. When the people of such a section see an officer under the influence of liquor they immediately lose their respect for the law, and this attitude of contempt breeds crime at an appalling rate. A child who sees a drunken policeman grows up with a feeling of contempt for the law simply because in his earlier years he once saw a drunken policeman."

"When I was at the Mercer street station I saw some of the finest specimens of manhood wrecked by drink.

They were sent to me in pitiable condition. There is no more painful sight than a big six-footer unsteady by the craving for alcohol."

"I sent some seemingly hopeless specimens back to their work as fit as ever—and perhaps a little stronger for their bitter experience. These men would have been dismissed from the force if no one had been there to help them."

"I cannot venture to say how many crimes could be traced to the negligence of a half-drunk policeman, but it is a safe bet to say that the efficiency of every police force in the country will be increased in good measure if drink can be eliminated from the life of every man who wears the shield."

"I think 90 per cent. of the police of the United States could be induced to get aboard the water wagon if the movement carried out in this precinct is duplicated in other cities."

"My remarks should not be taken as a hint that policemen drink more than civilians. I think they drink less. However, their responsibility is so peculiar that they should be more careful than most men. Like the locomotive engineer, they hold in their care the lives of multitudes. Everyone knows how strict the railroads are about the habits of their engine drivers."

"I have absolute faith that this movement for police abstinence will spread throughout the country. Booze must fall back before the advance of efficiency!"

those subject to the corporation and income tax laws to have their returns in on or before that date in order that they may escape the penalty and possible prosecution.

SUBJECT TO INCOME TAX
Federal Employees Included in the List—Warning From Collector

Indianapolis, Feb. 19.—Federal employees, and especially postmasters, are either ignorant or unmindful of the fact that they are subject to the income tax law, according to the announcement of Peter J. Krueger, collector of internal revenue for the Sixth district in Indiana. It is Mr. Krueger's contention that in the long list of those subject to the income tax, federal employees are very prominent, despite the fact that all delinquents lay themselves liable to the penalty of 50 per cent. of such taxation, to which may be added criminal prosecution.

Although such returns must be made on or before March 1, the total of those having complied with the law is comparatively small when compared with the grand total. With federal employees, the tax includes all those whose incomes total $3,000, or if their combined net income and salary reach that amount.

Mr. Krueger has again warned all

New York, Feb. 19.—Substitutes for platinum, which will materially relieve the scarcity of that metal in this country because of the war, have been discovered by American chemists, F. A. 119 WASHINGTON BOULEVARD, EAST

Copy of Proposal Made to the City by the Traction Company for Street Lighting:

THE FORT WAYNE & NORTHERN INDIANA TRACTION COMPANY.

February 18, 1916.

TO THE HONORABLE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS, OF THE CITY OF FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

GENTLEMEN:

In the report recently made to the Common Council of the City of Fort Wayne by Mr. John Wessel, Jr., Secretary and Manager of the Municipal Light Department, for the year 1914, the following statement is made:

"For a number of years prior to 1909, the City has been paying for their street lights at the rate of $70.00 per arc per annum. In 1909 the Council fixed the amount to be paid by the City to the Municipal Lighting Plant at $53.00 per annum.

The following statement shows the average number of arcs in service annually, the annual cost under the former and the present rates, and the saving to the City under the reduced rates:

YEAR	No. of Arcs	Cost at Rate of $70.00	Cost at Rate of $53.00	Saving
1909	437.80	$ 22,967.00	$ 17,390.00	$ 5,577.00
1910	487.80	34,146.00	25,853.65	8,292.35
1911	540.68	37,847.60	28,655.93	9,191.67
1912	582.12	40,748.40	30,872.49	9,875.91
1913	587.07	41,094.90	31,115.03	9,979.87
1914	656.72	45,970.40	34,806.10	11,164.30
TOTAL		$222,775.00	$168,693.20	$54,081.80

A statement of all the facts and the actual cost to the City per arc lamp per annum for the year 1907 (the last whole year in which the street lighting was furnished by the Traction Company) compared with the year 1914, the last year included in Mr. Wessel's report, is the best and most complete refutation of the claim of savings made by the operation of the Municipal Plant for street lighting. The contract, under and by which the public lighting of the streets of the City was supplied for several years before the construction of the Municipal Plant, was made between the City and the Fort Wayne Electric Light and Power Company, (then owned by a number of the most prominent citizens and business men of this city), whose property, contracts and franchises were subsequently purchased and acquired by the Fort Wayne & Wabash Valley Traction Company, which continued to furnish the street lighting under this contract until the construction of the Municipal Plant.

That contract provided for the payment of $70.00 per arc lamp per annum, which included not only the electric energy for light, but also the lighting, extinguishing and trimming of lamps and the furnishing, maintaining and repairing of the poles, wires and lamps. The charge of $53.00 per arc lamp per annum to the tax-payers by the Municipal Plant is for electric energy only; the cost of maintenance, repairs and other operating expense are included in the operating expenses of the entire plant. When such expenses are separated from the whole operating expenses, it will be shown by the books of the Municipal Plant that the cost of maintenance, repairs and operation of the arc lamps will amount to $10.00 per arc lamp per annum.

That contract also contained the following provisions, curiously omitted from consideration in the estimate of costs made by the Secretary of the Light Department, to-wit:

"If any of the lamps do not burn during said time aforesaid, said City is to have a pro rata credit on the amount due said second party at the end of the month, and it is agreed that the police of said City are to report, monthly, all lamps not burning on their routes or beats, and the time said lamps are out, and the proportionate credit aforesaid is to be given according to the report of said police, which is to be taken as conclusive."

When the Traction Company furnished the street-lighting, the City deducted and withheld from the contract price the pro rata amount for all outages, and the report of such outages made by the police to the City was, by the terms of the contract, made conclusive. Outages do, and will occur, with every form of arc lamp used, and frequently occur and often for long periods of time, in the Municipal street arc lamps. This can be verified by any observing person living near them. No deduction, however, is made from the price of $53.00 per arc lamp charged by the City for such outages of its own lamps. Again, during the time the Traction Company furnished the city lighting, the City levied and collected a tax of $1.00 per pole on each and every pole maintained by the Traction Company, which was paid by the Company, not because it was legally bound to do so, but on account of the contract with the City for the public lighting.

The following is an exact statement of the number of arc lamps furnished and operated by the Traction Company for lighting the streets during the year 1907, the deduction for outages withheld by the City, the actual monthly payments made by the City therefor, and the amount of pole tax paid by the Company as shown by the books of both the City and the Traction Company, which can be verified by an examination of such books:

Actual cost per arc lamp to City for the year 1907	$52.56, or 44 cents per arc lamp less than the City paid in 1914.
Actual loss to the City for the 656.72 arc lamps operated by the City in 1914, @ 44c per lamp	$ 248.96
To which should be added the cost of maintenance, repairs and operation of 656 suspended type arc lamps operated in 1914, at $10.00 per lamp	6,560.00
TOTAL LOSS	$ 6,808.96

Instead of a saving of $11,164.30 as claimed in the Secretary's report.

Again, the arc lamps furnished and operated by the Traction Company in 1907 were 9.6 ampere Wood Arc Lamps of 850 candle power, consuming 450-watts at the lamp terminals, while the arc lamps now used and operated by the City are only 4 ampere arc lamps of 600 candle power, consuming 320-watts per hour at the lamp terminals. The price therefore charged and received by the City per kilowatt (which is the universal unit of measure for electric energy) for public lighting, is considerably higher than the amount received by the Traction Company per kilowatt for such lighting during the year 1907.

According to the books of the Municipal Light Department, the arc lamp consumption for the year 1915 was 963,220 kilowatt hours, metered at the power station. There were operated, 663 suspended type arc lamps at $53.00 per year, and 189 ornamental type arc lamps at $56.50 per year, which amounts to $45,817.00, or .0476 cents per kilowatt hour, while at the same time they supplied some small consumers, consuming less than 400 kilowatt hours per month (or 4,800 kilowatt hours per year), metered at the place of consumption, at the rate of .0277 cents per kilowatt hour. If the line and transformer losses resulting in the transformation and transmission of the electric energy supplied for public lighting metered at the power station are taken into consideration, the charge to these small consumers is less than one-half the charge for public lighting to tax-payers, whose money built the Municipal Plant and pays for the public lighting.

In view of the foregoing statements, we beg to submit for your consideration the following proposals:

First: We will furnish electric energy at our power station on Spy Run Avenue, necessary for the operation of the following lamps now in service:

- 670 4-ampere Magnetite Arc Lamps, suspended type, to be burned on what is known as "The Philadelphia Moon Light Schedule," being a total of 2,000 hours per year, and

These proposals are made with the understanding that the Mercury Arc Rectifier sets complete, which include all of the arc lighting apparatus in the Municipal Lighting Plant at present, shall be transferred to the Company's power house on Spy Run Avenue, at the Company's expense, for the use of the City under the contract hereinafter mentioned. The title to all such rectifier sets shall remain in the City and shall be returned to the City and set up in its plant at the termination of such contract at the Company's expense, in as good condition as they now are, except the usual wear and depreciation thereof. The company's line will be extended at the expense of this Company from their Spy Run Power Station to and connected with the City's arc light circuits at the City's power plant, in order that electric energy may be furnished in accordance with either of the above proposals.

These proposals are made with the understanding that a contract will be entered into for a period of ten years, and in case additional electric energy is desired during the life of this contract for additional lamps of the same kind, or similar lamps consuming the same amount of electric energy, connected by the City to the present or additional arc light circuits, the same will be furnished on a pro rata basis. The City shall, as heretofore, furnish, maintain and keep in repair, all the poles, wires and lamps, the same to be kept in good operating condition.

For your information we wish to advise that according to the rates now charged for electric energy only, for street lighting service, the following is a statement of the annual expense:

670 Arc Lamps, @ $53.00 per Year	$35,510.00
189 Arc Lamps, @ $56.50 per Year	10,678.00
255 Ornamental Cluster Posts, @ $21.00	5,355.00
TOTAL	$51,543.00

If proposal No. 1 is accepted by your Board, this will mean a saving to the taxpayers of $39,543.00 per year, or a saving of $395,430.00 for the period of the proposed ten-year contract.

If proposal No. 2 is accepted by your Board, there will be a saving of $30,543.00 per annum, or a saving to the tax-payers of $305,430.00 for the period of the proposed ten-year contract, and in addition, the City will also be lighted all night, every night.

Respectfully submitted,
S. W. GREENLAND,
General Manager.

A DISGRACE TO BINGVILLE

We take our eddytorial pen in hand to dash off a redhot eddytorial on behalf of Rev Saml Moore our beloved paster of the Bingville church in the hope that it will do some good, but even if it dont do no good why it wont do no harm.

Tother day Rev. Moore happend to drop into the Bugle offis for a quiet chat and we was pained and surprised to lern that the congregation of the church is at present back nearly two yrs on their pasters salary and that Rev. Moore and wife is livin from hand to mouth as we might say and haff the time he dont know where his next meal is a coming from. This is a burning disgrace to Bingville and the members of the church in good standing ort to be ashamed of theifselfs.

Rev. Moore told us that last Sunday after morning service was over and he counted out the contents of the contribution plates all he found was a lead quarter, three five ct pieces with holes in same, several suspender buttons, a stub of a lead pencil and $1.14 in genuine change.

How can our beloved paster exist on counterfit money, suspender buttons and lead pencil stubs, we ask? Rev. Moore is a meek and lowly and humbel man. In fact it's our opinyun he is too meek & lowly & humbel for his own good. If we was paster of the Bingville church we'd either git what was cumming to us or else we'd lash out from the pulpit and expose some of the stingy titewad souls who belongs to that church until their hair would curl on their heads for em. As edditor & Prop. of the Bugle we know enuff about the pasts of some of the pusilanimous members of the Bingville church to nearly hang em and if Rev. Moore desires this information we will furnish it to him with great cheer.

Sunday after Sunday folks goes to church and sets there absorbing spiritchool refreshment until their pores is full of same and when the contribution plate is passed they drop in a plugged nickel or a paints button!

When a new baby comes to town who baptizes it and starts it out right in life? Why Rev. Moore. When ennybuddy gets married who ties the knot? Why our beloved paster. After ennybuddy in this community passes on into the great beyant who is it stretches a pint in order to say nise things about em whether they deserve it or not? Parson Moore of course.

When ennybuddy is bereaved or in sorrow or in poor health or suffering from financial stringency they allus go and lean on Rev. Moore and he comforts em and cheers em up and prays with em and blesses em. Then after the clouds passes and the sun shines agin and they git back their helth or prosper, them seem to forgit what their beloved paster has did for em and hunt around the house for old buttons to drop into the contribution plate. Thats a nise way to treat your paster aint it?

We dont say that everybuddy that belongs to the Bingville church tightens up their wallet strings when they go to service. Them members of the church who dont claim to be sanctifide is the very ones who pays Rev. Moore all he gits to live on. But when it comes to some of them as passes as the stanchest pillars of the church like Cy Hoskins, Deacon Butterworth, Eph Higgins, Arne Hilley, Constable Dewberry, Peleg Hoskins, Hen Smiley and a few more old hipper crits we could name who sets over in the amen corner lookin so sanctimonious on Sunday and trying to gouge the eyes outen their nabers every week day, why you can judge for yourself where the punched nickels, lead quarters and suspender buttons comes from.

Salvation is free but our beloved paster cant live on buttons and lead pencil stubs and promises. The Bible says that him who preaches the gospel should live off the gospel & the fact that Rev. Moores salary is back nearly two years ort to make some of the members of the Bingville church hide their faces with shame & humiliation. If this aint enuff to make em hide their faces with shame, then we kalkilate we will print a few things in the Bugle soon about certain members of our church that will make em do so.

Lokal Breefs

Sime Gookins busted into the Bugle offis tother day madden a wet hen and desired to know why there wasnt nothink printed in the Bugle about him being laid up on his back in bed with the grip for three days. Sime told us he reckoned he could die and we wouldn't never say nothink about it in the Bugle. We told him yes we would not, especially if we never heard about it. We didnt know Sime was sick until he told us so with his own month. If sich folks would advise us of same their names would appear in the paper often.

Almira's New Dress

Miss Almira Hobbs apeard in church at service last Sunday morning wearin a new dress which her mother had made for her and caused a good cal of admiration when she swep up the aisle and tuk her accustomed place in the choir.

It was a lovely dress, also a turrible good fit and Almira looking so nise in it was the synosure of all eyes as we might say. In fact the other girls in the choir was so jelous & envious and so okcupie looking at Almira's dress that they got often the tune several times and wouldn't skeercely speak to Almira when the service was over. This is a nise Christianian spirit for the members of the choir to show aint it?

MAKING FUN for MOTION PICTURES

MARY RUEBEN

SIDNEY GRANT

LETTERS FROM A CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL ACTOR

EAR DAVE:
Well, Dave, I am about well of the scratches I got when I was working in the picture with them wild animals, and we finished the picture, and it turned out to be so good because I did such fine acting in it that Mr. Croeland, the head director, gave me $25 extra, and I would be $25 ahead of my regular wages from working in that picture, if I hadn't got robbed like I did.

There ain't any danger of me getting blood poison now from them scratches, and they are all well except one pretty big one on my nose, but J. J. Murphy says it won't spoil my beauty none, and I am glad of that, because you know if I was to get my face spoiled all them girls wouldn't get stuck on me from seeing me in the movies, and want my picture like they do from us movie actors.

One girl has already wrote and asked me for my picture, but I got it back. I don't care, it will be good to send to some other girl that gets stuck on me.

I tell you, Dave, it's no fun being an actor sometimes, when some of the other actors are bears and lions, and maybe a fat girl like Flora, The Fat Girl. Even if them animals are not wild, you are liable to get all scratched up from a wire fence like I did, in getting away from them, because I didn't know that the lion was tame, like Charley, the bear, and wouldn't bite me if he got a chance.

But I am all right now. We sure had an awful time finishing that Suffragettes of the Stone Age picture, and I would just as lief be chased by a bear as to be chased by a fat girl, like I was, and she sat down on top of me and wouldn't get off, and I couldn't hit a girl to make her get off, because that wouldn't look well, and, besides, you can't hit a girl or anybody else when you are laying down flat of your stomach and her sitting down on top of you, can you, Dave?

My part in the picture is the part of the wild man that has got three wives, like I told you about, and I figure it out that I have got too many, and I am going to get rid of two of them by throwing them in the river.

J. J. Murphy says:
"You'll have to carry Flora again in this scene," and I says:
"It's a good thing I am big and strong, ain't it?" and he says:
"Yea, and Flora's awful strong for you," only I didn't know what he meant, but I found out after a while. He meant she was struck on me, Dave.

There was no river where we were working them scenes out, and, of course, I couldn't carry Flora no two miles to the river, so I was just to carry her a little piece in the woods, and then the next day we'd go to the river and I'd grab her up and carry her another little piece on the river bank and then I'd throw a dummy of her in the river, but I didn't understand that then, because J. J. Murphy didn't tell us all that when he explained the scene we were working in. He just said I was supposed to throw two of my wives in the water.

All them other actors understood, but I didn't, because they act different from the kind of acting I studied from the correspondence school that teaches movie acting by mail, and I made a little mistake, and as J. J. had said to throw both of them girls, I'll carry the big one first and get the worst of it over with, so I grabbed up Flora and started lugging her, and she says:
"Ain't I a heap lighter than I was when you carried me in Sapho? I've been takin' some stuff that will make me little."

I said:
"You ain't took enough of it yet," and that made her mad, and I wished I hadn't answered her at all.

Then J. J. Murphy hollered, "That's enough! Drop her!" There was a big puddle of water that them bears had been playing in and had got all muddy, and as J. J. had said to throw her in the water and didn't say anything about no river and no dummy, I just throwed her in the puddle, and it splashed up all over me, and she got up and took out after me.

Honest, I never thought no fat girl, or any kind of a girl, could talk like that. J. J. says she was with a circus for a long time, and she picked up all of that tough talk from the razor-backs that put the tents up in a circus. I hollered and says, "Pull her off!" But they wouldn't pull her off of me, and they took all of that stuff with the camera.

J. J. Murphy says, "Tom, did you do that on purpose, or was it another of them celebrated accidental acts of yours?"

"I knowed it would make good comedy stuff to throw her in the mud," I told him, "so I just dumped her in." And I got away with it, too. Pretty slick, eh, Dave?

That's how I come to get them twenty-five dollars that I got robbed of. When they looked over that film before they printed the pictures that are shown in the theaters they said that stuff of me getting chased by the lion and busting through the wire fence and throwing Flora in the mud and her setting on me was the best comedy stuff they'd got in a year, and they gave me and her twenty-five dollars extra.

I tell you it felt pretty good to have twenty-five dollars extra, and it all comes from being such a good movie actor, Dave, and when I was going home that day I met two men—and if they hadn't been two crooks and had paid me five dollars like they said they would, and I hadn't got robbed the way I did, I would have had thirty dollars extra.

When I came to a kind of lonesome place

IN addition to the motion pictures giving us the best and cheapest form of entertainment in the world, the little strips of film have lengthened the expectation of life and increased the average weight of the human form, the "dopsters" say. This is because of the fun-makers of the films. The evolution of film fun is interesting. When the pictures were new, all of the performers came from the regular stage. The comedian came with his slapstick and his bag of tricks, old as the hills.

He found a new situation, however, and had to invent a new brand of fun making. Most of the moving pictures were staged out of doors, on board ship, on the top of mountains, on the sea shore, in the sea itself. The bewhiskered short comedian over the head with a club away time he told a joke while standing waist deep in the sea waves, was not only difficult, but it failed to get over.

Rough-house comedy was born; the chase, there was two men, one with a camera and the other with a handkerchief tied over the bottom of his face. They asked me what time it was, and I said I didn't have any watch, but it was about half past four, or maybe five o'clock, and they told me they was waiting for some more actors to come and help them stage a hold-up scene, but it looked like they wasn't coming, and one of them said:
"You look like an actor. Do you want to make five dollars?"

I said, "I am an actor. I've got a diploma from a correspondence school that teaches movie acting by mail." And he said I was the man they wanted.

"Take off your coat," he said. "You are supposed to be an honest workman coming home to supper. You get held up and lose your wages." I walked up the road a piece and took my coat off and carried it across my shoulder and walked toward the camera, and the man with the handkerchief on ran up behind me and threw my coat over my head so I couldn't see and went through my pockets and took my twenty-five dollars, and the other man says, "Frisk him good, Bill."

Then he told me to fall to the ground like I was hurt, and I did, and he said:
"Lay still till I get some more film in the camera."

Pretty soon I unwrapped the coat from my head and both of the men were gone, and the camera was nothing but a box fixed up to look like one.

It made me so mad I just kicked it all to pieces, and then an automobile came along with two or three men and a policeman in it, and I told them about it and asked the policeman to help me catch them two crooks, and he just laughed and said he was a movie policeman that had been out taking pictures, but they took me in the automobile and we passed a saloon, and knock down, drag out, throw 'em in the river—anything to get a rise out of the audience.

This brand of fun making lasted a long time, too long a time, in fact. But while it was going on, a new form of fun making was being evolved, the real screen comedians were being made, until today there is a distinct kind of film comedy that is unlike anything the regular stage has ever offered us, and infinitely better.

Fay Tincher is one of the most notable and lovable movie fun makers. You will see the striped bathing suits and zebra coats and sweaters of the telephone operator and stenographer type created by this clever comedienne wherever moving pictures are shown. Miss Tincher is not only one of the exponents of the new brand of film fun, but she has created a distinct brand of her own.

Miss Tincher was born in Topeka, Kan., and had considerable experience on the regular stage before she joined the movies. She is a young woman of clear judgment, and she saw the opportunities of the pictures. She set about to build herself a following, which she has done with great success.

I saw them two crooks going in, and I wanted the actor with the policeman's clothes to go with me to arrest them, so they would think he was a policeman, but he was afraid he would get into trouble for acting like he was a policeman, but he loaned me his coat and hat and I went in the saloon where them crooks was drinking and grabbed the one that has the camera when they robbed me, and the other one run away.

I took the one I got to the station house, about a block away, and the judge said: "What's all this? I never saw you before." And the crook says:
"He's crazy, judge; he's found a coat and hat somewhere, and he thinks he's a policeman."

The judge looked at me and saw that I didn't have no policeman's pants, and he says, "There's something wrong somewhere. I'll look you both up." And they put us both in Jail.

Now everybody thinks I am a big boob to pull anything like that, all but Lucy. When I got home there was a letter from that girl that I sent the picture to, because she had got stuck on me from seeing me act, and it says that no man could win her heart that would drop her in the mud like I did. It was from Flora, the fat girl.

Lucy came in the room while I was reading the letter, and she says:
"Gettin' mash notes, Tom? I guess you'll be going back on me pretty soon."

I said: "Does it look like I am going back on you when I let your old man get away with my $25 extra money and make me look like a big boob, just because I don't want to hurt your feelings?"

Lucy didn't have anything to say to that, but she grabbed a hold of my arm and kinda hugged it and run out of the room before I could say another word. Well, so long.

BUD—Thomas W. Ross was "Checkers" in the play of that name, and Katharine La Salle played opposite him. William Farnum is an American, and he will probably answer your letter if you address him in care of the Fox Film Corporation, 130 West Forty-sixth street, New York. In the Fox version of Carmen, "Don Jose" was played by Elinor Linden.

C. L. K.—Very sorry, we have no synopsis of the story. It appeared in the paper, but if you have not read the story nor seen the film you would not understand enough about the play to write an acceptable sequel. By the time this is in print it will be too late to begin to try to see all the chapters before the contest closes.

PICTURE FAN—After Mrs. Butterfly, Mary Pickford appeared in "The Foundling." William Courtleigh has played in a number of pictures besides Neil of the Navy. His wife is Ethel Fleming, an actress. Most newspapers employ a staff of writers, who furnish the material printed, but if your story seems to fit any department, submit it to the editor of that department.

H. M. and G. B.—You would have to buy all the back numbers of the paper in which the story of The Diamond from the Sky was printed to get the complete story. The contest closes on February 20.

R. M.—There certainly is an actress in moving pictures by the name of Jewel Hunt. She is with the Vitaphone Company.

R. J.—Augustus Phillips plays with the Edison Company, 2826 Decatur avenue, New York.

L. J.—The Romance of Elaine was the last of the Elaine series, but the principal players in the Elaine stories, Pearl White, Creighton Hale, and Sheldon Lewis, will soon be seen in a new serial called The Iron Claw.

A. NNA—That's right, never believe all you hear. Mary Pickford will not be 23 years old until the 8th of April, 1916, and Marguerite Clark is just 23. Pearl White has very beautiful Titan hair. She is still in her early 20s.

MARY L.—Marshall Neilan played opposite Marguerite Clark in Nice and Men, and her exact age is 25 years. Charles Richman was the hero in Heights of Hazard.

GRANDMA MOVIE FAN—Address Creighton Hale in care of Wharton Studios, Ithaca, N. Y. Since The Blood of Our Brothers, Crane Wilbur has been seen in two other features. Can a Man Do More? and Vengeance Is Mine, and will soon appear in another. Watch the ads in the papers to find where these features can be seen. William E. Shay is still with the Fox Film Company, and has appeared in a number of pictures with Theda Bara, as The Two Orphans, and Sin.

B. OB—Cannon and Anna Mae Bradford, but have put her name down for further investigation.

E. DDLE—Pauline Frederick played "Bella Donna" in the play of that name, and Jewel Hunt played "Lullie" in The Little Tramp. Camille Astor was "the duchess" in Chinaman Fadden Out West, and Florence Dagmar was Betty Van Cortlandt. Miss Dagmar's address is care of Lucky Feature Play Company, Hollywood, Cal., and Miss Hunt's, Vitaphone Company, E. Fifteenth street and Locust avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

E. K.—Helen Gardner played "Madeline" in "Clothilde" in A Breath of Araby. In Clothilde most of the players were Italian, as the feature was made in Italy, and no doubt considerable make-up was necessary for the players to personate the different tribes and nationalities of people represented in the picture. Umberto Mozzato was "Fulvius Azzili," the Roman patrician, and Ernesto Paganini was "Maciste," his slave. Sorry, but we have not the complete cast of players in Clothilde.

VIRGINIA PAGE—We have no information of the company you ask about.

MISS E. R.—If the play was a Universal picture it was probably Ben Wilson who played the part you mention. It would be almost impossible to identify a play giving the name of a character in it, unless the character's name and the title of the play were the same. As far as we know he is not married, and may be addressed at Universal Heights, New Jersey.

A. L. B.—Neither Ella Hall nor Robert LeRoy are married.

B. BLACK EYES, Arkansas—Jack Kerrigan is 26 years old, and is not married. Suggestions are welcome, but if you will look back a few weeks you will find that his picture appeared in the paper.

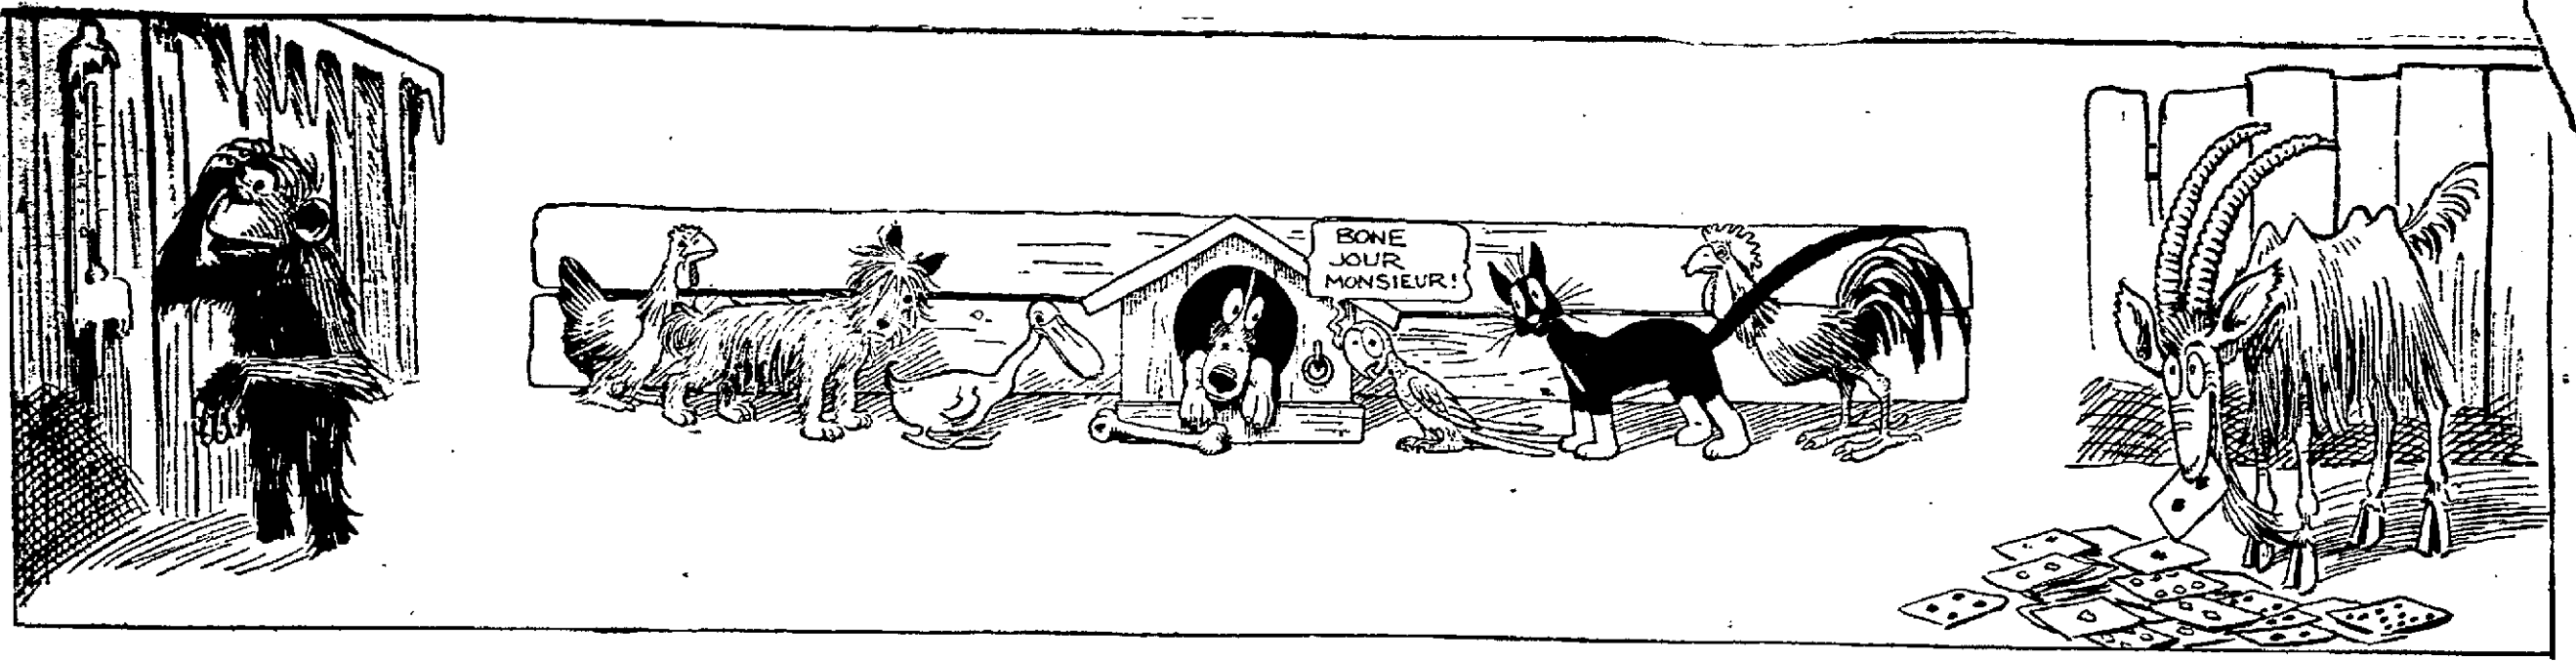

E. D.—House Peters has left the Lubin Company and has gone over to the World Film Corporation, 130 West Forty-sixth street, New York. Write to him at that address.

A. YOUNG MOVIE FAN—You are not at all troublesome, your question was very easy to answer. Bryant Washburn was "Brent" in Pieces of the Game. Write him in care of Esanay, 1333 Argyle street, Chicago, Ill.

R. OXY—Charles Chaplin's address is 631 Fairview street, Los Angeles, Cal. Francis X. Bushman's is care of Metro Pictures Corporation, 1405 Broadway, New York.

S. WEETIE—Florence Lawrence is now with the Universal Company, working in Thea, from the book of Marie Corelli. She is Mrs. Harry Soltor in private life. Henry Watthall is married.
